Here's a Mare's Nest
Saint Alexander
Old Men, Hark
100 Mayors, One Problem

—By Arthur Brisbane—

GENERAL SMEDLEY D. BUTLER, of the United States Marines, gives names and addresses of gentlemen in Wall Street who, he says, asked him to march on Washington with 500,000 war veterans, and form a dictatorship, a La Mussolini-Stalin-Kemal Pasha-Hitler. Those wicked, bad and outrageous Wall Street men were prepared to make it worth the general's while.

But General Butler spurned them, "and how," according to his friends, who suggest that General Johnson, formerly of NRA, was selected for the United States dictatorship.

When General Johnson was questioned about that, his language did not desert him. Said he: "He had better be pretty damn careful. If anybody said a word to me about dictatorship, I'd throw him out of the window."

Somebody may have been deceiving General Butler.

In any case, we are a long way from dictatorship here, Wall Street brand, or any other brand. And of all localities, under the Stars and Stripes, Wall Street would have most to fear from dictatorship.

Authorities of the Serbian Orthodox Church have decided to canonize King Alexander, recently murdered, because, having died "a martyr to the nation," he deserves to be included among the saints. The Serbian newspaper, "Varda," shows a picture of Christ "welcoming Alexander to sit at his right hand in the kingdom of Heaven."

Many saints are in Heaven, some that, unlike King Alexander, lived in poverty and humility and never shipped millions to other countries, as Alexander did. Which of those well-established saints, some of them in Heaven more than a thousand years, will have to make way for the new Serbian saint? Merely being shot would seem too easy a way of securing so glorious a seat for all eternity.

Old men are invited to rejoice at this news:

Dr. Wilder D. Bancroft, teach of chemistry at Cornell University, says:

"Small doses of sodium rhodanate will prolong life at least two years."

The National Academy of Sciences discussed that statement. Some doubted the wisdom of "prolonging life for the average man." They had in mind, perhaps, the sad lines:

"When he is forsaken,
Withered and shaken,
What can an old man do but die?"

In that condition, he certainly does not want to swallow rhodanate and go on living.

Of all nature's kindnesses, death is the greatest, ending disappointment, wiping out debt, forgiving failure, offering another chance. Sodium rhodanate is for men that are certain that they have a useful job, and are attending to it.

Mayor La Guardia, of New York, and more than one hundred other American mayors, are in Chicago, asking each other: "What should we do and where can we get the money to do it?" They all have the same problem, MONEY.

Every important city needs public works. Improvements have been neglected during the depression. But city credits are low, or nil. Bankers, frightened, naturally ask how they are to be paid, and the national government says: "We shall lend, but you must pay with interest."

Cities, over a period of thirty-three years, could easily pay back WITHOUT interest, or with nominal one-eighth of one per cent interest, to save the

ALEXANDER'S DEATH LAID TO HUNGARY

By International News Service

Geneva, Nov. 22—Hungary was formally charged with responsibility for the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia in a strongly-worded petition presented to the League of Nations council today.

Written by Bogoljub Jeftitch, foreign minister of Yugoslavia the petition alleged that investigation into the background of the tragedy at Marseille "discloses Hungarian responsibility in a particularly grave fashion."

Declaring that Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France also was slain when a Croatian assassin took the king's life, the statement declared:

"If good servants of peace such as Alexander and Barthou are made victims of an international crime without international measures being taken afterward, then it will be no longer possible to assume that organized governments exist."

The statement recalled that as long ago as June 4, Yugoslavia denounced before the League the activities of certain terrorists domiciled in Hungary, and accused certain Hungarian authorities of complicity with them.

Results obtained following an inquiry into the Marseille assassinations, Jef'itch said, "show that a criminal act was organized and executed with participation of these terrorist elements given refuge in Hungary, with continued benefit of the same complicity as before."

30-Cent Wage Scale Given Up by ERA

By Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 22—The relief administration today abandoned its 30-cent-an-hour minimum wage for relief work.

Hereafer, it was said, the factor in governing work relief wages will be the rates prevailing in the communities where the work is done.

An order rescinding all rules and regulations governing work relief wages has been sent to state administrators by Harry L. Hopkins, the federal adminictrator.

Responsibility for determining wages in the future, it was said, has been placed with local committees representing labor, business and the local relief administration.

CURLEY SPEAKS AT PAGEANT

Governor-elect Curley will open "The Pageant of the Celt" tonight in the Boston Garden, making his first appearance in public since his election on November 6.

The pageant will be broadcast from 8:30 to 9 o'clock over Stations WBZ-WBZA, with the governor-elect's message included. These stations operate on a frequency of 990 kilocycles, or 302 meters.

Tonight's performance in the Garden will be the first in a run which will continue through Sunday, with the Sunday afternoon performance the only matinee.

Needy families in Greater Boston will benefit through the pageant, given in aid of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund. (Other details on Page 2.)

THREE POLICE HEADS HIT BY SHIFT

In a general order issued at noon by Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman, the three deputy superintendents of the police department were again transferred. The transfers become effective tomorrow.

Deputy Superintendent John M. Anderson, who had the important divisions covering downtown Boston, East Boston, Charlestown and Back Bay, will hereafter handle outlying sections—Fields Corner, Jamaica Plain, West Roxbury, Hyde Park and Mattapan.

Deputy Superintendent McDevitt, who covered Jamaica Plain, Brighton, West Roxbury, Hyde Park and Mattapan divisions, was assigned to the important district which includes Stations 1 and 2, downtown; Warren avenue, South End; East Boston and Charlestown.

Deputy Superintendent William Livingston loses two of his divisions, including the all-important South End station, but takes over the Brighton and Back Bay divisions. His authority over the South Boston, Dudley street and Roxbury Crossing divisions remains unchanged.

SHIFTS FOLLOW PROBE

The transfers follow a secret investigation conducted by Commissioner Hultman since last August, it was learned.

A week ago last Saturday from 11 p. m. to 2 a. m. the commissioner, behind closed doors, con-

Judge Hints Gloria's Mother Was Cruel

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 22—In his order giving custody of Gloria Vanderbilt to Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, her aunt, Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew went much further than was asked of him by Mrs. Whitney's counsel and left the inference that the child's mother purposely had been trying to destroy her health and moral education.

Mrs. Whitney's attorney, Herbert C. Smyth, revealed today that Justice Carew had rejected the order drawn by him and had prepared his own.

"I was surprised that the findings of unfitness (Mrs. Vanderbilt's unfitness to care for her own child) were far more drastic than in the order we had prepared," he said. "I was particularly struck by the inference which some people might draw from the use of the word 'calculated' in paragraph 1 of the order."

Paragraph 1 of the order states:

"The life led by this infant —— was calculated to destroy her health and neglectful of her

MEXICO PROBES AHERN DEATH

Mexico City, Nov. 22—Acting upon the request of American Consul General Thomas H. Bowman, President-elect Lazaro Cardenas today intervened in the slaying this week of Francis Ahern, 19-year-old Arlington, Mass., student-tourist, by Mexico City policemen.

General Cardenas detailed his aides to conduct an investigation independent of the police inquiry, into the fatal shooting. He assured Bowman he would establish the identity of the persons who killed Ahern.

Bowman had pointed out the parallel bttween the Mexico City police "murder," as he termed it, and the killing in 1931 of the nephew of President Pascual Ortiz Rubio and a companion by Oklahoma sheriffs. (Other details on Page 3.)

McCormack Fund Plea Under Survey

Chicago, Nov. 22 (AP)—Opposing counsel today were studying a New York Supreme Court referee's report recommending denial of Mrs. Muriel McCormick Hubbard's plea for a four-sevenths share in the $9,500,000 trust fund established for her mother, the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick, by John D. Rockefeller, Sr.

The referee, Robert M. Marsh drafted his report to the court after considering it two years, and copies were sent to attorneys.

Mother of Five Generations Dies

Seabrook, N. H., Nov. 22 (AP)—Mrs. Ruth A. Short, 97, head of a family of five living generations, died here today.

Among her survivors were three sons, eight grandchildren, 20 great-grandchildren, eight great-grand-grandchildren, and three great-great-great-grandchildren.

Million Dollar Giver Is Contented

Contentment is a good book, and the privilege of earning his own way is what A. E. O. Munsell, former millionaire and now living in a New York "flophouse," prefers to wealth. Munsell, who gave away his million, is shown with a contented smile as he reads a book in the New York City shelter which is now his home.

"Million-Giver's" Wife Wants to Forget It

Although she has $500,000 as a constant reminder, Mrs. Margaret Jean Dodd Munsell wants to forget that her husband gave away a million in exchange for the joy of giving and a flophouse existence.

The former Wellesley girl and alumna of Wellesley College, wife of Alexander E. O. Munsell, whose generosity to humanity has left him smiling and all but penniless without a job, in New York, was found and interviewed today by the Boston Evening American.

Correcting statements that she had so far approved of her husband's help-humanity ideas as to have planned with him the distribution of his fortune, Mrs. Munsell said she not only had nothing to do with it, but wanted now, to forget it.

SEEKS FORGETFULNESS

While her Harvard graduate husband, former Milton and Wellesley resident, was sitting on a flop house cot explaining that the only fun he even had out of his million dollars was giving it away, his wife was living in a remote Maine hamlet trying to forget he had done it. She said:

"Of course, I knew of it but I had nothing whatever to do with it and I want to forget about the entire matter.

"I'm sorry that my husband's actions have become public knowledge. Now that they have, I hope that they soon will be forgotten."

Asked to give her opinion of Munsell's generosity, his wife said emphatically:

"No I will not. There is

NEW JOBS SEEN BY ROOSEVELT

By Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 22 — President Roosevelt assured the mayors of the nation's major cities today that recovery efforts have yielded substantial results and informed them the next Congress would consider extension of the job-making relief projects.

The Chief Executive stated in a letter to the annual assembly of the United States conference of mayors:

"It is undoubtedly true that the coming session of Congress will give further attention to proposals involving unemployment relief, public works, unemployment insurance, old-age pensions and housing, all of which vitally affect the city governments.

"I cannot say what final action Congress will take with reference to these subjects, but I assure you the federal government is anxious to work effectively and co-operatively on all of these common problems."

LANDING GEAR SNARLED UP OVER U. S. CAPITOL

Governor Joseph B. Ely, returning to Boston today from his trip to Atlanta, Washington, and Rochester, N. Y., revealed that his life was imperiled in an airplane mishap over Washington, D. C., Monday night.

Endangered in the same accident were Donald Richberg, head of the NRA and President Roosevelt's close advisor, and several other persons making a night flight from Atlanta, Ga., to Washington in a transport plane.

As the plane approached Washington in the darkness, its crew discovered that some mishap to the landing gear prevented it from being lowered.

While the crew struggled to release the gear, the plane circled over the dark capital for a half hour till repairs were made.

A chance comment of a reporter brought to light the mishap which otherwise would not have been mentioned.

It was known the Governor had flown from Atlanta to Washington in order to keep a speaking engagement in Rochester, N. Y., and a reporter said to him:

"I suppose we'll all be traveling that way soon."

The governor laughed and said:

"No; I don't think so."

Then he related this story:

"I would have enjoyed the trip much better if we hadn't been having trouble with the landing gear. It wouldn't work when we got over Washington at night and we had to fly around over the city for a half-hour.

"It was a beautiful view, with the lights of the city beneath us, but we all knew what was the matter and that probably effected our enjoyment of it to some extent. We finally came down on the 'hand' gear."

CUBS, PIRATES IN BIG SWAP

By Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 22—The Chicago Cubs today traded Pitchers Guy Bush and Jim Weaver and Outfielder Babe Herman to the Pittsburgh Pirates for Pitcher Larry French and Outfielder Freddie Lindstrom.

Ford NRA Award Stirs Old Battle

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Echoes of one of the first controversies which stirred NRA sounded again today when the Interior Department awarded a contract for a Ford truck to the Northwest Motor Company of Bethesda, Md., a Ford dealer.

Interior Department officials said the Bethesda firm had submitted a certificate of compliance with the automobile code along with a bid to supply 15 trucks to the department.

BAR ASSOCIATION RAPS DELAY IN STATE DISTRICT COURTS

JUDICIARY ABUSES FLAYED IN DRIVE FOR REFORM

Massacusetts district courts, with their part-time justices who preside one day and practice another, will be one of the alleged judiciary abuses hit hardest by the Boston Bar Association in its recommendations to the 1935 Legislature, it was learned today.

The Bar Association is now conducting a sweeping investigation of the judiciary system through a committee of its own, working with the Massachusetts' Judicial Council and the Boston Chamber of Commerce committee on judicial procedure.

With the exception of the Supreme Judicial Court all other branches of the court system are under close scrutiny and complaints are being studied by the committee so that it can "eventually make constructive suggestions."

For years the district courts and their deficiencies have been the target of reform movements and only last year the Massachusetts crime commission pointed to the "glaring defects" of the system in a portion of its report.

TRIAL SPEED URGED

It is cited that district court justices may sit in a court and hear a case one day, prosecute similar cases on another, defend criminals and angle for probate business.

So long as an associate justice does not appear in his own court he may go to any other in the system without arousing criticism or comment.

The congestion of the courts and the long delays in getting cases, particularly civil cases, on the trial list, is another of the defects most generally arraigned and one towards which the Bar Association is directing close attention.

STUDY IMPROVEMENTS

Harold S. Davis, chairman of the special committee of the Bar Association for the study of the judicial system, today issued the following statement in regard to the judiciary probe:

"This committee is chiefly concerned with the organization and functioning of our courts, and hopes that by considering them as a whole it can eventually make constructive suggestions for real and lasting improvement, especially by way of relieving the delay and congestion which is now so serious.

"It is not concerned with abuses of the present system by individuals, except as they may be illustrative of some defect in that system.

"It has not held any hearings or submitted any witnesses and does not expect to do so. It has an informal memorandum embodying various complaints considered by the committee, but without any claim that the list is complete or that any particular claim is well founded.

MANY COMPLAINTS

"The committee, as indicated in the short report which it made at the annual meeting of the Bar Association in October, welcomes suggestions from all sources, but it does not, of course, take any responsibility for suggestions so received.

"In view of the seeming implications contained in some of the published articles, however, the committee cannot state too strongly that, while complaints touching a variety of subjects have come to them in one way or another, not one of these complaints has related even in the remotest degree to the integrity or judicial character of the Supreme Judicial court.

"In the judgment of the committee any such suggestion would be simply ridiculous.

"Indeed, the most conspicuous characteristic of the Massachusetts courts in general has always been the character of the judges, and the committee believe that this is as true today as at any time in the past."

Uncle Tom's Cabin for Cambridge ERA

Cambridge will have a theater next month, Begun under the auspices of the ERA, and continued under the guiding influence of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Charles S. Howard, who is executive director of the new undertaking, is a grandson of the first producer of the old play. His great-aunt, Mrs. Cordelia Howard MacDonald, 84, of Belmont, was the first "Little Eva." She began her theatrical career 80 years ago.

Haverhill Trade Board Ask Review of Shoe Code

By Associated Press

Haverhill, Nov. 22—The Haverhill Manufacturers' Board of Trade, representing the largest shoe manufacturers in the city, today telegraphed the National Recovery Board at Washington, asking to be advised what, if any, action is contemplated in behalf of the local shoe industry.

Specifically, the manufacturers wish the shoe code re-opened and uniform wages established to eliminate unfair competition of small unorganized shoe communities

"The Haverhill shoe industry is being gradually destroyed by unrestrained competition by outside unorganized communities," the Telegram stated.

"We are willing to co-operate with any governmental plan to bring about recovery, but our manufacturers deny the right of any governmental agency to establish rules that operate to destroy business in an organized center while it permits an unorganized center to operate free and unrestrained in a similar business.

"Before the remnant of the shoe business now left in Haverhill disappears, we request that your board take immediate action for some relief or inform us that you cannot render any assistance."

The A. E. Emerson Shoe Company, employing 435 workers, which recently announced plans for removal to Manchester, N. H., today announced the company was in the process or liquidation and that the manufacture of shoes will be abandoned.

Union officials, who are joined with the manufacturers in their demand for reopening of the shoe code, said if it is reopened they will demand establishment of minimum wages for each department in the shoe industry.

Tentatively, they said, $1 an hour would be asked for skilled workers, 50 to 80 cents an hour for semi-skilled, and 50 cents an hour for unskilled.

The present minimum wage fixed by the code is $14 a week, and both manufacturers and union officials here claim that minimum has been made the maximum in some Maine and New Hampshire towns.

Defendants Get Sentences

Four members of a Mansfield family suddenly became defendants in Dedham court today after they had charged an Attleboro policeman of striking them in an argument over an automobile accident in Norwood on Armistice Day.

The turn came when Judge Clifford B. Sanborn dismissed the attack charges that were filed against Patrolman Joseph E. Heagney and then ordered that complaints for disturbing the peace be issued against Heagney, his girl companion, Miss Olive Gossette of Attleboro, and the four who had complained, Mrs. Eva Carbonnetti, her son Aldo and two daughters, Clara and Eda.

He found all six guilty and levied fines of $10 each. Heagney and Miss Gossette paid but the others appealed and were held in bonds of $200 each.

Mme. Cantacuzene Spikes D.A.A. Talk

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—Mme. Cantacuzene-Grant, the former Princess Cantacuzene, today said she would not be a "dark horse" candidate for the D. A. R. president-generalcy, next April.

She said she wanted to quash definitely the persistent rumors that she might run.

"I am not a candidate; will not be a candidate," she said. "I am giving my full support to the candidacy of Mrs. Flora Myers Gillentine, of Tennessee."

Improvement Seen in Textile Trade

Former U. S. Senator William M. Butler and James A. McDonough, receivers for the Hoosac Mills Corporation, operating cotton mills in New Bedford, Taunton and North Adams, reported considerable improvement in the textile market in a report filed with the clerk of the Federal court today.

LYNN GIRL HELD IN DOPE RAID

A well-equipped opium den, masked as an innocent Chinese laundry, was raided by Lynn police early today, and two Chinese and aw hite girl placed under arrest.

Yee Bow Kee, 38, of Western avenue, Lynn, in the rear of the laundry, was charged with possessing narcotics, being an alien and having firearms in his possession, a .32-calibre revolver.

Harry H. Wong, 42, of Washington street, Lynn, was charged with being present where narcotics were found, and Miss Helen Kowniski, 18 of River street court, Lynn, was charged with being present and with being idle and disorderly.

In Lynn court, Judge Philip E. Kiely continued all the cases until December 13 and set bail of $1000 for each, a reduction from the $5000 bail asked by police.

Patrolmen Earl Donovan and Thomas Brady, cruising in a police prowl car, saw Miss Kowniski enter the rear door of the laundry, they said. When she did not come out for more than an hour and a half they decided to investigate.

They said they found Miss Kowniski sitting with her stockings off.

Just then one of the Chinamen threw a can of opium into a spare room and the patrolmen decided to call for help.

Probe of Butler's Charges to Go to Finish

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 22—Despite emphatic denials by leading figures named by General Smedley D. Butler in the alleged plot to set up a Fascist distatorship in the United States, the Congressional committee investigating un-American activities intends to pursue its inquiry with the utmost vigor.

This was announced today by Representative John W. McCormack, chairman of the committee.

Investigation into the alleged Fascist plot was suspended today while McCormack and Vice-Chairman Samuel Dickstein delved into the activities of Communist leaders in the United Staes.

But tomorrow Gerald P. MacGuire, Wall Street bond salesman, who, General Butler says, offered him $3,000,000 to lead 500,000 men to Washington to overthrow the Roosevelt government, will appear before the committee again. MacGuire already has been examined for more than four hours at two secret sessions but the investigators apparently are not yet satisfied with his statements that there is not a grain of truth in the Butler charges.

Representative Dickstein today stood by his declaration that evidence now in the hands of the committee shows that MacGuire was the agent for a "movement," the nature of which Dickstein did not disclose, with more than $1,000,000 at its command.

Dr. Mandrey Resigns

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 22 (INS)—Dr. William H. Mandrey has resigned as president of Arnold College here to take charge of Five-Point Foundation in Suffern, N. Y.

GOVERNOR-ELECT TO BE GUEST AT PAGEANT OPENING

Governor-elect Curley, making his first public appearance since his election, will open the run of "The Pageant of the Celt" tonight in Boston Garden.

Five performances of the pageant will be given, one tonight, one tomorrow night, one Saturday night, and matinee and evening performances Sunday.

Last night, amidst the moving wails of Piper-Major Robert Smith's Caledonians and Michael Twomey's Irish Pipers, the complete dress rehearsal took place in the Garden.

CAST OF 1500

The cast of 1500 persons completed the rehearsal in three and one-half hours, something of a record for so huge a production.

Held for the benefit of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund the pageant will give, through a sequence of shifting scenes and undertone of music, a composite picture of Irish history and folk lore, from the semi-legendary figures to the very real living persons of modern Ireland.

AMATEURS WIN PRAISE

An audience of more than 300 friends and relatives watched the proceedings, and, except for a few interruptions to correct lighting faults, or to adjust a property, they were treated to the show that will be seen for the next four nights by huge crowds.

John V. Ryan, author of the production, said that not even in the Chicago rehearsals had it ever been done so smoothly, in spite of the fact that where Chicago had nearly all professional talent, many of the parts here will be taken by Boston men and women who have had little or no experience.

Both Ryan and Edward J. Scanlon, the stage director, extended glowing praise to the amateur participants.

Miss Evelyn Hart, of Cambridge, will play the part of Scota. King Lir will be played by Harry Patterson, a character actor. Gertrude Dodd will take the role of Fodha.

NOTED TALENT

Also included in the long list of Boston participants are Miss Virginia McGrath, as Banva, daughter of King Lir; Gavin Sullivan, John J. Fitzpatrick, Arley Lovely, Edward Hennessey and Bagharsh Bedoin as Scotas' sons; Kathleen Moran in two parts, one as Queen of Ireland in the scene depicting the arrival of St. Patrick, and the other as Eva, daughter of the King of Leinster and bride of Strongbow in the Union of the Normans and the Celts.

St. Patrick will be played by Dr. James A. McGrath of Dorchester; Eire, by Miss Patricia Gavin, in the scene which depicts the arrival of the Milesians; Mrs. Michael Carney, as St. Bridget, in the scene showing the rise and spread of Irish culture throughout the world.

Michael O'Donnell, president of the Donegal Club, who fought in the Black and Tan wars in Ireland, and in the Easter Uprising in 1916, will portray the 1916 conflicts.

REVEALS IRISH HISTORY

Benedict FitzGerald of Cambridge is to be in charge of the orchestras, the choirs and soloists. He has obtained the services of ex-Senator William Shanahan of Salem as the organist during the playing of the "Hymn of St. Patrick."

Sheila O'Donovan Rossa will sing, in Gaelic, one of the oldest known Irish songs.

Lawrence Mullin of Boston College will have two important roles, one of which is expected to be "Robert Emmet."

The entire pageant will give, in one broad sweep, a dramatic history of Irish life and Irish lore. It is in the nature of an epic, which will attempt to focus on the dramatic highlights in the life of Ireland from the earliest known times.

Tickets, which will range from 50 cents to $2.00, plus tax, are on sale at the Boston Garden, William Filene's Sons, and Jordan Marsh's.

From the advance sale, it is believed that the "Pageant of the Celt" will play, during its four days, starting tonight, to near-capacity audiences.

All Irish Clubs Urged to See Celt Pageant

In a letter to the Boston Evening American, John H. Conroy, president of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, today urged the support of every Irish organization in Boston for "The Pageant of the Celt," which opens tonight in the Boston Garden under this newspaper's sponsorship. Mr. Conroy's letter follows, in part:

"The pageant, said by some critics to be a more magnificent spectacle than 'The Miracle,' should appeal to the people of Boston, depicting as it does the glorious history of the Celt.

"Those who attend this great presentation are achieving a dual accomplishment — helping those less fortunate and acquainting themselves with the history of the race from which they spring."

B. U. BOY ON TRIP ENDED BY "COLD BLOOD MURDER"

Who Fired Bullet? It Killed B. U. Boy

D. F. AHERN FRANCIS AHERN

Slain Youth With Uncle at Atlantic City

'Cold-Blood'

MEXICO TO TEST GUN; OFFICER DENIES SHOT

Although the Mexican policeman held as a suspect in the murder of Francis D. Ahern, 19-year-old Arlington youth, denied he had fired the fatal shot, Mexican ballistics experts expected to fix responsibility in the case today.

Ahern, a Boston University student, was in Mexico City on a visit with an uncle when he was fatally shot on Monday. The U. S. consul-general termed it "cold-blooded murder" after an investigation.

The story of Jesus Gonzales Lopez, the suspect, now has changed. He told questioners that a civilian might have done the killing, since Ahern was surrounded by a crowd of both police and citizens after an argument with a Mexico City hotel proprietor.

Meanwhile, Daniel F. Ahern, the boy's uncle, was on his way home with the body. A telegram to the youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy C. Ahern, of Wyman terrace, Arlington, said that the remains would arrive Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

'Something Hidden'

The boy's mother is in a state of prostration, but she told friends that she knew the whole thing was a case of murder and nothing else and that she hoped the government would uncover the story behind the tragic affair. She declared:

"He never did anything to harm anyone in his life. This story that my son quarreled about a hotel bill is a lie. His uncle paid the hotels, and besides, my boy was not the kind who would have quarreled over a little bill.

"There is something behind all this. They are keeping the real facts secret. Nothing can restore our boy to us, but at least we should know the truth of how he died."

Thomas H. Bowman, United States consul-general, has filed a court petition in Mexico City for a complete textual report of the autopsy proceedings and has demanded complete investigation of the case.

Formality's "Hot Iron" On Marina Romance

ROYAL BRIDE TO HAVE LITTLE TIME FOR THOUGHTS OF LOVE

By International News Service

London, Nov. 22—Some of the world's best formality experts will co-operate to iron out all romantic thoughts from the mind of Princess Marina of Greece on the morning of her wedding to the Duke of Kent.

Plans for the wedding day, November 29, were announced today, revealing the gracious princess will be whirled from one thing to another from the moment she arises until her hand is given in marriage to the youngest son of King George and Queen Mary.

Marina would have to be almost superhuman to dwell much on the romance of her marriage, so fast and furious a pace has been set for her on the wedding morn. Buckingham Palace officials have outlined a program of clock-like precision which leaves little room for thoughts of the heart.

She will be called to arise at 7:30 a. m. At 8:00 a. m. she will be given a simple breakfast. For the following two hours she will be entirely in the hands of a capable staff of assistants entrusted with the task of seeing that she leaves Buckingham Palace promptly at 10:15.

After breakfast Marina's hair will be dressed by Monsieur Graude, her personal coiffeur since she was 17, and who has come from Paris especially for this event.

Following the hairdressing, Marina will be passed for approval before four women—her personal maid, her lady-in-waiting, her mother, and Queen Mary's own personal dresser.

When everything is in order, Marina will be taken to Queen Mary's boudoir to show her wedding finery to Her Majesty and gain the Queen's final approval before she steps outside to face the public and go through with the wedding ceremony.

Today, the Princess did what every other sightseer in London does. She watched the famous military ceremony of the changing of the guards before Buckingham Palace.

The only difference was that Marina was inside the palace looking out.

A large crowd turned out in the gray morning hoping to catch a glimpse of Marina but she was not recognized in the second story window where she stood with several others of the royal household.

Princess Marina was entertained at luncheon by King George and Queen Mary at the palace.

BOY WINS

SHORT RESPITE TO SEE PARENTS

George Frederick Alton, 19-year-old Uxbridge boy who confessed to kidnaping in California, won a short respite from his transfer for a life term to San Quentin prison today so that he might receive a visit from his parents in the jail in Bakersfield, Cal.

The father and mother of the boy who graduated from military school only last June, today were in San Francisco. They plan to journey to Bakersfield either Sunday or Monday for a final word to the son who dashed their hopes.

Deputy Sheriff Jack Shomate said he would transfer the youthful prisoner to San Quentin immediately after the visit.

RAINBOW

SKIN IS BROWN WOMAN 'VERY ILL'

By Associated Press

Kansas City, Nov. 22—Mrs. Edith Perry, whose "rainbow" skin has puzzled physicians here, turned brown today.

Six days ago when she entered General Hospital, her skin was light blue; then it changed successively to purple, claret red and brown. The last two changes, both within 24 hours, were accompanied by a scaling of the skin.

The 32-year-old housewife was described as "very ill" by physicians.

Not only were they offered free tap dancing lessons—"daily at 3 p. m."—but they were also proffered lessons in jiu jitsu.

The offer was made in a notice posted in Harvard's halls today and signed with the name of Alexander P. Neely, instructor at Hemenway gymnasium.

Soon, perhaps, there will be a rhythmic clacking of heels and toes in the halls of Harvard—far, far into the night.

Marsh Suicide Is Identified

Dental work in the skeleton of a man found Monday in marshland 200 yards from the Neponset River in Milton identified it today as that of Francis Joseph Ring, 30, of 24 Bellflower street, South Boston.

Ring, according to police, disappeared from his home last February 13, leaving a suicide note to his mother and stating that a nervous illness had "got him" and he intended ending his life.

The skeleton was found under a tree and a three-foot length of rope was around the neck.

Hollywood, Nov. 22—Out of his wide acquaintance of world beauties, Maurice Chevalier, French singing star, today picked the 10 most fascinating women he has ever met.

Chevalier deliberately chose the word "fascinating" instead of "beautiful."

"For beauty," he said, "is really a fascination produced in the impressionable male by all his five senses, thus causing us to see through the 'mind's eye.' That is why no two men can agree, and why any man can look his beloved straight in the eyes and swear she is the most beautiful woman in the world."

Here they are:

Horse-Shaped Sea Monster Is Studied

By Associated Press

Prince Rupert, B. C., Nov. 22—The remains of a strange marine monster were studied today by Dr. Neal Carter, director of the Prince Rupert Dominion Fisheries Experimental Station.

Found on the beach of Henry island, south of here, the remains were partially decomposed.

Dr. Carter announced the creature was about 30 feet long. Red flesh indicated it was some sort of a warm-blooded marine mammal. It had a head shaped somewhat like that of a horse, and a tough, rough skin. The upper part of the skin bore hair and the lower part quills, like spines. The only bone of importance was the backbone.

The find was made within a few hundred miles of the playground of Amy Cadborosaurus, British Columbia's most popular sea serpent, often reported cavorting about ocean inlets on Southern Vancouver island, and once the object of a quest of scientists from Seattle.

Light From Brain Glows Like Lamp

SOME ALCOHOL ADDS TO GLEAM IN TESTS

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service Science Editor

Cleveland, O., Nov. 22—Visible and invisible light radiations, as of sudden lighting of a lamp, were produced from brain proteins in oxydation, at the Cleveland clinic laboratory here, under direction of Dr. George W. Crile.

New discoveries of hormones and radiations concerned with living body processes, in health and disease, were reported and experimentally demonstrated as climaxing the National Academy of Sciences meeting here by Dr. Crile and his associates, Drs. Otto Glasser, D. R. McCullagh, Eugene Cutuly, Benjamin Stimmel Telks, and Miss Amy Rowland and Margaret Schott.

Dr. Telks, pursuing Dr. Crile's theory that in brain and other body proteins the combination with oxygen produces energy in form of radiations, actually demonstrated a model condition. That is, solution of calf brain proteins was mixed with hypochlorite of calcium in utter darkness. Instantly light glowed out from the flasks, operated photo-electric cells and then amplified current threw a beam of light measuring wave lengths of the radiations.

Alcohol, Drugs

By their ingenious apparatus the effect of protein-oxygen produced light flash was magnified so that an electric current as small as one 1,000,000,000,000,000th of one ampere was made easily readable on scale.

Addition of thyroid gland hormone thyroxine increased the protein-oxygen radiations. Alcohol in a small amount increased, and a large dose decreased radiant energy production. Similarly important hormones, narcotics and drugs are being tested to learn how they influence protein-oxygen combination as shown by radiations. These rays measured by Dr. Telks are visible and the infra-red type.

Dr. Glasser demonstrated short wave radiations, ultra-violet type, presumably given out by living tissues, especially by growing rat cancer tumors.

Drs. McCullagh, Cutuly and Stimmel reported the discovery of a new hormone, "inhibin," which is expected to serve as a means for preventing and curing enlargement of the prostate gland, a common affliction of advanced years in men.

A new method of measuring how much iodine is in the body, thus determining causes of certain thyroid diseases, has been worked out, Dr. Crile said.

A Real "Flop"

Not the Show, Merely the Bleachers

Marblehead, Nov. 22—More than a score of amateur chorines and cowboys were shaken up and two of them injured when a temporary bleachers collapsed in a dress rehearsal of an American Legion show in Abbott Hall.

The cast had reached the setting for the grand finale shortly after midnight when Mrs. Lucy Mitchell, director, shouted:

"Let's have a swell finale."

Her words were drowned out by the collapse of the bleachers. Miss Lorraine LeBlanc of Vine street and Miss Barbara Thompson of Stacey street, suffered minor injuries, but the others escaped.

The show is to be presented tonight and tomorrow night under the title "Winners All."

RIGHT TO FIND HAPPINESS IS BLASTED IN DIVORCE

RUSSELL IDEAL LOVE IS DASHED

By International News Service

London, Nov. 22—On the rocks of that very "right of each to find happiness in his own way," that they had guaranteed each other, the famous philosophical marriage of Bertrand (Baron) Russell and Dora Russell crashed today.

Countess Russell was granted a divorce decree "nisi," on the grounds of her husband's misconduct with a Miss Marjorie Spence.

Whether the divorce should be granted to Countess Russell hinged on a deed that both she and Bertrand Russell signed two years ago condoning any misconduct by either prior to that time.

The court ruled that "discretion should be exercised" in the Countess's favor after a supplementary statement had been supplied by her attorneys showing that any misconduct by her had been before the time of the mutual deed was executed. Russell's affair with Miss Spence, it was alleged, occurred after the signing of the deed.

WOMEN WOULD BATTLE BREAD PRICE FIXING

Most New England housewives buy their bread already sliced, but that doesn't mean that they won't bake their own rather than submit to price fixing, in the opinion of William A. Heffler, who spoke to the New England Bakers' Association of which he is president.

In his speech, closing the three-day conference at the Hotel Statler, he outlined the newest trends in bakery, specifying novelty high-colored wrappings, smaller holes in doughnuts, and vari-colored frostings on cupcakes as the most popular of the latest developments.

Although the conference seemed opposed to the NRA, Weld M. Stevens, deputy administrator of the code for bakers at Washington, told the assemblage that the code was a direct benefit to them.

GLORIA MOTHER IS SCORED

APPEAL IS SOUGHT

Meanwhile, attorneys for Mrs. Vanderbilt were seeking a way around the apparent legal bar to an appeal from the decision, while the Nassau County police increased the guard about little Gloria, following receipt of a letter threatening harm to her.

Smyth was asked:

"Do you mean that Justice Carew found that Mrs. Vanderbilt purposely had been trying to impair the child's welfare?"

"I don't care to make any comment at all on that," he replied. "You can draw your own conclusions. The order shows Justice Carew paid close attention to every bit of testimony."

"Do you think Mrs. Vanderbilt's attempt at an appeal will be successful?" he was asked.

"Justice Carew's finding of facts will never be disturbed on appeal," Mr. Smyth replied.

SIGNED BY CATHOLIC

The letter threatening harm to Gloria was mailed in Station Y, E. 67th strtet, on November 17 and was received at the Whitney home in Westbury, L. I., where the child-heiress is now staying.

Written in ink on plain white paper, it was signed "Catholic Communists" and threatened bodily harm to the ten-year-old girl unless she were returned to her mother. It mentioned the names of Justice Carew and Mrs. Whitney.

Gloria, looking somewhat pale and frightened, was taken to the Greenvale shool at East Roslyn, some four miles from the Whitney home, in a limousine today. A detective sat beside her and a motorcycle policeman followed the car. The chauffeur was armed. The guards remained at the school.

Other pipils, sons and daughters of wealthy and socially prominent families, were openly thrilled by Little Gloria's arrival under police escort.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Whitney, seen at her Fifth avenue home, said she would make every effort to aid Mrs. Vanderbilt in increasing the affection and devotion of Gloria for her.

"Will Mrs. Vanderbilt be permitted to visit her child at any time?" Mrs. Whitney was asked.

"That's up to the court. We'll meet that situation when it arises," she answered.

TO ABIDE BY ORDER

Justice Carew's order, which gave Mrs. Whitney custody of the child with Mrs. Vanderbilt being allowed to have her on week-ends, made no definite provision one way or the other for "visits."

"Will you aid any efforts the mother makes to regain the affections of her child?" Mrs. Whitney was asked.

"I'll do everything I can," she replied. "The purpose of the two-day clause in the order is to bring the child and mother closer together. That's the spirit of the order. As I have previously stated, I'll carry out the court's order both in spirit and letter."

"Has the child had any instruction in the Catholic religion?"

"Yes, of course. She has been instructed."

"Will the nurse be retained?" Mrs. Whitney was asked. "Will she teach Gloria the Catholic religion?"

"That will be left to the court," replied Mrs. Whitney, who is herself an Episcopalian.

Without a Parent

WITH Justice Carew's decision yesterday, the Vanderbilt case emerges from the secrecy with which he wrapped it in its early stages, and regains the open air and light of day.

The dispositions set forth in the order of the judge are, we must say, singular in the extreme.

The little daughter of the late Reginald Vanderbilt is taken away from its mother,—BUT NOT ENTIRELY.

Her care and upbringing are confided to Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, her aunt,—BUT NOT ENTIRELY.

Mrs. Whitney is granted the custody of her sister-in-law's child as the representative of the Supreme Court and is commanded to maintain a domicile and residence for the child at the Whitney home on Fifth avenue.

But the little girl is to be given to her mother every week, and permitted to spend two full days with her.

The mother is further to have the uninterrupted society of the little girl during the entire month of July in each year.

Neither the wealthy aunt, daughter of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt and widow of the late Harry Payne Whitney, nor the mother, is apparently deemed by Justice Carew worthy of the custody and guardianship of the little girl.

The latter is henceforth to be without a parent, in the true sense of the word. Not even her mother is to stand in a parental relation to her.

She is to be the ward of the Supreme Court of the State of New York—in the person of Justice Carew, or some other product of our none too perfect method of nominating and electing judges.

Was there ever a more befogged, uncertain and hesitating adjudication of a case at law?

If the mother has forfeited her right to the care and nurture of her offspring; if her society and contact with the infant is so detrimental that the court is warranted in interfering, then what justification can be found for confiding the child to the mother's care for any period whatever; for exposing her at frequent and regular intervals, to the very contamination from which the court would rescue her?

The decision is a travesty on justice. It does violence to every natural feeling.

It clamors for revision by the higher courts—not only for the sake of the parties to the immediate case, and particularly the outraged mother, but for the common respect in which it is desirable that the law itself should be held.

Judge's Full Text in Vanderbilt Case

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 22—Below is the complete text of Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew's decision in the Gloria Vanderbilt possession suit:

"On the petition and on the writ of habeas corpus issued herein, dated September 22, 1934, the return of the respondent thereto filed herein on September 23, 1934, and the relator's traverse to said return filed herein on the same day, and upon all the proceedings, testimony and exhibits herein, and on the order entered herein on November 19, 1934, joining as parties George W. Wickersham and Thomas B. Gilchrist, guardians of the property of the infant, Gloria Laura Morgan Vanderbilt, and after hearing Herbert C. Smyth, Esq., of counsel for respondent, and Nathan Burkan, Esq., attorney and counsel for relator, and due deliberation having been had, now, on motion of Frank L. Crocker and John Godfrey Saxe, attorneys for respondent, it is found, considered, ordered, adjudged and

DECREED:

"(1) That the life led by this infant from the death of her father until June, 1932, was entirely and in every way unsuitable, unfit, improper, calculated to destroy her health and neglectful of her moral, spiritual and mental education, and that it so resulted to the discomfort, detriment, damage and injury of the infant:

"(2) That the life lived by the infant since June, 1932, has been fit, suitable and appropriate and has resulted in a great improvement in the infant physically and mentally and has tended to promote its best welfare, comfort and happiness:

"(3) That since June, 1932, the conduct, mode of life, surroundings, conditions and actions of the relator have continued as prior thereto when she was in possession or custody of said infant;

"(4) That the prima facie privilege of relator herein to have the custody of her infant child Gloria has been overcome by the evidence offered by both sides before me, and it is

"Further declared and adjudged

"(5) That the following determination of the best interests and welfare of the infant Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, and it is

"Further considered, ordered found, adjudged and decreed.

"That the said writ of habeas corpus be finally disposed of as follows:

"(6) That the infant Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt is hereby adjudged to be the ward of the Supreme Court of the state of New York.

"(7) That Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, the sister of the deceased father of said infant, is granted the custody of said infant as the representative of the Supreme Court of the state of New York and is hereby commanded to maintain the domicile and residence of said infant at 871 Fifth avenue, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York;

"(8) That Mrs. Gertrude Whitney, as the custodian of said infant, shall provide for her a governess of the Roman Catholic faith, who shall reside with her, teach her the catechism of the Roman Catholic faith, prepare or cause her preparation for holy communion and confirmation in the Roman Catholic faith, and attend with her at mass on all Sundays and all holy days of obligation of the Roman Catholic faith;

"(9) That Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney shall cause the said infant to continue to attend the Greenvale school at Roslyn, Long Island, and while in attendance there shall cause her to live in a manner suitable to her fortune at her country home in Old Westbury, Long Island;

"(10) That beginning one month after the entry of this order, Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney as such custodian of said infant shall cause the said infant to be delivered to the relator herein, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, on each Saturday morning at 10 a. m., either at the residence of Mrs. Morgan Vanderbilt in New York or at any residence she may have within 30 miles of Old Westbury, Long Island, and the said infant will remain in the company of the relator and be redelivered by the relator to the custodian, Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, at sundown on the following day, at the place where she received the infant:

"(11) That the infant shall be delivered (as specified in Paragraph Ten) to the relator herein at 10 a. m. on Christmas Day, and shall be returned at 6 p. m.;

"(12) That the relator, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, shall be permitted to have that uninterrupted society of the infant during the month of July unless cause shall be shown to the contrary;

"(13) That Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney shall have the uninterrupted society of the infant during the month of August and up to the beginning of the school term at Roslyn, Long Island;

"(14) That the relator and respondent are severally prohibited from taking the said infant outside of the state of New York or permitting her to be so taken without the state;

TRUNK DEATHS CLUES HUNTED

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 22—Unless new evidence is unearthed before tomorrow, Mrs. Ruby Clark, former school teacher, held on a technical homicide charge after the bodies of three infants were found in a trunk she stored in a Brooklyn warehouse, will be freed in Brooklyn homicide court, officials said today.

Assistant District Attorney McGuinness said he was convinced of Mrs. Clark's sincerity in denying she knew anything about the bodies of the infants, which were stillborn.

She said she stored the trunk under her own name in the summer of 1932, when she moved from a Brooklyn house.

ELY TO "STAND PAT" ON TRIO

Governor Ely will "stand pat" on the racing commission he nominated, he indicated today.

He said he will be inclined not to submit supplementary nominations if the executive council fails to confirm General Charles H. Cole, Charles F. Conners and William F. Ensign.

Great pressure to prevent confirmation was being exerted even as the governor made what was a "take it or leave it" challenge to opponents.

The Governor returned from his out-of-state visit to find the future of racing in even more of a confused status than when he left, with a new bill filed to abolish the racing commission, no action by the council and a special meeting called for Monday, when the opposition may force a public hearing. Ely said:

"I've named three good men to that commission. I've done my duty."

Asked if he would refuse to submit more nominations should the council fail to confirm the three named, he answered:

"I'd be so inclined."

The question had been raised whether, under the bill enacted by the last Legislature, the commission could be appointed and confirmed later than December 1. William Dorman, Senate counsel, said it could be. The terms of the commissioners will run from December 1, however, regardless of when they are confirmed.

MAY BE HELD OVER

Thus, if the council takes no action on confirmation and the governor submits no supplementary nominees, the entire question of racing may go over into the Curley administration.

Asked what he thought of the bill filed yesterday to place racing, boxing and wrestling under a general sports commission of five members, he said:

"It's all right with me if they want to put it under one commission. It's not important enough to arrest any attention. I don't think that racing will last four years as a profitable venture no matter how it's run."

The Governor said he doubted that any man in the State knows more about racing than Ensign—"a hard-headed man from the sticks, and I'd like to see anyone pull the wool over his eyes."

In connection with a demand for a public hearing by the council, it was learned today that Conrad W. Crooker, counsel for the petitioners, yesterday requested the Council to call as witnesses Representative Charles H. Innes, Jr., O'Hara, Charles F. Ely, brother of the Governor; Lawrence Quigley, mayor of Chelsea; Henry G. Lapham, director of Boston Garden, and Bayard Tuckerman.

Ely said he had received no resignation from any Supreme Court justice.

He indicated that on Monday he will submit to the council the reappointments of nearaly all of the dozen important state officials whose terms expire December 1, together with a few new appointments.

Mystery Body Found in Methuen

Boston police are attempting to locate friends and relatives of a man, believed to be a suicide, whose body was found in the woods near Methuen. He had hired a room in Methuen, giving the name of Richard Anton of Boston. He was described as 60, five feet three inches, 190 pounds, gray hair, partly bald.

SENATOR CHARGES INSULTS TO AGED IN PLEAS

Claims that applicants for old-age assistance were subjected to insults and humiliation were brought before the special commission, headed by Senator Angier L. Goodwin of Melrose.

The commission is called to analyze proposed changes in the old-age assistance law and to study charges of discrimination, due to age, in employment.

OWNERS URGED TO HOLD ALL GOOD STOCK

Montreal, Nov. 22—Any person holding good stock should keep them, Premier Louis Alexandre Taschereau, the Quebec government leader, declared today.

"To all, I say this," Premier Taschereau advised. "Remain confident and do not be afraid. Keep possession of your good stocks. They are in no danger.

"Present-day attacks against our public utility companies have had the foreseen result. Their bondholders and shareholders are becoming nervous and want to throw their shares on the market. During the difficult times we are now going through, this would be a disaster.

"I am in receipt of appeals from widows, administrators of estates and religious communities asking me what they should do, for they have invested millions of dollars in these companies, in many cases all that they had, representing the economies of a lifetime of labor—the future of the family, their community.

"I pray them not to become alarmed. If the result of the Lapointe enquette is one of readjustment of rates, that commission will, I am sure, bring an end to a campaign which, rightly or wrongly, perturbs, shakes public confidence which is so necessary to all financial enterprises.

"And be it known, too, that the government will see to it that capital and popular savings are protected. I am firmly convinced that the leaders of the actual campaign do not entertain at all the desire to ruin either our institutions or our populace."

DEAL LOOMS IN HOUSE POSTS

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 22—An agreement to divide the coveted posts of speaker and majority leader between North and South virtually has been reached by House Democratic leaders as a means of avoiding a bitter sectional fight.

With candidate from both South and North seeking the speakership toga of the late Henry T. Rainey, the floor leadership is expected to be decided largely by the result of the major contest.

As a result of the Democratic landslide, northern and western Democrats outnumber the South. While some northern members have privately urged a drive to capture both posts, the movement to divide the offices has steadily gained ground with the return of the members.

"A division of the major offices between north and south should be made, and is the best way to avoid the sectional issue," Representative Cochran (D.) of Missouri, said today.

"It is generally agreed that if the speakership goes to the south, the floor leader should come from the north," said Representative Greenwood (D.) of Indiana, house whip.

LEDGER PLANS STRIKE FIGHT

By Associated Press

Newark, N. J., Nov. 22—Lucius T. Russell, Sr., publisher of the Newark Morning Ledger, where a strike of editorial workers has been in progress five days, announced today that the Ledger, which suspended publication for the past two days, will begin regular publication tomorrow morning. He said:

"There won't be any more issues missed so long as I have a dollar to spend producing it."

The publisher expressed his willingness to submit the controverted strike issues to the arbitration of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Matthew Woll, vice-president of the A. F. of L.; Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times; William Randolph Hearst; Roy Howard, of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, and Bishop Walsh, of the Catholic diocese of Newark.

Publisher Leaves $230,000 to Widow

Greenwich, Ct., Nov. 22 (INS)—Mrs. Frances Grosset, widow of Alexander Grosset, former widely known New York publisher, received life use of his estate valued at $230,000 under the terms of his will on file in Probate Court here today. Grosset died October 27 at the age of 64.

ADVERTISE N. E., CURLEY'S PLAN FOR 6 STATES

A plan to advertise New England as a recreational center, with a $600,000 fund equally contributed by the six states, was discussed today by Governor-elect Curley and Governor Louis J. Brann of Maine.

They conferred in the Copley-Plaza Hotel. Both were of the opinion that advertising of the right sort would result in a tremendous demand for summer accommodations throughout the district and the plan will be referred to the other governors.

Curley and Brann also discussed the possibility of joint action by New England governors toward reciprocity agreements with other nations and agitation for a tariff wall to bar goods manufactured in nations which will not pay their war debts.

New England Leaders Asked to Aid New Deal

New England business leaders and ambassadors of President Roosevelt's economic policies met in Hotel Statler today in the 10th annual conference of the New England Council that is expected to cement a closer understanding between big business here and the government aims toward recovery.

To aid in placing the New Deal before the business men, Donald R. Richberg, executive director of the National Emergency Council, so-called "Number 2 man" in the government structure, and Harry L. Hopkins, director of the ERA, were in attendance. Another was Edwin S. Smith of the National Labor Relations Board.

The government leaders were welcomed by Henry D. Sharp, Rhode Island manufacturer, who will retire as president of the council at the end of the conference that continues into tomorrow. In his welcome, he included:

"There is some concern over certain policies and programs of the federal government, but business and government must determine to approach our problems in a spirit of mutual respect and co-operation.

"There may well be an end to government and business standing aloof, making faces at one another and calling names. If we are to make constructive criticisms, we must be prepared to go to work and study the problems."

At the election today, Winthrop L. Carter of Chestnut Hill, treasurer of the Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper Company in New Hampshire, was chosen to succeed President Sharpe.

John L. Baxter of Brunswick, Me., was elected secretary to succeed Thomas E. Pierce of Providence; Frank C. Nichols of Swampscott, vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston, was re-elected treasurer, and Dudley Harmon of Wellesley Hills executive vice-president.

Governors of the six New England states addressed the gathering. All urged a closer co-operation between business and government in the battle ot restore normalcy to the country.

Tonight the governors will address separate conferences of delegates from their own states.

The speech of Director Richberg and appearance of Governor-elect James M. Curley at a luncheon for the newly elected governors of the six New England states are among the highlights. In addition, a series of forums will be held to consider the adjustment of New England to changing conditions, public expenditures, unemployment relief and plans for supervision of state and local taxation.

TREADWAY TO PUSH SALES TAX

By International News Service

Washington, Nov. 22—Advocates of a general manufacturers' sales tax today struck for a vote on this "painless levy" at the forthcoming session of Congress.

Rep. Treadway, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican on the House ways and means committee, served notice he would draft a general sales tax bill, unless the Democratic majority sponsors one.

Support for such a levy was pledged by Rep. Crowther (R) of New York, also a member of the ways and means committee.

Existing sales taxes on a group of selected industries are discriminatory, they said.

Instead of continuing these imposts which expire next June and net about $400,000,000 in revenue, the Republicans contended there should be substituted a general manufacturers' levy in which all would bear the tax burden.

face of conservatism. But new ideas are always feared.

The French printed too many assignats, Germany printed too many marks and, of course, the United States could not resist the temptation to print too many dollars. All of which is nonsense. The country should print and spend what money it needs, without insisting on the pawnbroker policy of interest uncalled for, that doubles the amount finally paid. This government, that owes twenty-seven billion dollars now, will pay, with interest, fifty-four billion dollars. A $1000 government bond on yellow paper is worth as much as $1000 of government currency on green paper, and no more. The only value in each case is the government's name.

Mr. Paul Hollister, executive vice-president for this writer's active young friend, Percy S. Straus, tells the Association of National Advertisers at Atlantic City that it is a mistake to hamstring enterprise by regulating prices, providing merchants with strait-jackets in which to operate. Those were not his words, but that was what he meant.

Mr. Hollister remarked that incomes have shrunk, but not the desire to buy goods. That desire, on which return of prosperity depends, should be encouraged, and the way to encourage buying, with money scarce, is to make prices as reasonable as possible.

That is as plain as Pike's Peak on a clear day. If the ancient Greeks had ruled in their Olympic games: "Young ladies and gentlemen must all run side by side, it is forbidden for one to run faster than the other," that person from Marathon would have arrived several hours later than he did.

Germany, according to a Paris report, will have in 1935 a military force of 5,500,000 men, ready on few days' notice to march toward the French frontier.

Five and a half million [illegible] would make a big army.

Five and a half million rabbits would also make a big army.

And men, marching on the ground, with or without the goose step, will not be important in future wars. What a few eagles could do to 5,500,000 rabbits, a few airplanes will do to any collection of marching soldiers.

The question is, how many fighting planes will Germany have in 1935, and will anybody be foolish enough to release them against foreign cities, knowing how foreign planes would retaliate?

Some in Britain and Japan are agitated by rumors that the United States will "extend its fortified zones in the Pacific ocean." Great Britain is fortifying Singapore with energy, establishing there a fighting base as useful in controlling Asia as a policeman's gun pointed at the stomach of a criminal.

But, that Uncle Sam should fortify Guam, establishing there, as he should do, a great air base, with another in the Philippines, seems quite unthinkable, in Europe.

What right, Europe asks, has the United States to display international intelligence, instead of continuing to receive instructions from other countries, as we did at the Washington conference?

Protect Job Insurance, R. W. Child Says

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy

Sunshine!

If anything has shown the distinction between the President's wisdom and the SPEND IT! spirit of some of his rosy dawner advisers, it has been the discussion of job insurance.

Onto the difficult job insurance cause, the merry broadcasters of your money and mine, in Washington, together with the AL-LEE-OOP! reformers and Utopia fixers, have tried to hitch every other insurance in the world—against old age, disease, unhappiness, warts, failing hair and general tired feelings.

R. W. Child

Hopkins, the happy humanitarian with the taxpayers' money, wants to bail up job insurance with RELIEF!

TO DO SO IS TO SNARL UP A BUSINESS PROPOSAL LIKE PERMANENT JOB INSURANCE WITH EMERGENCY DOLE.

TO DO SO IS TO CREATE THE FEELING IN THE MAN WHO WON'T WORK THAT HE WILL "GET HIS" ANYWAY.

When the President indicated that he wanted job insurance to stand alone and on its own feet, he was right.

JOB INSURANCE SHOULD NOT BE A SYSTEM BY WHICH THE WORKER OR CONSUMER SUPPORTS THE BUM.

TOUGH QUESTIONS

Furthermore, the President is right in emphasizing that we should tackle one of these problems at a time.

Job insurance is difficult enough for a first step.

It means a tremendous increase in Washington bureaucracy. It adds a tax on industry already laden and the CONSUMER will have to pay it in the end.

What share of it should be advanced out of the federal or state treasuries, what the employers should advance and what the employes should contribute, are not snap-and-go but tough questions.

IT IS NOT PLAIN THAT JOB INSURANCE WILL NOT RAISE PRICES MORE THAN IT WILL RAISE OUR BUYING POWER.

The questions are many and complicated. The toughest of all is the question of how to save the honest worker from paying the support of the work-evader.

WILL ANYONE FEEL THE SAME RESPECT FOR HIS JOB IF HE KNOWS THAT, IF IT CEASES THROUGH DEPRESSIONS OR CONFLICT, A PART OF THE PAY COMES ANYHOW?

WHAT OF OUR NATIONAL MORALE?

WHAT STARTS THE FUND?

GOOD PLANNING NEEDED

How can we be sure that job insurance is not a subsidy to strikers without cause?

Hopkins was the fellow who wanted to put strikers on the relief roles?

The President is wise to demand that job insurance be considered alone.

JOB INSURANCE, IF IT IS NOT TO BE A RACKET, MUST BE A WELL PLANNED BUSINESS-LIKE PROGRAM, UNMIXED AND UNMESSED WITH ANY BASKET DISPLAY OF THE ROSY DAWNERS.

But that is not all sunshine. No!

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THIS DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION, WE BEGIN TO SEE THE SHADOW OF JEFFERSON.

It is now proposed that job insurance may be left to those states which will provide a satisfactory system.

FOR THE FIRST TIME, THERE IS A MOVE TO DECENTRALIZE.

FOR THE FIRST TIME, WE SEE RECOGNITION THAT THE PARTY FOUNDED ON STATES' RIGHTS EVEN KNOWS OF THE EXISTENCE OF STATES.

This is a big gain.

RESPONSIBILITY OF STATES

While Washington plays the role of hero, papa, mama, big brother and sentimental sister, all rolled into one with a function to take the taxpayers' money from one place and get thanked for spending it in another—then every simpleton says "let Washington do it."

The state, the city, the town and YOU and I today are subsidized shirkers about our own home problems and obligations.

IF IN JOB INSURANCE THE PRESIDENT CAN PUT RESPONSIBILITY BACK ON THE STATES, DEMOCRACY CAN AGAIN LOOK AT JEFFERSON'S PORTRAIT WITHOUT BLUSHING.

'POWER TRUST' ADS UNDER U. S. PROBE

By International News Service

Washington, Nov. 22—The so-called "Power Trust," during a period of years, poured out millions of dollars on a propaganda campaign.

The Federal Trade Commission reported to the Senate today that the electric power and gas industries spent this money by setting up or subsidizing publicity bureaus and purchasing stock in some newspapers.

The campaign, which was particularly directed against municipal and government ownership of utilities and government projects, such as Boulder Dam, Muscle Shoals and the Ontario hydroelectric system, was even directed through the public schools, the commission stated. The federal investigation of the activities of the major utilities was started six years ago under a Senate resolution.

The report revealed the use of "good will" advertising, employment of "ghost writers," entertainment of the press socially, financing of certain newspapers, support of certain publicity bureaus, and establishment of state publicity bureaus in 32 states.

The report, quoting a director of the utilities department of information, stated that the state publicity bureaus were functioning "in such a way that newspapers in six states are using an average of 8500 column inchest of material every month."

The aggregate amount of "good will" advertising was placed at $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 a year, according to the report.

The commission listed the following newspapers which it said were financed to some extent by the International Paper Company:

The Chicago Daily News, $250,000 of prefererd stock, 5000 shares of common stock. Chicago Journal, $1,000,000 worth of debentures, $500,000 of preferred stock, and 10,000 shares of common stock. Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker Press and Albany Evening News, $450,000 of preferred stock; 3000 shares of common stock.

Boston Herald and Traveler, 10,248 shares of common stock. Brooklyn Eagle, $19,545,000 of notes; 400 shares of common stock of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle Corp. Hall & La Varre, $855,000 of notes secured by stock of the Augusta Chronicle, Columbia Record and Spartanburg Herald-Traveler. Ithaca Journal-News, $300,000 contingent interest.

Missing Nurse Job Hunting

Reported missing by her mother, and sought by police of two states, Miss Florence Massey, 21, of Warwick, Ct., a student nurse at the Marlboro Hospital, was found today by the Boston Evening American in a Massachusetts avenue rooming house.

After being in training for six months, the young woman explained that she had given up her duties last Friday because she found nursing distasteful. She said:

> "I am deeply sorry that I worried my mother. I will get in touch with her immediately. I have been looking for employment and I planned to write her of my changed plans as soon as I had obtained a job."

Last Rites Held for Woman, 105

In the Church of the Sacred Heart, East Boston, of which she was the oldest and one of the most beloved parishioners, funeral services for Mrs. Natalie Mannucci, 105, were held today in the presence of more than 50 surviving relatives and several hundred friends.

A widow with 11 children, Mrs. Mannucci, who died Tuesday, came to East Boston 43 years ago from Italy. Her oldest child is 75 years old.

Auto Runs Wild; Two Are Injured

Two men were injured when the car in which they were riding went out of control and turned over on Memorial Drive near Harvard stadium this afternoon.

The injured men are Richard Ferris of Cranston, R. I., operator of the machine, and Robert Preston, 38 Essex avenue, Swampscott.

Clean Out Kidney Poisons

Wash Out Your 15 Miles Of Kidney Tubes

If kidneys don't pass 3 pints a day that contain nearly 4 pounds of waste matter, the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters become clogged with poisonous waste products and the danger of acid poisoning is greatly increased. Bladder passages are difficult . . . which often smart and burn like scalding water and cause discomfort.

This acid condition, brought about by poor kidney functions is a danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

Most people watch their bowels which contain only 27 feet of intestines but neglect the kidneys which contain 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters. If these tubes or filters become clogged with poisons, it may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't run any risk. Make sure your kidneys empty 3 pints a day.

Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 miles of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contains no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist.

WIFE IN REMOTE HAMLET, TRIES TO FORGET 'MILLION'

WHO GOT THE $500,000?

Aside from her reaction, what almost everyone wanted to know was who got the $500,000 left after Munsell had established a fund of the same amount for her.

Munsell himself said the money "melted away" on private benefactions.

The story brought terse comment from his mother, Mrs. Julia Munsell of San Francisco.

"Yes, it's true," she said. "My son has given away his entire fortune. I don't care to discuss it any further."

In the New York city "flop house" where Munsell was staying he told reporters that he had fed the needy, published a welfare magazine for distribution among the poor and passed out $1700 to striking longshoremen in Baltimore, Md.

He said he kept a record of every one of his donations and every once in a while he studies it. The results have made him quite a social psychologist, he thinks.

WANT THE REST

After dispelling the first scepticism that Munsell ever had a million, much less gave it away, the man was besieged today. Some even wanted to part him from the $27 a week he figures he has left for the next seven weeks.

It was established that he had got his million all right. It came from the estate of his grandfather, Alexander E. Orr, transit financier and founder of the Munsell color system.

Grandfather left an estate estimated at between $7,000,000 and $12,000,000. Munsell was one of four heirs.

WAS EXAMINED

He wasn't crazy either, Munsell explained today. He could prove that too, because he had himself examined by psychiatrists before he embarked on his philanthropic career.

They agreed that he was both mentally and emotionally stable and so Munsell was all ready to greet anyone who tried to halt his program by proposing conservators or guardians.

He got indignant when somebody reminded him that Mrs. Munsell had the $500,000 he gave her and if worst came to worst he could always get refuge there. He snapped back:

"That's not in line with my plan. If I can't find work I'll go on relief."

As far as relief was concerned, Munsell was somewhere in that category now.

IN "FLOPHOUSE"

The 39-year-old altruist and sociological experimenter, who was reared in luxury, is living in a place called Hartford House. It's a government-operated "flophouse' for impoverished white-collar workers.

Even in order to stay there, Munsell has to get a job. He said he was looking for one at about $25 a week, and if he doesn't get it by the first of January, times are going to be very hard.

One of the Munsells' sons, Alexander, Jr., goes to Middlesex School, an exclusive boy's academy in Concord.

Two other sons are at a Tucson, Ariz., ranch and Mrs. Munsell is going down there to visit them within a few days.

WIFE IN ACCORD

Mrs. Munsell's mother, Mrs. Helen Dodd, of Summit, N. J., used to live in Cliff road, Welesley, while her daughter, Mrs. Munsell, went to college there. About six years ago she sold their home and moved to New Jersey.

Mrs. Dodd scoffed at the possibility that her daughter and her husband had broken up over Munsell's decision to give away his million. She said:

"They're not estranged. They are in perfect accord. He told her what he wanted to do, that he was going to do it for the good of people and I know that Margaret did not want to stand in the way."

Thus does the Munsell case closely parallel in some aspects the famous philanthropic endeavors of Charles Garland a dozen years ago.

LACKS LOVE FARM

There is no "love farm" in Munsell's scheme of things, but the business of spurning a million, making his own way on a meager salary and getting his wife to approve of it is just about the same.

Both Garland and Munsell were born to wealth, attended exclusive preparatory schools, were graduated from Harvard, married, inherited their millions. And then they gave them away.

Garland had a bequest of a million or more coming from his grandfather, James A. Garland, Wall street financier, after he had married the former Mary Wrenn.

He spurned it at first. Like Munsell, he felt that money was a "burden," and a lot of other people in the world needed it more than he did.

CHANGED MIND

Garland told the executors of the grandfather's estate that he preferred to go out and get a job as an automobile mechanic.

He didn't have much luck at getting that kind of a job, however, and a year later he decided to take the bequest.

Everybody figured that Mrs. Garland, who was then mother of one child and expecting another, had something to do with that.

The next thing the world knew, Garland announced that he had settled a third of the bequest on Mrs. Garland and was giving the rest away to "aid lost labor causes and other such endeavors."

The American Fund for Public Service got the donation. In a few years, with rising investments and income, the fund swelled to nearly $2,000,000.

That fund caused almost as many controversies and exciting stories as Garland's subsequent "love-farm" episodes in South Carver and later in Allentown, Pa.

It took the American Fund for Public Service foundation up to March, 1929, to get rid of the Garland fortune. Then a final accounting was made. The report showed that all except $640,000 had been given away. This amount was out on "loans", about $55,000 of which were uncollectable, the report said.

Meanwhile Garland had left his wife, been reconciled to her, got into all sorts of scrapes with the girls in his colonies and had even been to jail. He was practically driven out of South Carver.

But his fund went to help Communist and radical papers, labor colleges, birth control movements, strikers, the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee and other such movements.

One thing the fund directors did do was to refuse to loan to James Larkin and the Ulster Defense Alliance when this body wanted to send a relief ship to Ireland in the 1923 troubles there.

UNIONS WARNED

The foundation and its Garland fund were denounced by Samuel Gompers in the same year, 1923, as being used to "bring together an interlocking network of pacifist and revolutionary organizations."

Gompers, then president of the American Federation of Labor, was warning unions not to have a finger in the pie that he called a "parlor pink" project.

For all his sentimental troubles, Garland finally ended up with one Ursula Feist in the Allentown farm. He married her after his first wife divorced him. He's a farmer now.

Garland always maintained a very aloof attitude on his wealth. He just wasnt' interested in it. After he gave it away, he kissed it goodby forever.

LIKES TO TALK

But Munsell, the latest philanthropic eccentric to startle the nation, likes to talk about the million he used to have. He said:

"The only joy I ever found in my million was in giving it away.

"I managed to get along almost without it during the last year by serving on Baltimore juries. In fact, I managed to save $800."

He said he earned as much as $100,000 in a single day just before the stock market slump in 1929, but now he isn't even interested, except for benefactory purposes.

He is going to devote a good deal of his time in trying to interest wealthy persons to do what he did—contribute relief to the poor.

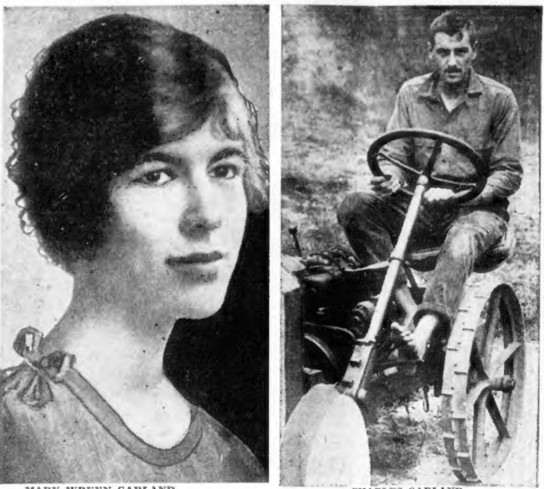
His Millions Went to Aid Radicals



MARY WRENN GARLAND CHARLES GARLAND

Curiously paralleling the case of Alexander E. O. Munsell, who settled a trust fund on his wife and then gave away his fortune, Charles Garland attained wide notoriety when he dispensed millions to various radical and labor organizations. His first wife, Mrs. Mary Wrenn Garland, whom he gave a share in his inheritance, divorced him after Garland got into various scrapes with girls at his South Carver love farm.

Explorer Plans Island Visit to Clear Up Mystery

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, Nov. 22—Hopeful of clearing up the mystery of the Galapagos Islands, Captain G. Allan Hancock, Los Angeles explorer, will sail tomorrow for bleak Marchena Island to view the bodies of two marooned persons who died of thirst and hunger.

The two bodies were found last week by Captain Manuel Rodriguez, skipper of a tuna boat. Rodriguez made a brief examination of the bodies and radioed descriptions to Los Angeles, nearly 3000 miles distant. From these descriptions Hancock formed his conclusions.

"It is my belief that the dead men are unquestionably Arthur Rudolph Lorenz, formerly of Paris, and a Norwegian sailor named Nuggergood. The description of the smaller man fits Lorenz perfectly.

"He was a member of the small colony over which Baroness Eloise Bousquet de Wagner sought to rule as an empress on Charles island, another of the Galapagos archipelago.

"Of course, we cannot say definitely until we have made a personal investigation in the islands. What we find on Marchena island, together with what remaining members of the apparently disbanded colony tell us, will probably clear up all the mystery."

Captain Hancock expects to anchor his cruiser, the Valero 3rd, off Marchena within 10 days after sailing. He is taking a party of scientists to the South Pacific for research work.

Mrs. Rena Colson Taken to Hospital

Mrs. Rena M. Colson, member of the Demcoratic state committee who collapsed in Middlesex probate court, was removed today to a hospital from her home in Wakefield, it was made known when court opened.

Yesterday, Mrs. Colson, former chairman of the Wakefield Board of Selectmen, appeared in court to fight for a divorce and to oppose an action of her husband, George L. Colson of Wakefield, seeking a ruling that he is living part from her for justifiable cause.

A NEW GOLD RUSH

A—NEW GOLD RUSH is sweeping the country, not in Canyons or Gulches, but in old Bureau Drawers.

When President Roosevelt, with a stroke of his pen, increased the price of gold, it started millions of people searching in odd corners, old bureaus, chests and closets for gold, old gold (that is bits of out of date jewelry, dental gold and old watches). Today these are worth more than they have been for two generations.

HANFY PARDONS ASKED OF ELY

Pardons for the six men and one woman jailed for demonstrating against Dr. Ernst F. S. Hanfstaengel during last June's Harvard commencement were sought today in a letter sent to Governor Ely by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The letter, signed by Harry F. Ward, chairman of the Union, asked Governor Ely to "correct what was obviously a sentence not commensurate with the offense." The letter also said:

"We understand that you will have before you shortly, if you have not already, applications to pardon seven persons now serving terms in the East Cambridge jail for speaking without a permit in Harvard square on Commencement Day last June.

"All of these persons are opponents of Fascism as represented by the present government of Germany, and lodged a protest against what they conceived to be a representative of that government."

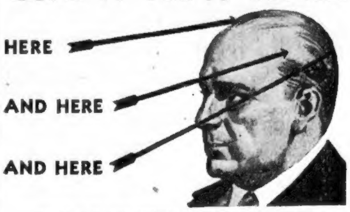
Radio Halts Crash Auto 20 Miles Away

Twenty miles away from the scene of an accident in which his car is believed by police to have figured, Omer L. Roberts of Manchester, N. H., was halted in Bedford today through quick action by the police radio.

Roberts' machine was reported in collision with that of John Sanblin of Hale street, Beverly, at Massachusetts avenue and St. Botolph street.

Sanblin called police and reported that the other machine had driven away after an argument. Through the registration number the Roberts auto was halted less than half an hour later.

GROW NEW HAIR



Get rid of that old-fashioned idea that hair cannot be regrown. Science has found that the hair-growing structure (papilla) remains alive and ready to respond to proper stimulative treatment even long after hair has disappeared from the scalp.

Thomas has found a way to stimulate this dormant hair-growing structure to normal activity. First, Thomas treatment removes the causes of inactivity (usually one or more of 14 local scalp disorders) and then skillfully supplies the necessary stimulation and thus makes it possible for the hair to gain sufficient strength to push through the follicle and become visible again on the scalp.

Come in person to the nearest Thomas office TODAY and learn more about this precise, reliable method of growing hair, stopping hair-fall, and ending dandruff. No charge will be made for consultation or scalp examination. You will not be accepted for treatment unless your case comes within the scope of Thomas methods.

Helen Regrets That She Let Walter Kiss Her; Irene's Engagement Announced

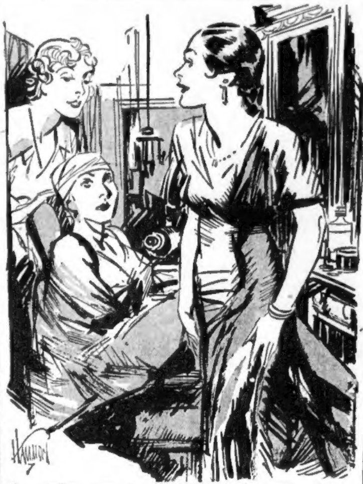
SYNOPSIS

Luxurious to the nth degree of commercial splendor were the establishments of the Anastasia Beauty Salon, but dreary and unkempt were the locker quarters of the operators, who dressed and "made-up" for business in whitewashed, barn-like rooms. In one room, as they rouged their cheeks and donned their fresh, starched white uniforms, the girls talked . . . talked chiefly about the Riley sisters, who managed each of the Anastasia Salons, and about Walter Riley, their brother and the owner of the salons.

Among the operators was one who stood out from the rest—Helen Schiller. One day, before the salon opened for business, Helen was demonstrating some dance steps that she had seen on the stage the night before . . . and Walter Riley appeared. Her dancing was a blow to discipline . . . but he did not make his presence known. Instead he backed away, to enter a little later, banging a door. That evening he found himself back in the shop where Helen worked. Intending to speak to her about her dancing of the morning, he found himself disarmed by her smile.

When she asked him if he liked to dance he appeared uncertain, admitting finally that he had never danced. Helen was surprised at this, and he suddenly asked her if she would teach him to dance. "I'd love to," she said honestly, and so they decided to go to one of the better hotels for dinner and dancing. As the evening wore on, Walter found himself enjoying himself despite his awkwardness. Then he drove Helen to her home in Bay Ridge, leaving her there—but not before she agreed to accompany him to the theater the next evening.

The next night they enjoyed themselves thoroughly, although Walter was afraid for a time that he might be seen by one of his sisters. That did not occur, and Helen fell asleep during the long drive to Brooklyn. He awakened her with a kiss upon the cheek . . .



In a trailing gown she glided through the various salons, greeting clients and welcoming them.

CHAPTER VII

"I must go in," said Helen. "Where's my hat? Good night. Oh, and thanks for a lovely time."

He laughed triumphantly as he kissed her. "Kiss me again."

"Oh, no, I can't really. I . . . you mustn't."

"Why not?"

"It's not right."

"What isn't? To kiss someone who's lovely and sweet?"

"That's just it. You see you've kissed lots of girls. It doesn't mean anything to you. But I . . . I don't like to kiss just . . . just for instance."

"What makes you think I've kissed lots of girls?" he asked soberly.

"Why, you're a man and rich and all that. I must go. Please let me go."

"All right, but just one more kiss."

"No!"

"Please."

HIS FIRST GIRL

She leaned over and gave him a swift peck on the chin.

"Oh, no," he laughed, "like this."

And once again he pressed his lips slowly against hers. Her breath came in little gasps. A passing automobile illuminated his face for an instant. His eyes were black pools. She felt lost in them. He released her slowly.

"You're the first girl I ever kissed," he told her soberly.

She was trembling. She gathered up her hat and bag and gloves. Silently he helped her out of the car. Her hands shook so she couldn't open her door. He took the key from her and opened it.

"Good night," she whispered faintly.

"You're so sweet," he stammered. He tried to catch her again, but she eluded him. From the other side of the door she whispered shyly, "Good night—Walter."

She closed the door swiftly. In a daze Walter strode back to his car. "Good Lord," he told himself over and over, "I really do love her."

Tonight Helen crept silently into bed. Gone was the elation, the ecstasy of last night. She was frightened. Dread fastened cold fingers against her heart. She shouldn't have let him kiss her. What a fool she had been to make such a mistake. Now he'd surely think she was one of those loose flappers. He wouldn't dare kiss one of the girls of his own class so lightly! She had cheapened herself to let him kiss her that way so soon. Darn it, why had she fallen asleep?

ASHAMED OF HER

She lay palpitating miserably in the darkness. Then fresh doubts rose to torture her. He was ashamed of being seen with her. It wasn't possible that a man could be so afraid of his sisters and his mother. Did she look cheap?

Helen crawled out of bed and went into the bathroom. She lit the gas over the mirror and in the hard yellow light studied her face. She tried to see herself as through Walter's eyes. Of course, she wasn't striking like Stella Riley or freakish like Irene Riley—but nice. She had a nice face. No one needed to be ashamed of her!

She crawled back to bed, uncertain whether to give him up or to let herself drift into a relationship that she knew was hopeless from the beginning. Her head ached. She probably wouldn't sleep and in the morning she'd be a wreck. In two minutes she was fast asleep.

In the morning her reasonableness asserted itself. Walter was fine. He was kind and sweet. Of course, he wasn't ashamed of her! What an idiotic thought! It was only because he hated scenes. He hated quarrels with his sisters. That was why he didn't want to be seen in her company. His sisters, naturally, would object, but Walter was different. He had called her Helen—had kissed her. Little by little she talked herself into believing in him. She almost succeeded, but she couldn't entirely convince herself.

The engagement of Irene Riley to Dirk Terhune was front page news. The only son of one of the oldest and best families in New York was marrying a successful and prominent business woman. It was this angle that Miss Ginsberg stressed in her announcement to the press. Miss Ginsberg had an inscrutable, long nosed face. If she had any personal feeling about the Rileys she concealed it. She handled the story with the same skill she handled the firm's publicity.

She sent each of the more important papers a lovely photograph of Irene—the photograph that looked so French—Irene's smooth, sophisticated face half concealed by a dotted black veil, smart small Parisian hat, pearl ear buttons and a provocative, heavy lidded smile. She sent a lovely profile picture of Irene, displaying her unusual turban headdress, to several of the class magazines. Miss Ginsberg had a little difficulty placing the profile in Vanity Fair, but the fact that Irene was marrying into the Social Register was a helpful factor.

"Mrs. Anastasia Riley, of 840 Park avenue, announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Irene, to Dirk Terhune, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Terhune, of 41 Washington square, North . . ."

The rest of the announcement told briefly of the success of the bride-to-be in the management of the Anastasia Beauty Salon on W. 57th street, mentioned the family ownership of the chain of beauty shops by the same name and stressed the social connections and war record of the groom.

COUNTER GIRLS GOWNED

The 57th St. Anastasia occupied the store and the first two floors of a narrow white marble building on 57th st. West of 5th ave. The store was as luxrios as the inside of a jewel case. Here were sold the Anastasia beauty preparations. The predominating colors were purple and old gold. The girls behind the conters wore gowns, not dresses, and might have passed for members of the Russian nobility. They were queenly, gracious, faintly condescending.

A broad onyx stairway at the back curved upwards to the beauty salons. Here was none of the glittering black and white efficiency that characterized the Forty-fourth street shop. Everything of a utilitarian nature was disguised to look like something different. Here was luxury; satin walls and hangings. The workroom was a French boudoir. The floor was covered with a thick carpet that deadened every footfall. The manicurist tables were ruffled in taffeta and the appurtenances and bottles were of sterling silver. The washbasins were of pink marble and concealed when not in use by sliding beveled mirrored doors. The lighting was all indirect and shell-pink in tone—the chairs a luxury of sensuous down. A footstool for milady's feet that she might relax as on a chaise longue during a facial. Soft-voiced attendants. A fountain trickled in the north wall.

DISPLAY OF LUXURY

Anastasia's Fifty-seventh street represented the pinnacle of luxurious unessentials in that beauty racket. There could be no more lavish display of wealth and luxury in a beauty salon anywhere. Besides the clientele of steady customers, there flowed through the Salon a steady stream of women who wanted to see the place jst once before they died. The out-of-town trade alone would have kept them going. You took Cousin Molly from Pittsburgh to Anastasia's just as you took her to the the Aquarium.

This salon was Walter's idea. His mother had little use for the place. She was, however, grimly pleased at seeing her name carved out in simple letters on the marble facade. She could neither read nor write—and in the 45 years she had lived in America, she never learned, but she did know the letters in her own name and she knew hers was one of the few women's names carved out in stone on a building in New York.

In its furnishings Irene ran amuck. All her yearnings toward the beautiful; all her revolt against the ugly and sordid surroundings of her childhood were consummated in the fitting up of this salon. And when it was finished, she turned her amazing energy into its management. Tea was served at 4. It was the only time during the day that Irene came out of her private office. In a trailing gown she glided through the various salons, greeting clients and welcoming them. Only her special friends came into her office, a small silk-paneled Marie Antoinette room.

The rest of the day she was at her desk, directing, making plans, worrying Miss Ginsberg about publicity and interfering in the management of her sisters' branches.

She spent hours on the phone quarreling with Ethel and Stella—not that she was more quarrelsome than the others, but her energy was boundless and she had a mania for perfection. Usually she was right in her criticism, although this didn't help matters with her sisters.

Campaign Cost Sinclair $1223

Sacramento, Calif., Nov. 22—Upton Sinclair spent $1223.19 in his unsuccessful campaign for the governorship of California, he said in a schedule of expenses filed with the Secretary of State. Sinclair said all except $130.34 was contributed.

The Democrat's expenses were about $800 more than those listed by Governor Frank F. Merriam, Republican, who was returned to office.

Art Expert to Go Abroad

JOSEPH LINDON SMITH, Honorary Curator of Egyptian Art at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and Mrs. Smith will sail on the Excaliber on November 27 for Egypt. They will go direct to Cairo where Mr. Smith will continue his painting of the Giza tombs excavated by Professor Reisner and the Harvard University-Boston Museum Expedition.

This year he will also undertake a panorama painting of the Pyramids showing the relations of the ancient Giza cemetery to the Nile and Cairo. It is on this site that Professor Reisner has uncovered some of the most monumental works of early Egyptian culture yet brought to light.

Mr. Smith expects to go to Persia, also, where he has been invited by Dr. James R. Breasted, director of the Oriental Institute Expedition, to make two large paintings at Persepolis.

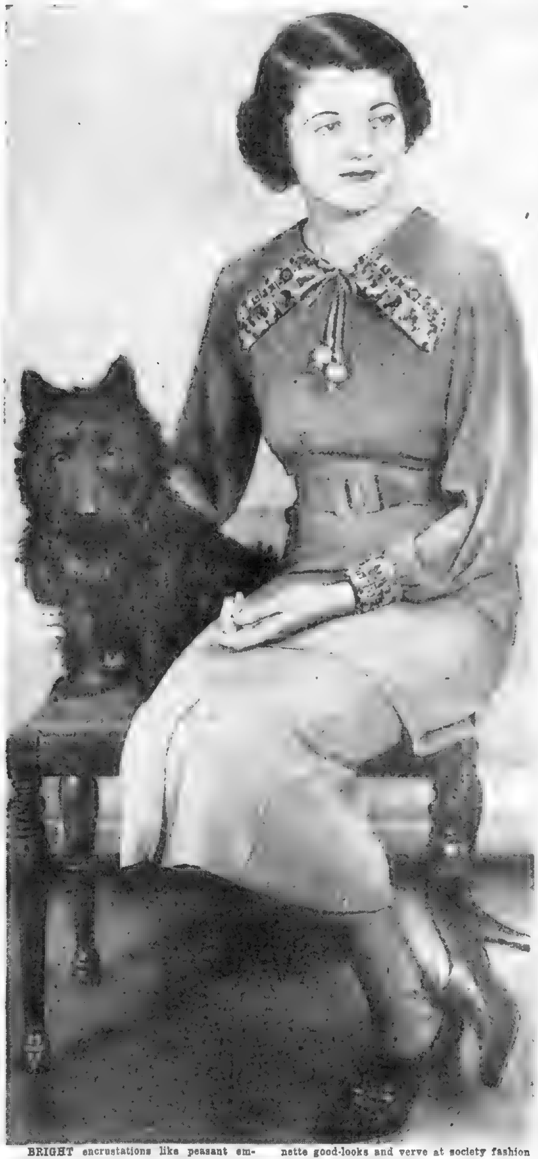
FACIAL COMES FROM VIENNA TO MAKE SKIN LIKE A ROSE PETAL

A Dash of Russia on Peacock Crepe



BRIGHT encrustations like peasant embroidery and a dangly gold cord tie are neatly smart on this peacock blue tunic frock, which is overwhelmingly good to the budget (hovering as it does in the around-five-dollars class).

Miss Dorothy Knowles, who models for us with the aid of "Wag," her Scottie, is the daughter of Mrs. H. Appleton Knowles of Brookline and Marblehead. Her shining brunette good-looks and verve at society fashion shows make her one of the most striking models.

If you would like further details on the frock shown, which is from a Boston shop, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ways of Locating Adverse High Cards

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

If the declarer knew the location of every outstanding high card, the percentage of fulfilled contracts would be much greater than it now is. Alternative lines of play always present themselves and the decision as to which to select would be much simplified if the opponents had to expose all their high honors.

The adverse high cards, however, can be at least partially located in a number of ways. A review of the bidding will quite frequently help, but even more valuable is a careful diagnosis by the declarer of the type of defense which has been put up.

West's opening lead was the diamond Queen. After a low card was played from dummy East overtook with the King and promptly returned the heart nine. South naturally played the Jack on the first trick, as to develop any sort of play on the hand one heart finesse had to be lost.

As mentioned above, from the bidding — and even more from East's diamond overtake and shift to the heart nine—South was convinced that a second heart finesse must fail. However, South saw a ray of hope, and the play proceeded as follows:

West, after winning the second trick with the heart Queen, for want of something better to do, led another diamond, which was trumped in dummy. South played the Ace of spades and then a spade back to his hand, and now led a low club. West, of course, could not go up with his Ace, as to do this would set up an extra club trick for the declarer, which would afford the discard of a losing heart. After the club Queen held the trick South proceeded to play out all his trumps. The West player was soon in difficulties. He had to hold on to his club Ace as the King still remained in the South hand and he also had to keep the heart King guarded. When South played out his last trump West had no choice but to bare down to the lone Ace of clubs and the King and one heart hoping against hope that South might not be aware of the situation. The latter, however, knew exactly where he stood and at the eleventh trick led out his club King. West won with the club Ace and then, with a grimace, conceded the last two tricks to South.

Given in Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON

The young people, discovering the ruse of the honeymooners, start after them.

CHAPTER 199

"WHAT IN tunket!"

Sam Ticer burst into the kitchen from the laundry, as he heard the blast of the horn from his son Jerry's car. Mrs. Ticer followed him, her round face filled with alarm.

"What do you suppose he's blowing for?" she asked. "Something must be the matter with his [illegible]"

"Whatever it is, you mustn't go," I told them firmly. "Remember, Hank and Bill in Noel's car have just seen two people, whom they believe to be you two, going across the fields. In that belief they went back to Noel's car, but if they should see you now they would promptly guess the truth, give the alarm, and Noel and Mary would not be able to get away unobserved, as they have planned."

"Yes, I see your point," Mr. Ticer said. "But somebody ought to go and see what's the matter."

"Vot's matter mit dot Jeem," Katie asked, using the phraseology she invariably employs in speaking of her husband. "Now Meester Noel and Mees Mary safe away, he no need to stand guard down here any longer. Shall I tell heem go ofer und find out vot matter mit Jerry's car?"

JIM TO THE RESCUE

"Yes," I decided instantly. "But call out to him loudly, just as if Mr. and Mrs. Ticer really had gone over there."

"Sure! I know," Katie answered, and with a fever of impatience I listened while she called to her husband.

"Jeem! Oh, Jeem!"

From a clump of lilacs near the door, where he had been standing, Jim's voice came cautiously.

"What do you want?"

"Don't you hear dot horn?" Katie demanded. "Dot means Jerry in some trouble mit dot car. Und his fader und moder, dey too tired to valk home dees night. So you get ofer dere double qveeck."

But suppose those young folks come out here and start to follow—Jim began, until Katie's harsh whisper silenced him.

"Vill you shut oop and do vot Meesis Graham tells you instead of standing dere shooting your mout off like vun machine gun?" she demanded. And Jim emerged from behind the lilacs.

THE LOVERS GET AWAY

"I didn't know Mrs. Graham wanted me to do it," he said. "I thought it was some of your dumb foolishness."

And with that utterly masculine retort Jim started toward the field at a brisk pace while Katie and I and the Ticers fairly held our breaths until he reached there.

Evidently the trouble was slight, for it was the matter of but a minute or two, after Jim reached the car before the noise of the car advancing across the rough fields could be plainly heard. Then, with a sudden remembrance of Marion waiting on the upper floor, I rushed out of the kitchen and up the back stairs, to find Marion standing at the head of the stairs, anxiously waiting.

"They must be at the Ticers by now," I whispered.

"Then I'm off," she whispered back. "Don't let anybody see us talking together."

"I'm going back to the kitchen at once," I told her, and, turning, made my way back again to where the Ticers and Katie were excitedly discussing the flight.

AVIS DISCOVERS THE PLOT

"If you're careful to keep out of sight," I told Mr. and Mrs. Ticer, "you might as well see the fun. They'll all be swarming out to Noel's car presently, thinking that they'll catch them."

The door behind me—the one leading into the dining room—suddenly opened, and Avis Arlen put her head through the aperture.

"Oh, please excuse me!" she said. "I didn't know anybody was here. I just wanted a drink of water. Oh! What—"

Her eyes had fallen upon Mr. and Mrs. Ticer, and with a little squeal she turned and darted through the door.

Anniversary Gifts

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

A neighbor of mine is very anxious to give her daughter a gift for a fifth wedding anniversary, and as she does not know what is appropriate, I volunteered to write you for your suggestions. What would you suggest? L.

Not very much attention is paid nowadays to the special symbols for the wedding anniversaries . . . except when it comes to the important later ones. The earlier anniversaries often are celebrated informally, and "for fun" the symbols are observed in the presents. But since I judge that your friend wishes to give her daughter a "serious" present, she probably wouldn't want to give her something in wood . . . and the fifth anniversary is the Wooden Wedding.

Anything for the daughter's home would be appropriate. An electric accessory . . . percolator, chafing-dish (again returning to popularity) with the buffet service and other informal types of entertaining, electric cooker, and so forth. Or something in china, glass, linen, silver.

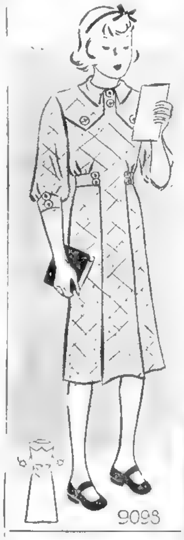
Tailoring for School Girl

By MARIAN MARTIN
PATTERN 9098



If the young lady in the picture is as smart as her costume, then it's no wonder she's reading her report card with such apparent approval. Smart simplicity, as every mother knows, is the keynote of the school-girl mode, but it must be made exciting by nice detail if it is to interest the young girl herself. Take this jaunty little frock for instance. Its simple bodice is topped by a double-pointed yoke in back, in front by a divided yoke. A well-tailored box pleat keeps the skirt from being severely plain and gives comfortable roominess as well. And the belt, starting at either side of the pleat at front, ties in a perky little bow behind.

Pattern 9098 may be ordered only in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 12 requires 2⅛ yards 54 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Do not miss our Winter Pattern Book of smart easy-to-make clothes designed by our style authority, Marian Martin. Styles for every age and all occasions. Price of book fifteen cents. Book and pattern together twenty-five cents.

Send your order to Boston American Pattern Department, 232 West 18th street, New York, N. Y.

FISCH FLASHED BIG ROLL OF MONEY AFTER KIDNAPING

PLEADED POVERTY WHILE HE GAMBLED IN STOCKS

The neighbors, friends and associates of Isador Fisch, mystery man in the Lindbergh case, are the subject of a renewed investigation. This is the fourth article in a series by Lou Wedemar, reporter, with a unique inside knowledge of the Lindberg kidnaping.

By LOU WEDEMAR

Copyright, 1934, Universal Service

New York, Nov. 22—Isador Fisch met a friend in a mid-town hotel, some time after the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped, and said:

"I've just finished a big deal. Look at the money I've got!"

He pulled out a huge roll of greenbacks.

A few hours later he attended a meeting of a social and benevolent organization for which he acted as sergeant-at-arms. To one of these friends he complained:

"I'm sick, and I ought to go away to the country and rest, but they charge $11 a week. Will you see if you can persuade them to take me for $10?"

And he pleaded poverty to pay $2 dues which he owed the society.

Fisch, a friend of Hauptmann, was a penniless furrier who worked day and night to earn a few pennies to send his poverty-stricken family in Germany. That is one picture of him, conveyed by his friends.

Others, who also claim themselves his friends, paint a different portrait. Isador Fisch a cunning, calculating confidence man, who swindled his friends out of thousands of dollars and [illegible] the money in some unknown manner.

The picture of Isidor Fisch as the penniless furrier does not fit, however, a statement by his own family—that on his death he owed several thousand dollars to men and women in New York.

Fisch, if he were alive, would be only 30 years old now. He and Henry Uhlig were born in the same town in Germany and worked for a furrier named Kirschner. In [illegible] Kirschner came to the United States with his wife and two daughters. Uhlig and Fisch followed soon afterward.

HAUPTMANN TAKES BRIDE

Another German, Karl Henkel, came to the United States about the same time and went to work as a painter. Through Uhlig, whom by chance he roomed with, he met Yetta, one of Kirschner's daughters, and married her. Through Uhlig he also met Isidor Fisch.

Mr. and Mrs. Henkel and Isidor Fisch lived in the house in East 127th street in 1931.

At about the same time that they came to the United States, Anna Schoeffler emigrated to New York and went to work as a waitress in the German colony in Yorkville. And Bruno Richard Hauptmann, a marked man in Saxony because he had a prison record, deserted ship in New York harbor and became a Yorkville dishwasher.

Hauptmann met Anna Schoeffler, resumed his trade as carpenter, and married her. They lived on Needham avenue, the Bronx. In 1931 the newlyweds, having saved several thousand dollars from their combined earnings, in company of a carpenter friend, Hans Kloppenberg, who had emigrated from northern Germany, took an auto trip to California to visit Hauptmann's sister and friends of Kloppenberg on the coast.

BRUNO MEETS FISCH

Kloppenberg, on their return, invited them to meet friends of his at Hunter's Island, a summer resort off the eastern part of the Bronx. Through these friends Hauptmann, Kloppenberg and Hen[illegible] met Carl Henkel in July 1932, and he struck up a warm friendship. Henkel invited Hauptmann to visit him at his home in E. 127th street.

And there, in the latter part of July, Hauptmann met Isador Fisch. According to Henkel the meeting came about like this:

"Fisch was in my room talking to me, when Richard came to ask me if I was going out to Hunter's Island. I introduced him to Fisch. They began to talk together, and Fisch asked him about stocks. Always, after that, Fisch was waiting for Hauptmann to come to see me, and he would talk to him. Fisch seemed to have some peculiar sort of influence over him; Hauptmann believed everything Fisch said."

WHO HAD THE MONEY?

This was four months after Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., was kidnaped, Hauptmann came for the first time to the fateful block in East 127th street and met Isidor Fisch.

Somewhere in the month of July, 1932, $[illegible] Lindbergh ransom money was hidden.

Did Hauptmann have the money hidden in his home in the Bronx?

Did Fisch have it hidden in East 127th street?

Did someone else have it hidden elsewhere?

BOTH PLAYED MARKET

Fisch used to follow Hauptmann, according to Henkel, to the Steiner-Rouse stock brokerage office in East 86th street. Both played the market. Hauptmann in a small careful way, Fisch more like a big plunger in the street.

And Fisch did have money enough to buy stocks. There seems no doubt of that. This is contrary to his statements to Louis Blitzer, fellow member of the Chrzanower society, who handled a legal matter for him, that he could not afford a winter overcoat, and could not pay $11 a week board at a country resort where he went to recover from his ever-present tubercular cough.

Fisch told Hauptmann fascinating stories about the fur business, according to the Henkels, and the carpenter fell for them. He loaned Fisch $5500 at one time, with which he was to buy a large stock of furs.

Later, when Fisch was ready to sail for Germany, he loaned him $2000 more. This is according not only to Hauptmann and his wife and Henkel, but to cable dispatches from Germany based on statements of Fisch's family. Fisch sold stock in various mythical enterprises, one report states. He got $[illegible] from Henkel, $150 from Uhlig, $1000 from an unnamed woman in New Jersey and other sums from many other persons, it appears certain.

(Tomorrow's story will describe a possible link between Fisch and John Hughes Curtis.)

'They're Real Policemen'

OFFICER DOHERTY

EUGENE RIDDLE MILTON WILLIAMS ALPHONSE BALLOU

Even Alphonse Ballou, whose arrest they brought about, had to smile and congratulate his youthful captors, Eugene Riddle, 7, and Milton Williams, 11. The boy sleuths trailed the suspect after he had allegedly taken an automobile robe from a parked car and turned him over to the nearest officer. As a reward, they were driven home in the police car, siren and all, and were they happy. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

X-9 LADS GET THEIR MAN

"What do you make of that man trying the doors to all those cars, Holmes?" said Eugene Riddle, 7, of Village street, South End.

"Well, my dear Watson, by simple deduction, I say he's looking for something," replied Milton Williams, 11, who lives on the same street.

"And I'd say he's found it, Holmes. See, he's taken a robe out of that one," added Eugene.

"My dear Dr. Watson, we'll follow him," was Milton's retort.

And they did until they came abreast of police headquarters. There they signaled a policeman who stopped and questioned the Moriarty of the case.

The man gave his name as Alphonse E. Ballou, 4[illegible], of Ellet street, Dorchester. He was booked for theft of an auto robe.

The police hat was passed for Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson and they were driven home in a prowl car, siren and all.

Both boys are members of the X-9 Club of the Boston Evening American.

BRUNO LAWYER GETS EVIDENCE

By International News Service.

Flemington, N. J., Nov. 22—Lloyd Fisher, associate counsel for Bruno Hauptmann, hinted today that the new facts were emerging which would cause the prosecution to abandon its theory that Hauptmann alone kidnaped and murdered the Lindbergh baby.

Fisher asserted that Frank Wilson, Treasury Department investigator, apparently had been called back into the case because of disagreement on the part of the authorities as to whether one person was to blame for the crime.

Hauptmann, it was learned today, [illegible] disapproved the medical examination made by three physicians yesterday upon Fisher's instructions. The report of the medical men, now in the possession of Sheriff Curtis, differed in one respect from the announcement by Dr. Floyd A. Thomas, the prison's physician, yesterday that Hauptmann is perfectly normal mentally.

Maxwell Gets 18 Months in Escape

Harold J. Maxwell of Schiller road, Dedham, charged with attacking State Senator Samuel H. Wragg and with escape while being conveyed to a penal institution, was found guilty on both counts by Judge Clifford B. Sanborn in Dedham district court today.

He was sentenced to one year on the escape charge and six months on the attack charge, both of which he appealed. He was held in $2000 bond.

While Maxwell was being taken to Dedham jail to serve a year on a larceny charge he allegedly broke away from the officers who had him in custody.

Mystery Ransom Box in Lindy Case Is Traced

By LOU WEDEMAR

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service

New York, Nov. 21—Important evidence bearing on the claim of Bruno Richard Hauptman, charged with the murder of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, that the $14,000 ransom money found in his garage was given him for safe-keeping by a friend, Isidor Fisch, was discovered today by Universal Service.

Alfred Fuchs, Yorkville attorney, announced that a client, Mrs. Augusta Hile, saw Fisch with the box Hauptmann says contained the money. According to Fuchs, Mrs. Hile, a friend of Fisch, was present at a farewell party for Fisch in December of last year when the furrier 'mystery man' was about to sail for Germany.

Fisch arrived late at the party, Mrs. Hile said, carrying a box which he guarded with great care, allowing no one to touch it. He said:

"This is a very valuable box."

Mrs. Hile was puzzled by Fisch's mysterious actions that night, she said, although she had every trust in him. She explained:

"Fisch came to the party very late, and we understood he had gone on an important errand somewhere. When he came in he carried a small box, about which he acted very mysterious.

"He kept it with him every minute he was at the party, and wouldn't tell what was in it. I am convinced now that it contained the Lindbergh ransom money."

After the party he went to Hauptmann's home. According to Hauptmann, Fisch gave him the money with instructions for its care later that night.

Hauptmann says he kept it intact until it became sodden with water from a leaky roof and it burst open. It was then, Hauptmann says, he found the money and took some of it in part payment of a debt Fisch owed him. Fisch died last March in Germany.

This evidence, considered of importance by Hauptmann's defense counsel, has been known to the authorities for some time, but has been kept secret, it was learned.

Mother of 16 in Plea for Aid

A mother from Cambridge gives 16 reasons why she needs clothes. And the 16 reasons are 16 children. All of them lack sufficient clothing. The youngest child in the family is eight.

The woman says if she had some flour bags she could make pillow cases which her family needs badly. They also lack sheets.

A Roxbury resident appeals for a suit and overcoat for her 15-year-old son who is not in good health. Two other boys in the family aged eight and five need clothing. A request for a single bed also was made by the woman.

A solicitous sister-in-law writes in for an overcoat size 36 and suit size 24 for her brother-in-law who is out of work and in severe financial straits. She is unable to aid him since she works part time.

One mother is willing to swap a gas stove and morris chair for shoes size two for her boy of ten, shoes size 1½ for her boy of nine, clothes for her boy of seven and clothes for her girls aged four, 12 and 14.

Please designate size whether giving or asking for clothing.

COURT TO AIR CLANCY VOTE

The Supreme Judicial court will be called upon to decide whether Joseph B. Clancy, Democrat, or Albert Cole, Republican, is the senator from the First Essex district.

Clancy won on the first count by a margin of 267 votes. On the recount, Cole won by five votes. The recount was protested by Clancy through his attorney, Harry C. Mamber, and a temporary writ granted by the court until it can decide who is elected.

If Clancy should be declared elected, the State Senate would be deadlocked 20-20; if Cole should be accepted the winner, the balance of power would go to the Republicans.

Prints Sought in Kidnap Slaying

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 22 (US)—Fingerprints of the fiendish murderer of Dorothy Ann Distelhurst, six, whose body was found in a grave here a week ago while her father waited in New York to pay ransom, are being sought as the result of the discovery of her clothing, books and lunch pail in another grave.

Police hoped that the pail or the books might reveal marks which would identify the slayer.

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

The other evening Mr. Win Brooks of this newspaper raised the question:—what could have happened to turn George Gilbert Alton from the model boy of Uxbridge, Mass., to a confessed auto thief, kidnaper and gunman condemned for life to a California prison?

Robert E. Rogers

It is the same question that is always raised when a clergyman or school teacher or college professor goes wrong.

Win Brooks doesn't know. This ruined boy's pitiful parents do not know. Nobody really knows. Win Brooks suggests that perhaps even the boy doesn't know.

But I doubt that a little. I suspect that probably most men and women who go wrong can remember quite clearly some little episode in their lives, perhaps not very significant, on the surface, but definite enough to be memorable, which serves to indicate the precise place where one ceased being safe and one became definitely unsafe.

I suspect that even decent and respectable people keep down out of sight in their memories some memory of a moment at which they might have gone irretrievably wrong—and didn't.

The sort of thing that makes one very [illegible] in other people's hearing—"there but for the grace of God go I."

Not Environment

But one thing I am sure of—that it isn't environment that chiefly matters. That blind faith of the 18th and 19th Century in environment won't wash, in spite of the collective opinion of all the social workers and penologists and sociologists in the world.

Black sheep come from parsonages. Ministers' sons and deacons' daughters have a proverb all their own. You can't even count on twins.

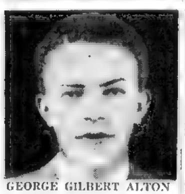
And in the slums of Hell's Kitchen and Five Points grow up decent, honest, respectable, law-abiding and God fearing people, however poor, who live untouched by evil.

There's a kink in the brain, a kink in what for want of a better name we call the soul. Maybe inherited, maybe not, but there.

It may be lucky enough never to develop. It may be a late growth. Or it may show itself in childhood. It may be in all of us. It may be only in a sorrowful few.

I am sure of another thing. That when it develops there's no help in that point of view which considers it the business of society to reform and redeem its victim.

Clarence Darrow believes such sin and crime is inevitable and therefore must not be punished.



GEORGE GILBERT ALTON

It is quite as logical to consider that since it is inevitable it must be wiped out—and the victim with it—either put aside out of society forever or destroyed as a mad animal must be destroyed, for the sake of society.

It occurs to me that possibly George Gilbert Alton's environment was too perfect. Everything, apparently, was made soft and pleasant for him.

Little Black Spot

Possibly he was brought up to believe the world a very pleasant and mild place, with "all things for the best in the best of all possible worlds."

Possibly he had been used to quiet and unquestioning obedience, to his parents, his teacher, his Sunday school teacher, the grown-ups of his circle.

And possibly when he left home and ran into people who picked up a young and rather innocent boy and suggested to him what he ought to do and he obeyed them, too.

Maybe there had been nothing in his life to develop any sturdy resistance on his part.

Or maybe, he had bided his time in quiet and circumscribed Uxbridge bored to death, crazy to be off and doing something, silent, biding his time.

Perhaps the contrast between quiet, dull, pleasant Uxbridge and the life he read about in the papers, read about in the magazines, saw in the films, gave him the jitters until he got away and tried it out.

Or maybe—my first suggestion—it was just a little black spot in him, unseen by all, known to him alone, that grew and grew until it destroyed him.

James M. Barrie tells of that in a little play entitled "The Will." The little black spot that is in all of us—latent—but which the lucky ones escape.

It really doesn't do much good to wonder about what happened to George Gilbert Alton.

DO YOU NEED A GOOD PET? CHIMPANZEE WANTS HOME

She's a Very Smart Girl---For a Monkey

CHIMPANZEE CAN PLAY PIANO AND EVERYTHING; WANTS HOME

New York, Nov. 22—Meshie Raven—she's a cultured chimpanzee, jungle born but studio reared and versed in dialects of Tarzan—is seeking a nurse maid's post in a quiet, refined home.

References will be exchanged.

Here are hers:

Born Feb. 29, 1929, in West Africa. Mother a respectable tree wife. Father unknown.

Mother killed by Negro tribesmen in 1930 and baby adopted by Dr. Harry Raven of the Museum of Natural History. Christened Meshie in 1931. Migrated to New York in 1931 and reared with children.

Qualifications:

Meshie plays chop-sticks on pianos, eats with fork and cares for babies.

Dr. Raven is quite upset over separation from Meshie. The scientist became her guardian after tribesmen mobbed her mother with poison darts and feasted on her stringy meat. He fetched the chimpanzee here to grow with his children—Jane, 19; Harry, 6, and Mary, 19 months.

Meshie learned faster than the youngsters until they began to talk. She could hammer nails before the children could hold their bottles—so Meshie would hold them and snitch a swig on the side. But at five the brute's brain virtually has stopped developing, while the children's are just beginning.

Her guardian soon will make a trip to Burma and must part with his ward. He insists she get a good home. She fears only snakes.

When scolded, she sobs, but when petted she giggles. She likes music and about the only thing she doesn't understand is Gertrude Stein—which makes her almost human.

'PERTINENT' TOO MUCH FOR 145 STUDENTS

The freshmen at Boston University knew the definition of most of the words but——

Two-thirds of the incoming freshmen in their annual vocabulary exam did not know the meaning of "pertinent." The replies varied. Five said the word meant "vague," 24 "aggressive," 16 "saucy."

Among the common mistakes were that "empirical" means "regal," and that "sinister" should be defined as "guilty."

And few, very few answered correctly on "specious." Some wrote "kind," some "bullion," some "roomy."

"Specious," the examiners pointed out, means "misleading."

CRIME KNOCKS

By Universal Service

New York, Nov. 22—Henry Goddard Leach, editor of Forum Magazine, completed an editorial for his publication on the prevalence of crime and shortly afterward was beaten and robbed by two thugs as he walked homeward in Central Park.

Leach was knocked unconscious and $40 in cash and his valuables taken from him.

Wrong Idea

WORK PROGRAM EXPLAINED BY MISS PERKINS

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, in Boston last night to speak on what she termed "a matter of the most vital importance" took time out to say that President Roosevelt's recent utterances regarding his proposed social and economic security program "had suffered from misinterpretation in print."

Although many of the nation's newspapers bannered the interpretation that "Insurance for All Jobless Is F. R.'s Demand," Miss Perkins pointed out that the President, in his conference with his aids, was seeking advice rather than making demands.

Miss Perkins also emphasized that the President indicated and equal [illegible] health insurance and provision for youthful dependents and that "unemployment [illegible] those now at work."

Frances Perkins

In effect, she said, the President asked the assembled group of government workers whom he had assigned last summer to study the numerous and varied phases of his social security plan to advise him on their findings. She continued:

"On the subject of unemployment insurance, the President stated that he felt there should be no question of temporizing—that it was a matter of immediate concern.

"It is obvious to the least initiated that no plan for unemployment insurance can be a solution for those who now are unemployed. If you have never paid a premium you cannot be covered by insurance."

Laws Due Soon

Expressing confidence that unemployment insurance legislation of a sound type will be enacted at the coming session of Congress,

RICHEST GIRL ALL ALONE ON HER 22nd BIRTHDAY

The blonde, vivacious Doris Duke, the richest girl in the world, heiress of the cigarette millions, has another birthday. She's 22 and still single.

Doris 22 And Still Single

RICHEST GIRL IN WORLD ALONE ON BIRTHDAY

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 22—The richest girl in the world—blonde, astute, mythical, accordion-playing Doris Duke of the cigarette millions—had another birthday today.

She's 22, and at 22 she is more of a legend than Sherlock Holmes, Diamond Jim Brady or Queen Mary's hat.

More stories have grown around her than around Cal Coolidge and, if you listen, you can believe either that she spends less for her hats than a shopgirl or that she bathes in a golden bathtub.

She has $53,000,000 and nine automobiles. She wears gold lame made carelessly like a shirtwaist and bathing suits with halter necklines. She goes to the movies, and wears a diamond tiara given her by her mother, who said:

"I don't think we ought to spend a great deal on presents in times like these."

She plays the accordion. She goes to [illegible] but not [illegible] she would if her [illegible] were not always glittering around her neck.

She is slender and pretty, but few people know it because she ducks from cameras, and when the photographers do get her the pictures almost always show her with her head turned, her mouth half open in protest or her eyes closed.

The important thing about Doris Duke still is she's single.

True, she wears a diamond ring the size of a postage stamp but no one has ever [illegible] to admit that it came from Jimmy [illegible] Cromwell, [illegible] persistently rumored of her suitors, or any of the other eligible neighbors.

Since she came into her inheritance in November, the girl that has [illegible] the tobacco heiress from childhood was doubled. Kidnaping threats have been received but a kidnaper would have to storm an impregnable double wall of mystery and bodyguards. Few people ever set eyes on Doris Duke, fewer talk to her, or [illegible] her [illegible] know where she is.

THAT $20,000

Needham Reward to Be Held for a Time

The $20,000 reward to be paid to the person who brought about the conviction of the Needham bank robbers will be returned to the state for the present. It was appropriated by Governor Ely and the Executive Council from the $100,000 emergency fund.

The reward will not be paid for some time to come and because of the [illegible] emergency fund the money will be returned awaiting [illegible] to pay it.

CUPID OUT

For Beauty

By International News Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 22—Miss America of 1933 has no intention of being married next spring, hoping to launch herself on a dramatic career, the beauty revealed today.

Reports from the East had indicated that Miss Marian Bergeron, 17-year-old beauty prize winner at Atlantic City in 1933, would marry Mortimer Lewis of Atlantic City next spring.

Miss Bergeron, whose home is in New Haven, Ct., is on a tour of the United States, accompanied by her mother, engaging in singing and dancing with orchestras.

ARAB 'MURPHY'

Lynn Syrian's Will Leaves $8000

A will written in Arabic and signed "John Murphy" was allowed in Salem Probate Court by Judge Edward B. O'Brien.

Diad Abo Shawareb, alias Diab Sharib, of Clough street, Lynn, signing the will "John Murphy," as he did his bank accounts, left the major part of his $8000 estate to his widow, Mrs. Mary Sharib, and their six children. He was a Syrian and wrote the will in Arabic five days before his death, September 23.

SAILOR'S NOTE TO GIRL

Thanks to Silas French, inmate of Long Island Hospital at Boston harbor, Sailor Jim Jennings' note to an Irish lass named H. Maloney is now winging its way to her home at Carrows, Annefield, Hollymount, County Mayo, Irish Free State.

The note, found by French in a bottle floating in the harbor waters, was written on the turquoise-blue stationery of the White Star Line's M. V. Britannic.

According to Jennings, it had been "thrown overboard about 7 miles east of Boston" and requested the finder to mail to the young woman "and oblige Jim Jennings."

The note, which was sent to the Boston Evening American by French, has been forwarded to Miss Maloney.

O. O. McIntyre
NEW YORK
DAY BY DAY

New York, Nov. 22—Greater New York has harbored 17 first novel authors since first of the year. Hollywood, which has become a rival literary center, [illegible] up a lot of [illegible]. The total over America offering [illegible] has exceeded a half hundred.

Despite this enormous output the book publishers offer very little encouragement. Indeed, Thomas R. Coward, one of the up and at 'em book makers, has sounded this warning to the novitiate. The [illegible] graph [illegible] must but don't write. He says first novels rarely make money.

O. O. McIntyre

There are exceptions of course, such as Zane Grey and Michael Arlen. Yet as a rule they lose money for the publisher and do not pay for the author's time and trouble. Many first novels do not earn the $250 advance. If the sale reaches 3,000 copies the publisher is pleased.

It would seem the beginner starting from scratch must have an income or steady paying job on the side or cannot support himself. [illegible] more hopeless is the writing of poetry. The great ones such as Robinson and McKay make pitifully small incomes.

Their poetical flights may not be financially productive but they like [illegible] salve the bruises of failure more than any other endeavor.

Smart Claudette

"To fly up into the face of the worlds. Worlds of human balances gone askew. Of hatreds crying after war, of suffering, of poverty and wrong. To lose fancy words and pretty phrases in such a time seems almost a fiddling among the flames, a singing in thunder."

Thingumabobs: Charles Hanson Towne's forthcoming novel foliates a romance of the deep South with a gay '90 finale in New York . . . The Dana Burnetts dog will never come from under the bed when visitors call . . . Claudette Colbert has exercised native French thrift during her movie career and can quit any day without worrying over the future . . . Ivor Novello, English stage exquisite, buys hand knitted silk sox at $28 a pair . . . All that Jimmy Walker has left out of the wreckage is a star sapphire appraised at $12,500 . . . Yvonne Printemps insists her salary be paid in French francs . . . So our money isn't good enough!

Hogarth would have found fertile field for his vinegar etchings in the curb market types of Orchard street. Gnarled, toothless and shawled women couchant at their push carts and in constant haggle with customers.

CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

Those shuffling derelicts Wells describes with perpetual dew-drops at their nose tips. In the crescendo of bargaining the fate of the world hangs on the turn of a penny. Every upstairs window is filled with a leaning figure jabbering in across the street gossip.

Tenement children, sewed up for the winter, are constantly escaping death by an eye-lash in the street roar. It's unbelievably mad and hectic.

Yet somehow there are few tragedies save the perpetual one of wretched poverty.

Swank in Bowery

No incongruity in the Bowery's constant economic coma is so pronounced as the spanking jewelry establishment recently opened near the southern approach to Park Row.

It is glisteningly modern, with three large window displays. Inside is the soft carpeted dignity of the uptown ateliers with a clerkly correct sales force and everything suggesting a "carriage trade."

All about are pawn shops, one flight up lodging houses, hurry lunches and cheapjohn jingle. A swank jewelry shop on the Bowery in a depression is worth a passing gasp.

From an antique journal: "The duck-shaped gourd has been in the Kentucky family 110 years, quenching the thirst of four generations and is now a museum piece valued at $800."

As Rob Wagner would say: "Good gourd!"

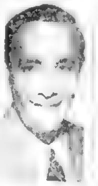
Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser --- Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

'CALLING ALL STARS' GIVEN PREMIERE -:- 'THE WHITE PARADE' OPENS AT KEITH'S

Flock of Stars Win Laurels in Lew Brown's Snappy New Musical Show

Lew Brown shouldn't have any difficulty in "Calling All Stars." In fact so successfully as Mr Brown summoned his headliners, and so [illegible] in the response, that the answer [illegible] at the Shubert last evening, when Boston's biggest first night crowd turned out and stayed until the final colorful curtain.



Phil Baker

There's an abs[illegible] ment of riches, starting off with a bevy of pretty show [illegible] phoning America's most publicized celebrities, and an off stage voice (belonging to a youngster named Al Bernie) refusing their importunities until they page Phil Baker himself who obliges at once and thereby started a ball a-rolling that never once lost its momentum, despite the vicissitudes of a first night.

Once Mr. Baker and his accordion are joined by Lou Holtz and that mad pair [illegible] set pretty convulsing comedy, it begins to look as if the men drew the honors. But all that's dispelled when Mitzi Mayfair['s] choice and cheerful a little [illegible] as can be found in any [illegible] paradise, lends a bit of decorum and decoration to the far from gentle humors of the gentlemen.

By this time the evening loomed large and when Jack Whiting loaned his personable presence and good voice and Patricia Bowman danced with exquisite grace and Everett Marshall sang "I've Nothing to Offer," and an unheralded little girl named Judy Conova stopped the show with a [illegible] personality and a world of charm and Al Bernie brought all Hollywood right before your eyes there was such a surfeit of good things that no one ever minded waiting for Gertrude Niesen who was held in reserve until the second act.

Miss Niesen does things with that voice of hers. An exotic type of beauty, a make-up that borders on the bizarre enhances a startling personality and is, we suppose, pretty apt for her torch type of song to which a trifle of coloratura is added in spots. A radio favorite of long standing she has plenty, and if her diction could be cleared up there is every reason to believe that she will present a challenge to the girls who sing hot and sweet and low.

Of the delights of Mr Baker, with Harry McNaughton as the dumb stooge and another good old vaudevillian, Lou Holtz, dropping cigar ashes and wisecracks from a stage box, there are no [illegible] eulogies to be written. The [illegible] excruciatingly f[illegible] or trio and [illegible] brand of [illegible] probably isn't one [illegible] few who will complain about [illegible] Broadway will love it and "Calling All Stars" is after all, [illegible] Broadway.

[illegible] and the Kitchen P[illegible] girl and three [illegible] were others [illegible] praise going [illegible] next act in the [illegible] dancing [illegible] had a chance to [illegible].

[illegible] a feminine Joe [illegible] just as much [illegible] the en[illegible] work [illegible] and fast, [illegible] break for [illegible] A. Bernie its [illegible] his George [illegible] his Rudy [illegible] he happens [illegible] Ed Wynne takes [illegible] He's more like Ar[illegible] than George himself.

As might be anticipated there [illegible] few of the well known [illegible] some good, some not [illegible] of the latter one [illegible] will undoubtedly feel the pruning knife before Man[illegible] gets a glimpse of the [illegible] Lew Brown himself, A. Dorian Otvos, [illegible] euphonic [illegible] and H. I. Phillips are responsible for them and among the best are [illegible] Last of the Hill Billys with Paw snooping for the theatrical agents lurking in the Kentucky Hills for Broadway headliners, "Lethargy," reminiscent of the frightfully French sketch in Life Begins at 8:40 but even funnier and "The Love Life of Scott" by Alan Baxter, a bit rough but grand in its broad humor.

Maurice L. Kussel has achieved wonders with the dancers and ensembles, all of which are modernistic enough to escape being ordinary and crammed full of [illegible] and brilliant costuming. It's been a long while since anything has been so pleasing to the eye as the foggy greys, whites and blacks of the dances which follow "I've Nothing to Offer," or the flaming Spanish colors of another of Greta Nissen's numbers, "Just Mention Joe." And to add still another new name to the list of potential stars, there's a tiny girl named Ella Logan, who shows lots in the ways of songs, dances and personality.

The tunes with music by Harry Akst are the kind you'll want to whistle, particularly those put over by Jack Whiting and Everett Marshall who had the house in an uproar with the first act finale "Straw Hat in the Rain," with the chorus in slickers and straw hats and a rain curtain between the footlights and the audience. Sara Mildred Strauss deserves a couple of palm leaves for staging the dances. [illegible] Livingstone and Vera [illegible] for the costumes and Harold Winston for lending his collaboration to Mr Brown in the dialogue and sketches.

It's a grand show, the best Boston has had in the way of musicals since "As Thousands Cheer." To be sure there's too much of it and it's a shame to shear it. There are bound to be a few luscious blossoms nipped off with the buds.

Loretta Young and John Boles Score in Film of Life in Big City Hospital

By ANN AMES

What the late Florenz Ziegfeld did for the American girl in general, Jesse Lasky has done for the army of young women who toil long and arduously in the profession of nursing in "The White Parade," current screen attraction at the Keith Memorial Theater.

The panorama behind the scenes in a hospital in Union City glorifies the Lady With the Lamp, and between its heartthrobs which are many, and its romantic interludes, which are reserved for one night a week until midnight, there is a deserving tribute to the sincerity of a noble profession.

Among the young pretty and homesick probationers is Loretta Young, as June Arden, a level-headed girl, inspired in her chosen career by a genuine love of service and suffering humanity. June withstands the stern discipline and the dull drudgery of training like a little major, even though a handsome and wealthy gentleman polo-player is desperately in love with her. John Boles is the ardent swain, and through the three years, with commendable patience, he waits for his future bride to win her R. N.

In the meantime, life and death and joy and tragedy, play their parts in the great hospital. Dorothy Wilson as Zita, another student nurse, falls in love with a selfish young interne, overstays her late night out once too often and is about to be expelled. Overwrought and uncomforted by the man she loves, Zita gets hold of the key to the narcotic cabinet, available through June's carelessness, and takes an overdose of drugs. On the eve of graduation, June is faced with expulsion, until a veteran nurse and a staff doctor intercede in her behalf.

There are other human interest stories woven into the tangled lives of the participants in "The White Parade." There are some touching scenes in the nursery where June breaks down at her first glimpse of death.

And if the film leans heavily on the sentimental side it's perhaps just as well to sugar-coat the grim side of life. One might wish, however, that the director had not carried his touch of whimsy quite so far as to permit Miss Young to recite the "Night Before Christmas" to day-old babies.

Loretta Young's acting abilities are put to the test and come through with flying colors. She is sweet and pretty as always, and does exceptionally well in a difficult emotional role. It's hard to believe in her renunciation of love and luxury, and it speaks well for her talents that she makes these scenes of sacrifice so convincing. John Boles keeps a stiff upper lip in a routine part, and the best performance in the picture is given by Jane Darwell as "Sailor," the veteran nurse who masks her sympathies under a gruff and hard-boiled efficiency. Sara Haden plays the head nurse most effectively, and among the student nurses who successfully decorate the dormitories are Dorothy Wilson, Muriel Kirkland, Astrid Allwyn, Joyce Compton and June Gittelson.

Jean Harlow, Myrna Loy and William Powell in 'Wife Versus Secretary' Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright 1934, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 22.—Spotlight, please! Jean, Bill and Myrna all in one picture. And not a jealous moment in the whole star setup. These three pals and good friends are to be the principals in a screen drama, based on Faith Baldwin's coming novel, "Wife Versus Secretary," to be produced for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by Hunt Stromberg.

Louella O. Parsons

The Baldwin story will give Miss Harlow, Mr. Powell and Miss Loy an equal break, and since all three of them want a good picture more than anything else, you won't find any bitter battles raging for screen supremacy.

A test sent from London worked wonders for Errol Flynn, British matinee idol. Irving Asher, in charge of Warner Brothers' European productions, sent a test of Flynn to Jack Warner, who promptly cabled Irving to sign the tall, dark and virile Irishman. Mr. Flynn is coming here the first of the year and—girls, according to J. L. he is something to see, romantic, handsome and with a background. The boy has had adventures, it seems, and is a soldier of fortune.

Last year Dwight Taylor, a son of Laurette and author of "The Gay Divorcee," wrote "Two on a Tower" for the Broadway stage. For some reason it was never possible to get a satisfactory cast, so the play was postponed. Meanwhile Paramount had a look at the Taylor drama and bought it for the movies with Mary Ellis, well known musical comedy favorite, as the lead. Cary Grant, who used to sing when he was Archie Leach, is suggested for the lead opposite Miss Ellis.

Snapshots of Hollywood

ANN HARDING and her ex-husband, HARRY BANNISTER, creating no end of attention when they walked into the MARY BLACKFORD benefit together; ENA ROGELL in one party, and her husband, AL ROGELL, who is suing her for divorce, with another group. Later they talked together for the first time since they started their domestic battle; WILL ROGERS took over the expense of the benefit up to Tuesday night, then JOAN CRAWFORD stepped in and paid for the remaining expenses; over $6000 will be realized, making it possible for MARY BLACKFORD to have her operation; BEN FRANK reports never in its history has the Ambassador been as crowded for any function; SALLY EILERS sold BARBARA STANWYCK one of the biggest blocks of tickets and one of the most popular male stars in the business sent his check for $500, requesting his name be kept a secret; MAURICE CHEVALIER visiting our KAY FRANCIS on her set at Warner Brothers; JOHN DAVIDSON and BETTY WILBUR, engaged for three years, have parted; JEANETTE MacDONALD, hostess at a small buffet dinner next Thursday night; DOLORES DEL RIO to be godmother to the baby of her stand-in, CARMEN LA RUE. CARMEN has been DOLORES' stand-in or "step-in" as SHIRLEY TEMPLE says, for nine years; NICHOLAS and PANSY SCHENCK besieged with invitations, PANSY guest of honor at several luncheons planned for her. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Brussels Chauffeurs Riot

Brussels, Nov. 22 (US)—Serious rioting broke out in Brussels when striking chauffeurs were joined by unemployed Communists and Socialists in street demonstrations. Forty were arrested.

PILES SUFFER NO MORE!

No more pain! No more itching or scratching! No more torture when you sit or walk! No more torment at the stool! The relief of Piles has now been solved. No matter what the form of Piles you suffer from—painful, itching, bleeding, blind or protruding—genuine relief for you lies in Pazo Ointment.

Pazo not only stops the pain and itching and makes defecation easy, but it tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole. This is because Pazo is threefold in effect. It is (1) soothing, (2) healing, (3) absorbing. Thus it not only allays the inflammation and repairs torn tissue, but actually reduces the swollen blood vessels, which are Piles. The method of application makes Pazo doubly effective. Perforated Pile Pipe attached to tube reaches high up in the rectum and thoroughly medicates all affected parts. Get Pazo today at any drug store and see the relief it means. You will be more than amazed, more than grateful.

Joe Penner in New Film on Metropolitan Screen

"College Rhythm," Paramount's musical comedy romance with Joe Penner and his famous duck, Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie, Lyda Roberti and Mary Brian heading a star cast, comes to the screen at the Metropolitan tomorrow. The story centers around the campus rivalry of a piccolo player and an All-American halfback, both in love with the same girl. The musical score is by Gordon and Revel.

Sharing honors back of the footlights is a new Broadway musical revue featuring America's newest all girl musical organization, Ina Ray Hutton and her Melodears. Miss Hutton and her talented girls top a cast of favorites which includes Hal Sherman, Inez King, the Frazee Sisters, Ruth Bradley, the Three Cossacks, Rosette and Luttman.

At the Keith Boston starting tomorrow is "Lady by Choice," co-featuring Carole Lombard and May Robson, with Roger Pryor and Walter Connolly in the supporting cast.

Ranny Weeks heads another gala vaudeville bill at the Keith Boston which will feature the Hickey Brothers, Britt Wood, Bert Prival, Janine Jarroll, Bob Dillon, Tom Harty, Virginia Gibson and the Kan Tai Trio.

With Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire as stars, "The Gay Divorcee," tuneful romance which introduces the "Continental," takes over the screen at the Scollay Square. Alice Brady and Edward Everett Horton add to the comedy in the clever story. On the stage top honors go to Cookie Bowers, clever impersonator, billed as "Movie Cartoon's Mouthpiece."

Cagney Film, Modern Bill

"Dangerous Corner," from the novel by J. B. Priestley, comes to the screen at the Modern on Saturday, where the companion picture will be "The St. Louis Kid," starring James Cagney.

The cast of "Dangerous Corner," another of the best sellers by the author of "The Good Companions," features Virginia Bruce, Melvyn Douglas, Conrad Nagel, Erin O'Brien Moore, Henry Wadsworth, Ian Keith and Betty Furness in the cast.

Knock Out that COLD!

Give It No Chance To Get Going!

A cold once underway is a cold hard to drive away! Let no cold endanger you. At the first chill or sneeze take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It usually makes short work of a cold because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it gets at a cold from the inside. A cold, you know, is an internal infection and calls for internal treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine means COMPLETE relief because it is COMPLETE treatment. It does all the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the action you want and anything less is taking chances. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute.

U. S. NAVY DEAL IS BARRED

By Universal Service

Washington, Nov. 22.—President Roosevelt has instructed the State Department [illegible] to make [illegible] naval [illegible] delegates at London and if necessary to withdraw from them [illegible], Universal Service learned.

The president's decision means that America will make no pact with Japan on any other than [illegible] present [illegible] and insisting that the [illegible] ratio of the Washington treaty be [illegible].

Japan May Junk Naval Pact

[illegible]

Tokyo, Nov. 22.—Japan has no intention of [illegible] the United States [illegible] strength but will continue to demand the right to parity [illegible] of force, to denounce the Washington naval treaty [illegible] a government spokesman declared here.

The spokesman [illegible] objected to the argument that the United States [illegible] requires a navy larger than Japan's for its protection. He said:

"To say that the United States has two long coastlines to guard and Japan only one is an unfair argument. Such measurements cannot be used as a yardstick to determine the size and strength of navies.

"The trade routes of America and Britain parallel those of Japan. We buy enormous quantities of raw materials for manufacturing and huge amounts of foodstuffs for consumption.

"To balance these purchases we must ship manufactured goods to foreign markets, making commerce a vital point in our existence and power. We must be assured of clear trade lanes. Our merchantmen operate regular world-wide services."

WASHINGTON NEWS AT CROSS PURPOSES

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The news from Washington, or from Washingtonians, continues to run hot then cold. Waiting for this market to retreat when the tape so obviously shows the need of some correction is about as tiresome a task as we ever tackled. The industrials seem determined to stay up even though the rails turn out of their sidewise trading rut on the downside On all sides we are told that the market [illegible] a one group proposition, that we should forego our allegiance to the Dow theory Perhaps But none of this is new. We have heard it before. And out-waited the "new dealers" in market theory. A market moving as a unit is the only sound market, in our opinion.

Action of Market Bewildering to Wall St. Traders

By WALL STREET SPECTATOR

[illegible] against Rails and traction have been following each other with such bewildering rapidity in the last few days as to leave Wall Street more confused than it has been in some time.

Poor action of the rails is beginning to give the boys the jitters

And car loadings estimates for last week are around 5000 down, which is less than seasonal, with the armistice day holiday an influence in the decline [illegible] of the bears on the rails are optimistic on business generally for they expect big things in the steel [illegible] and automobile industries next year . . . Maybe they think that the shipments are going to be made by carrier pigeon.

Rumor is adding International Business Machines as the latest candidate for a melon.

'Tis said that the stock will be split two for one and that the new issue will be placed on a $1 annual basis . . . Burroughs Adding Machine, another in the industry, will pay a 5 per cent dividend, according to reports. . . .

BOSTON STOCKS ARE MIXED

Prices were partly mixed in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Trading was very quiet.

Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred [illegible] while American Telephone, New England Telephone and United Shoe were up a like amount.

United Fruit and New Haven registered fractional gains.

American Woolen preferred was down more than 1, while Edison, Gillette and Old Colony railroad were fractionally lower

Daily Stock Analysis

Company—Pacific Mills. One of the largest textile manufacturers and finishers in the world Products consist of cotton, wool silk and rayon. For women's and children's clothing from lingerie to dresses and suits; men's underwear shirts and lightweight suits; draperies, sheets, shoe linings and automobile upholstery.

Capitalization—No Funded debt. No preferred stocks. Common shares number 396,123 of no par [illegible] shareholders exchanged their old $100 par stock for present shares in August, 1934, for present stock on a share-for-share basis. Notes payable are in the sum of $5,535,000 due in good part to inventory

Earnings—In 1933 the company ended a three-year income famine when it reported earnings of $4.55 per share So far this year (6 months) $2.25 per share has been shown Outlook for final half is considered as fairly bright although, as is the case with most textiles, the real hopes are placed in 1935.

Dividends—The first payment made on the common stock in many years was voted by the directors this year when 50 cents per [illegible] However, with any sort of an upturn next year more liberal treatment is possible, as the readjustment of the common stock put the company in better shape.

Comment—Investors seeking a semi long term holding in the textile group might do worse than consider Pacific Mills. The company has put its financial house in [illegible] to a reasonable inventory policy, judging by current indications. Rising trade volume plus better prices now predicted should stimulate earnings early in 1935.

Bank Clearings

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Bank clearings in the principal cities of the United States during the week end[illegible] to $4,584,949,000, a loss of 3.1 per cent from the $4,731,257,000 reported in the same week last year, according to reports to Dun & Bradstreet.

Prices Narrow in Dull Bond Trading

By Associated Press

New York, Nov. 22—Bond prices failed to develop any significant trend today, and quotations fluctuated within narrow limits in most instances.

U. S. Treasury issues worked moderately higher, including guaranteed obligations. Treasury 3s of 1951-55 gained 5-32 of a point at 100 9-32, while the 3⅜s of 1941 rose 4-32 to 103 14-32

Rail bonds were uneven and hesitant, but except for loss of nearly two points in New York Central 5s of 2013, which declined to 55½, changes were confined to fractions. Erie 5s of 1975 gained ¾ of a point at 66½, and Great Northern 4½s, Missouri Pacific 5s and Union Pacific 4s improved Pennsylvania 4¼s, Southern Pacific 4½s and Baltimore & Ohio 4½s declined

Among the Utilities, American Telephone 5s of 1965 dipped ⅛ to 109⅞, while Consolidated Gas 5½s, International Telephone 5s and Duquesne Light 4½s eased

Industrial issues showed little change. Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s, National Dairy 5¼s and Armour & Co. 4½s improved slightly, but Texas Corp. 5s and American Smelting 5s dipped

BANKERS ARE SEEN AS MORE HOPEFUL

By B. C. FORBES

Even Wall Street bankers, long fearful that America was headed for the bow-wows, have become less gloomy.

Some of them now tell that the worst is over. They are looking for trustworthy borrowers

B. C. Forbes

They are encouraged by President Roosevelt's friendly overtures to employers. They are encouraged also by the latest expressions regarding the importance of limiting governmental expenditures. They are hopeful that Washington will not permit organized labor to run amuck.

For some reason or other, this improvement in sentiment has not yet been reflected by improvement in security quotations. It is logical, however, to look for the transformation in sentiment to be registered by security prices

Industrialists are also becoming more optimistic. I find that leaders who were long chronically pessimistic now are hopeful that better times can be brought about

If business and industrial giants fail to seize the present opportunity to start America moving ahead, the consequences would be unpredictable. I, for one, believe that sufficient initiative and energy will be exercised to effect betterment in employment, in activity, in securities, in sentiment.

Letters bombarded this column following the remarks made by a banker concerning the extremely low rates for money current in Wall Street. Apparently it was not made sufficiently clear that the money rates quoted in Wall Street refer to borrowing by stock exchange brokers on choice collateral, readily marketable. One typical "kick" from a reader that he couldn't raise money at any such figures as those quoted was forwarded to a banker; here is his explanation

"Call money for brokers is going at 1 per cent and so is time money for brokers. This is different from loans to individuals in that the security is, of course, the best and well diversified and there is no implied obligation to renew or carry the maker beyond the date of maturity.

"Banks are very much interested in making loans to individuals, secured by well diversified collateral with a listed market value, at 3 per cent and even less.

"The trouble is that most individuals when they see rates of this kind quoted think of them in connection with local collateral that does not have a listed market value or is not diversified. When a broker comes to his bank for money for 60 days, he means 60 days and not six months or as long as he wishes to carry it, which is generally the case with individuals."

That 3 per cent charge interests me, because I have been paying 4 per cent on what would seem to me to be an abundantly secured loan.

The prospect now is that borrowers able to offer adequate security will find bankers ready to do business. Bankers are just as anxious to find work for their idle funds as unemployed individuals are to find work

Since President Roosevelt took office, the public debt has increased $291,000,000 monthly, or almost $10,000,000 daily. Hence, the imperative necessity for enlisting the cooperation of industry to better our economic conditions

The steel industry's taxes have more than doubled since 1930. The utility and some other industries have fared even worse

The New York Times, referring to Senator Borah's demand for investigation of shocking waste in the administration of federal relief funds, says, editorially:

"In more than one state there was an administrative cost of more than $1 for every dollar given in relief. That these things ought not to be and are worse than a scandal, all must agree."

Yet not a few politicians are clamorously seeking to convince the public that they should be entrusted with the carrying on of all kinds of industries and businesses. They claim that they possess business ability brilliantly transcending that of experienced business men

Administration of relief has been in the hands of politicians rather than of business leaders.

Behold the results!

Grains Firm in Chicago Trading

Chicago, Nov. 22 (INS)—A firm under-tone prevailed in grain futures today influenced by the strength in foreign markets. Trade was fairly active. Wheat was ⅛ to ⅝c higher, corn ⅛ to ½c up and oats ¼ to ½c advanced.

Wheat, new: Dec. 99¼-⅛; May 98⅛-½; July 92¼-⅜

Corn, new: Dec. 84⅝-85¼; May 85⅝-⅞, July 83½-84. Old: Dec. 85-85¼.

Oats, new: Dec. 53¼; May 50⅝-¾; July 46⅜.

MARKET WORKS HIGHER, LED BY RAILS

New York, Nov. 22—Buying of the rails firmed the stock market in late trading today after early hesitancy.

Demand for the rails became apparent shortly before the final hour, as Atchison began to appear on the tape more frequently, and quickly converted fractional losses into gain of more than a point. New York Central, New Haven, Southern Pacific and Southern Railway also gained fractionally.

STEEL IN DEMAND

United States Steel was in good demand most of the day and gained more than half a point. Bethlehem, American Can and other old-time favorites were in fair demand during the final hour and closed with gains running to a point.

The stand of the New York Public Service Commission on higher rates for utilities in the event of increased taxes brought renewed strength into the power and light shares. Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas, Public Service of N. J. and others scored gains of fractions to a point.

American Telephone was particularly strong, advancing more than a point to a new high on the recovery.

ON SIDELINES

National Distillers advanced when the company announced there would be no new offering of shares to stockholders at the time because of discontinuance of negotiations with Distillers Co., Ltd., of Great Britain and the recent improvement in domestic sales.

There were a number of regular dividends declared, including those of National Lead and Gillette, but most of the favorable disbursements appeared to have been discounted.

With Washington stimulus apparently lacking, a number of ordinarily active operators were reported to be hugging the sidelines until a clearer view of the equities market outlook can be obtained.

The railroad question continued to hold the attention of financial analysts. Although government authorities recently warned that loans to the carriers would not be as free as in the past, it was believed in some quarters that the Administration's policy is to tide the transportation companies over until Congress gets down to work and then try to effect remedial legislation. At the same time it was admitted that just what constitutes "remedial legislation" may be a matter of considerable argument.

SEE UPTURN IN TEXTILES

The Brookmire Economist says today, the textile industry can look forward to increasing business in 1935 on the basis of its normal cyclical movement. While few things in the economic picture move with clock-like uniformity, the tendency for textile activity to alternate in one year of rise and one year of decline is well defined—like the ebb and flow of the tides.

It is also well to bear in mind the importance of the textile industry. According to the manufacturing census, the textile industry normally employs more workers and has a greater payroll than any other industry.

It is instructive to trace this alternating tendency on charts. Since 1922, the alteration of rising and falling years has been regular. In 1926, the trend was horizontal, rather than downward, but the tendency to slow down was apparent.

It is significant that even in the severe business decline of 1930 to 1932, textile activity registered a gain in 1931, and it was the only one of the major industries to go counter to the main trend. The decline in 1934 occurred on schedule, following which a rise is due to occur in 1935.

TIMELY HINTS FOR THE SNAPPY HOST OR HOSTESS

What to Do When the Guests Begin Their Nervous Tattoo of Under-Table Foot Tapping

What people need today is relaxation from the strain and worry of the busy day at the office they had three months ago. Why sit like a tramp on a log after the pie a la mode? Let's all try to learn a few after dinner accomplishments. When conversation lags do tricks! Here's one which we present from "The Boys' Own Book of Indoor Sports and Parlor Amusements," published in 1787.

"Borrow two hats, which you place upon a table, drawing attention to the fact that there is nothing under either of them. Select a cube of sugar and pass it around so everybody will be able to recognize it again. You then announce that you will undertake to swallow the sugar and yet, after a few minutes, cause it to appear under either of the two hats the company may select! Everybody will raise an eyebrow of skepticism—or expecct some ingenious slight-of-hand. All are on the qui vive. This makes you the center of attraction as you crush the cube of sugar between your teeth and swallow same. Then! With the greatest nonchalance imaginable, you ask, "Under which hat shall I bring the cube of sugar?" The choice having been proclaimed, you complete the performance by . . . nothing more than placing the designated hat upon your own head! Needless to say, the discomfiture of the company gives way to applause when everyone realizes he has been made to 'feel like thirty cents,' as the saying goes."

Executive Secretary of the International Nudists Conference says nudism gives you a chance to get away from the machine age.

And if you don't believe it, try riding in a street car or dining in an automat—that way.

Tramp Athlete Problem Comes to Pro Football

'Capone's Man' on Visit

By AUSTEN LAKE

IT IS REGARDED AS IMMORAL in college football today for a coach to drag his varsity players with him in going from job to job. Ever since the primitive day when the colleges stopped hiring local icemen and adults with blue chins and derby hat muscles to play on their football teams, the practice of hiring ringers has been regarded as a low custom.

But until today the professional teams have never been bothered by scruples. Not until the Boston Redskins hauled off and let go a howl at the New York Giants for hiring a Pittsburgh pro player named Warren Heller, who is at liberty because his Pitt owners have ended their season.

This amounts to tramp athletics in pro football, according to deputy manager-home secretary Dinny Shea, and strikes at the very taproots of fairplay. It might, in Mr. Shea's opinion, even cause the Redskins to take a licking from the Giants next Sunday.

WELL I THINK THE BOSTON PEOPLE ought to be told that Sweet William McKechnie, the darling of the Braves' press coop, is out of Wilkinsburg, Pa., by way of St. Louis, and that the Braves, Red Sox, Redskins and Bruins, are just a lot of tramp athletes from everywhere but Boston.

It detracts nothing from the charm of these teams, I'll warrant, that the lads were brought from thither and yon to enjoy, as Governor-elect James Curley once put it, the expanded opportunities of life. But by any other name they are still mercenary tramps who sell their athletic talents for a price.

Of course, this does not answer Mr. Shea's question, which concerns the right of a rival pro team in the same league to levy players who are still under contract, though idle, to use them against rivals in drucial games.

It is a matter that was ironed out by the major baseball leagues years ago, after the Yankees or Giants would suddenly turn up in the midst of a pennant drive with the cream of some lesser major league team to help them over the hill. Judge Landis whacked down on that by forbidding intra-league trading after June 15.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF the A. A. A. U. in this section is regarded as a snag-toothed, whiskery ogre which bites nickles and frightens little children. Just now the girl and boy amateurs are letting off shrill bleats about the niggardly, pinch-penny attitude of the committee, which refuses to pay legitimate expenses to N. E. teams.

Yet early in December the committee is rolling down to Miami, Fla., with all expenses paid out of the Union treasury, to attend the National A. A. A. U. convention. This junket will cost in the vicinity of $1000.

The amateur lads and lasses cannot understand why, if the A. A. U. fathers can vote themselves a vacation at the tropic seashore, these same fathers pucker up their pusses in a pug when the kids ask, please, for a partial payment of modest costs to send their teams to certain athletic events.

And the squawk, my dears, is only a whisper to what the youngsters are going to pull soon.

LAST SUMMER MISS BABE DIDRIKSON, the female-lady athlete who can leap a flight of hurdles, throw baseballs and javelins better than most men; or bake a cake, sew a frock or milk a cow better than most women, sat athwart this desk and said as how she would soon become the foremost women golfer in the country.

She did not mean maybe, she said. There was a snap to her lean, mannish jaw, and a set to her broad shoulders which dispoke her gender.

Now in her first open golf competition in Fort Worth, Tex., has run off with medalist honors with a card of 77.

She expects to be playing around regularly in 72 before the end of the year, and after watching her poke 300-yard drives on the Florida course last spring, I'm agreed that she will.

THIS IS MORE THAN A TITTER to me. It's a stomach quake with a vulgar, hoarse laugh on the end. Penn—the University of Pennsylvania, forsooth—says Columbia's football team played rough last week.

Well fan mah brow!

Because, folks, I knew Penn football teams in the olden days, when Heinie Miller, Lud Wray, Lou Little, etc., were a hairy-chested set of primitives who would snatch you by the slack of your skin and peel you down like a banana.

Or they would lam you a swipe with their waffle shaped hands that felt like being kissed by a side of beef. Or, under the pile they'd wind up your feet like a motorman whirling a handbrake and wrench off a rib like a chef at a barbecue.

Rough? Those old Penn teams would scare the Sing Sing Black Sheep back to their dungeons, have reduced a Maine logging crew to tears of self pity, have played grabs with the entire Marine Corps.

Rough? Why they used to pitch man hole covers like pennies and scratch matches on their chins. And they'd hemstitch their wounds between the halves, nail lathes along their fractured spines, and go out to score more touchdowns.

And now, the current Penn group whimpers that Columbia is too rough. Well, embroider me a doily if that ain't somethin'.

LOUISVILLE NEW FARM OF SOX

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 22 (AP)—The Knoxville Journal says the Knoxville smokies of the Southern Baseball Association have arranged a hookup with the Boston Red Sox of the American eague.

The deal was announced by Edgar Allen, club secretary and son of R. G. Allen, owner of the Knoxville club, from Louisville, where he is attending the minor league baseball meeting.

Full details of the deal were not disclosed by Allen, but he said the smokies would receive at least eight players before the spring training season opens.

By Universal Service

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 22—Important major league deals are popping here at the annual gathering of the minor league magnates and officials.

The New York Yankees, in one of the biggest deals ever consummated for a minor league player, bought Outfielder Joe de Maggio of the San Francisco Seals under a conditional agreement.

De Maggio is slated for fall delivery next year, and the Seals will get for him five ball players, three of them outright, two on option and $75,000 in cash.

De Maggio is the lad who hit safely in 63 games last season for an all time record but who hurt his knee and was out of the game for some time.

CUBS GET CARLETON

That was the cause of the conditional agreement and the late delivery. De Maggio must have shown that he is in good playing condition when the time for delivery comes.

The Chicago Cubs were busy on prospective deals and finally clinched one which will bring Pitcher Tex Carleton of the world champion St. Louis Cards to the Cub fold.

In payment for Carleton will go Pitcher Bud Tinning and Pitcher Dick Ward, along with an unannounced amount of cash.

Ward, a right hander, has been playing with Los Angeles where he won 13 and lost 4. Tinning won 4 and lost 6 and Carleton for St. Louis won 16 and lost 11.

The Cubs also were battling to put over a deal with the Pirates for Freddy Lindstrom, right fielder and Larry French, pitcher. Manager Charlie Grimm and his Cub associates were offering in exchange Pitcher Guy Bush and Outfielder Babe Hermann.

ENGLISH MAY COME HERE

Grimm also has negotiations under way with Bill McKechnie of the Boston Braves, with Pitcher Fred Frankhouse, the object of the Cub manager's attentions.

The bait for that one is made up of "Kiki" Cuyler, and, with some reluctance, "Woody" English.

Another trade involving lesser lights, sent pitcher Bob Weiland, infielder Johnny Burnett and cash to the Browns for outfielder Bruce Campbell.

Crimson Caller

There'll be a merry battle of wits in the Yale Bowl Saturday afternoon with Bob Haley, of Winthrop, calling the plays for Harvard in an attempt to outwit Jerry Roscoe, Yale's big bomber and field general. A year ago Harvard was stumbling all over the lot until Haley was pulled off the bench and given the quarterback assignment against Yale. Winthrop Bob made good from the start, and has a 19-to-6 verdict over the Elis as evidence of his success. (Boston American Staff Photo.)

Cubs spares—Heximer, Carrigan, Hergeshimer, Blake, Smillie, Cunningham, Bretto.

Quebec spares—Runge, Lowery, Ranger, Leduc, LaFrance.

Face off at 8:30 p .m.

By Bill Grimes

Manager Albert "Battleship" Leduc and his Quebec Beavers provide opposition to the Bruin Cubs tonight at the Boston Arena and because of the two defeats the "Hitch Men" suffered in Quebec the game should be a thriller from start to finish.

When the Can-Am moguls compiled the 1934-35 schedule they did not give any undue consideration to the Cubs.

The junior Bruins opened with two games in Quebec, then jumped down to Providence for a set-to with the Rhode Island Reds, after which they were allowed one home game before journeying to Philadelphia and New Haven.

Any team playing five of its first six games away from home has an assignment on its hands. The Cubs, however, have made a great start for, after dropping two to the Beavers, they tied the Reds and beat the Arrows in Philly and the Eagles in New Haven.

They are set upon winning their first home game tonight. A week ago, the Cubs were not up to form and dropped one to the Arrows at the Arena. Since then they have been clicking to such an extent that they have scored 11 goals in two games.

Cubs came out of the New Haven game in good shape except for a mouth injury sustained by Alec Motter, big first line center. Hitchman expects that the former amateur star will be ready to go despite the injury.

Tech Mat Tourney Slated Dec. 5 and 7

Jack Ricks will hold the all Technology wrestling tournament on Wednesday, December 5, and Friday, December 7. The intervening day is part of the Tech mentor's plan to give the boys a day in which to rest after the trials, and hence be in better shape for the finals.

Bouts in the 115, 125, 135, 145, 155, 165, 175 and heavyweight classes will be held.

HARVARD-YALE IN THREE-PLY SOCCER BILL

Harvard and Yale varsity, [illegible] varsity and freshman soccer teams will meet in New Haven tomorrow afternoon. The junior varsity game will start at [illegible] and the varsity and freshman games [illegible].

The Harvard varsity [illegible] has played seven games, winning five, losing one and tying one. The Yale varsity has played eight games, winning four, losing two and tying two.

Yale freshmen have lost only one game this season, that to Princeton, 4 to 2. They have won six games and played a [illegible] tie with Central High [illegible].

The Harvard freshman team won three games, [illegible] and [illegible].

Crimson Exodus To New Haven Tomorrow

By Dave Egan

Away back in the dark ages, there was a [illegible] of good standing to the effect that "all roads lead to Rome."

That's just another back number today when Harvard is preparing for its biennial invasion of New Haven and the Yale Bowl, for when it's the even year, and Yale [illegible] to the Crimson, it's just transplanting Harvard square to Chapel street.

Some 60,000 spectators are expected to jam the New Haven crater for the classic Saturday afternoon. That wouldn't be any number to get excited about in the pre-depression days, but in this alphabetical era, 60,000 is quite a crowd.

In fact it tops any Harvard-Yale attendance records of the past five years by such a wide margin that there isn't any second guess.

Back in 1931 Albie Booth and Barry Wood, the last of the Harvard and Yale All-Americans played to a full house in the Stadium but the Stadium is limited to 57,000.

The sudden interest in the game is attributed to Yale's startling victory over the Princeton Tigers which had run up a string of [illegible] consecutive victories before Jerry Roscoe blackened one of its eyes with a well placed aerial [illegible] to Larry Kelley, gabby Eli end.

That upset boosted the ticket demand from the neighborhood of [illegible],000 into the sixties and accounts for the new market value of the game.

TO DRILL IN BOWL

The Harvard gridmen will lead the way to New Haven.

In the vanguard riding a special train which is due to leave Boston at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, will be 44 odd varsity football players accompanied by a host of coaches, scouts, managers and assistant managers, trainers, rubbers, etc., a varsity squad, a junior varsity and freshman soccer squad, a junior varsity football squad, each with its own [illegible].

The [illegible] will lunch on the train, which is due to arrive in New Haven shortly after noon. Four of the squads will be quartered at the Ray Thompkins House, Yale's magnificent athletic headquarters.

The varsity will spend the night before the Yale game at Choate school, where the Crimson captain, Herman Gundlach, will make the yearly presentation of a prize to Choate's outstanding athlete at the night before dinner.

Before leaving for their headquarters the Crimson athletes have [illegible] engagement at the Bowl. The varsity will take an hour workout with only the empty stands to look on, from 2 o'clock until [illegible].

The junior varsity has a date with Yale's jayvee gridmen just a[illegible], while the three soccer teams meet their rivals, the Yale varsity, junior varsity and freshman [illegible].

[illegible] Casey made his final decision on his starting lineup today so that the Harvards may rest easily from now until game time when any number of unexpected changes may be made without previous speculation.

The only doubtful position in the Harvard makeup was at left halfback where Casey has given Fred Moseley, his shifty open field runner, the call over Johnny Adzigian.

BANK ON RUNNING GAME

Harvard finishes its pre-game drilling this afternoon after a very dull and uneventful week at Soldiers Field. Throughout the entire week the Crimson has plugged methodically at a defense to stop the Roscoe air attack while at the same time attempting to sharpen its own offensive.

It's entirely likely that the Crimson will turn to the air at the very first oportunity in an attempt to score, with Moseley, Bob Haley, Don Jackson, Johnny Adzigian or most of all, Bill Parquette doing the tossing.

But its main hope is to establish the power of its running game for the first time this year against a major opponent.

The Crimson made its ground game go against New Hampshire last Saturday, and in a fashion that gave the coaches a feeling that it might repeat against Yale, especially with Moseley fit to give it the lift by his presence in the starting lineup.

There's no doubt at all that Harvard depends more on this slim 160-pounder, Moseley, a brilliant back, whose brittleness has kept him on the sidelines most of the season, even more than Yale looks to Roscoe, its demon passer.

H-Y Jayvees Meet Tomorrow

The Harvard junior varsity football team will meet Yale at New Haven at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The Harvard team defeated Providence 14-12, Harvard freshmen 13-9, Brown freshmen 28-12 and lost to Holy Cross freshmen 12-8 and to Dartmouth 18-6.

Yale defeated Army Jayvees 31-9, New Haven Boys' Club 13-6, and lost to the Yale freshmen 13-0.

ROSCOE TAKES PART IN YALE SCRIMMAGE

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 22—Yale will [illegible] its eleven iron men Saturday against Harvard, according to Head Coach Ducky Pond, who said today that the entire roster had reached top class condition.

Jerry Roscoe's cold and Kim Whitehead's [illegible] did not keep them from the midweek bout of [illegible] scrimmage, the last [illegible] of the season [illegible] Saturday in the Bowl.

[illegible] and Stan Fuller featured the final scrimmaging, although neither broke away for an extended run. The Yale rushline ground out its gains [illegible] and expects similar stubborn opposition from the Crimson Saturday.

Yale was given a [illegible] warm [illegible] of appreciation this afternoon [illegible] practice, when [illegible] world, hundreds of [illegible] undergraduates with song and cheer [illegible] which facing adverse odds [illegible] brought home the [illegible] week.

The Yale [illegible] will join the Glee Club [illegible] through Yale's repertoire of football war songs.

Tomorrow the Harvard squad is due here at 12 [illegible]. It will work in the Bowl and go to the Roxbury school at Cheshire. It is a tradition [illegible] evens which stay [illegible] prove winners.

[illegible] planned for tomorrow [illegible] Trainer Frank W[illegible] task in preventing [illegible] from going over [illegible] the week between [illegible] and Crimson games.

Freshmen May Win B. C. Interclass Meet

Track shoves the gridiron game into the background at Boston College today as the annual two-day inter-class meet opens.

All during the fall, Coach Jack Ryder has been drilling his charges every day in a quiet and unpublicized manner. Today and tomorrow will show the first results of his work.

The usual 15 events will be held and, surprising as it may seem, the freshmen are being picked to win the class championships.

Captain John "Jugger" Joyce is the favorite in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, but in Don McKee, sophomore; Ed Cady and Joe Kelley, freshmen, he will receive plenty of opposition.

McKee looks like a winner in the 440, with Frank Eaton and Bill Malone, seniors; Steve Witham and Bob Burrill, sophomores; and Tom Daley, Bob Roche and Tom Daley of the frosh, all battling for points.

The middle and long distances will be dominated by the upperclassmen. Ben Hines, '37; Frank Delear, '36; John Downey, '36; Paul Moynahan, '35; and Bob Burrill and Don McKee of '37, are the favorites in these events. The freshmen will not lack support with Art Cox, ex-captain of English High, and Dick Scannell of Boston Latin.

Tom McFarlan of Arlington, former state hurdle champ, is the choice to capture both the high and low hurdles for the frosh since he has been turning in the best times. Ed Kickham and Jim O'Leary of junior will have to be reckoned with however.

The field events have a decided football color with most of the competitors being outstanding gridmen.

Dimi Zaitz, Dave Couhig, Henry Ohrenberger and Frank Cowhig are the favorites in the weight classes, while Pat Avery, Bill Ryan, Ed O'Brien, Gordon Connors and Elmer Rhynne are outstanding in the high jump and javelin.

Huey's Team Could Beat Stanford

By Damon Runyon

[illegible]

The writer would certainly like to have Senator Huey and his Louisiana spectacle here in New York against a team like Colgate for a post-season game for the New York Milk Fund and would sit back confident of a $200,000 gate.

But Senator Long has fixed his aim on the Rose Bowl He challenges mighty Alabama to a post season game to definitely decide the football championship of the South, the winner to go to the Rose Bowl if the Rose Bowl finally invites the Southern champion

If you read Lewis Burton, able young football writer, you will not laugh off Senator Huey's football pretensions for Louisiana.

Louisiana took on the great Rice and Southern Methodist teams as its very first opponents this season holding both to ties while Alabama was slaughtering such opposition as Howard, 24 to 0, and Sewanee 35 to 6

You would scarcely compare Howard and Sewanee with Rice and Southern Methodist

Burton shows that there has not been a minor game on the Louisiana schedule this season—Auburn, Arkansas, Vanderbilt, Mississippi State, George Washington and Mississippi.

It was held to a 6 to 0 score by George Washington, but Louisiana was without the services of Mickal, said to be one of the greatest players in the country.

Louisiana and Alabama are among the six undefeated football teams of the land, that is, football teams of national reputation

Burton takes a cruel delight in recalling that Louisiana State went to California last year and won the national collegiate championship meet, an accomplishment that stunned the citizens of Los Angeles.

Of course, the Rose Bowl committee has not yet decided on any team. The decision usually comes about Thanksgiving Day, though the committee probably has a good idea before that of the team it would like to have.

BLUE AND BLUE SCORED UPON ONLY ONCE

By Bill Connell

A Boston English whirlwind started by two veteran backs, may blast the team to state title heights. Only two barriers stood before English this morning the meeting with Commerce this afternoon at Fenway, and the Thanksgiving classic with Latin

Every other public school foe was disposed of without trouble, and a six-all tie with Groton early in the year was the nearest English came to defeat

Thus, given a win over Commerce today, the tilt with Latin would attain throne importance this year as well as being a renewal of the oldest football series

Before Princeton and Rutgers pioneers risked their long locks and mustaches to start the college gridiron circus, English and Latin were battling on Boston Common. They played good, hard football then, and they've kept at it through the years.

Until now, with the finest of coaching, first class equipment, and in the case of English such modern aids as slow motion movies to discover flaws, send the teams into their windup for an annual thriller

BATTLES TRIPLE THREAT

This year is Coach Bill Ohrenberger's fourth at English, and the team he has built appears to be his best to date. He started the year with only Roger Battles, brilliant quarterback, and Fullback A. Munichello as veterans

But there was some heavy line material, and a few fast, husky backs developed. Soon the team was rolling.

It started by blanking South Boston, 13-0; then beat Trade, 19-0; tied Groton; beat Dorchester, B. C. High and Mechanic Arts in order, and each by 19 to 0.

Note the offensive power shown by the consistent scoring, and defensive ability with only Groton's one touchdown scored against English

The able backfield includes Battles, 168 pounds, and a real triple threat, at quarter; Jim Cuff, 170, left half; John Falvey, 163, right half; and Al Munichello, 175, fullback. Cuff is a shifty carrier, Munichello a powerful plunger, and Falvey the blocking back who can carry when needed

A few of the subs from the squad of 63 uniformed boys are Jim Devine, Jim Daley (nephew of Leo, ex-English coach), Jim Mullane and Charley O'Meara, ends; Joe Spenelli, Prescott Coan and John Monohan, tackles, Joe Mantos, Clark Nichols (son of ex-Mayor Malcolm Nichols), and Leo Carney, guards; Charley Pope and John Williams, centers.

Sub backfield—Frank Zelmetz or Tom Powers at quarter, with halfbacks Stan Drozdowsky, Fred Leahy and Joe Ahern.

Plenty of power in that squad And there will be enough boys back next fall to build another powerful team. English always provides a large squad

This year Coach Ohrenberger had 205 to open the campaign. No boy was cut, but finally the group dwindled to the 63 now uniformed, although there's sufficient equipment for seven full teams.

3000 BOYS IN SCHOOL

But then, English always manages to keep its sports in the best of condition, with faculty cooperation, and fine school spirit. Headmaster Walter F. Downey does much to maintain the high level of sportsmanship among the boys.

Everett Ford of the faculty, amateur photographer extraordinary, photographs, assembles and titles miles of movie film of the various games. Faculty Director of Sports William Smith keeps the business end of the sports office in order.

Louisville Team May Play Salem

With sanction of the school committee awaited, arrangements were being made today for a post-season football game between St Xavier's high school of Louisville, Ky., and Salem high school at Salem on December 8. "Don" Miller, one of Notre Dame's "Four Horsemen" is St. Xavier coach.

West Bowl Choice Named Monday

Los Angeles, Nov. 22—Representative of the West in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, January 1, will be named by the Pacific Coast Conference next Monday.

There is little doubt that Stanford will get the nomination. Stanford, in turn, will pick its Eastern opponent for the classic.

Huey Vows to Fire Jones After Biff Ousts Him From Practice

By Bill Grimes

Many members of the Harvard varsity squad are working their way through college. Among them is Malcolm McTiernan, who is about a third or fourth string back. McTiernan did not draw one of those soft Varsity Club waiters' berths, and because he has been obliged to "cut" his work for football practice, he has about 30 hours to make up after the season . . . Harvard is perfecting some maneuver to surprise Yale, and it does not concern Fergie Locke.

Joe Walsh, a sub end at Boston College, is through for the season, as a result of a badly twisted knee . . . Hundreds of Dartmouth alumni would welcome an early season B. C.-Green football conflict, no what the scholastic requirements at the Heights are as strict as those at Hanover and football is under the supervision of Joe McKenney . . . Lafayette and Lehigh, bitter rivals for half a century, meet at Easton, Pa., Saturday. In the 13 post war games, Lafayette has come through with no less than 12 victories.

Bruin Cubs hope to run their string of consecutive wins to three by beating the Quebec Beavers tonight at the Arena. Abby Cox, who was the goalie minder for Joe Sherlan in the days of the Pilgrim A. A., will be in the nets for the Beavers . . . They're "three sheeting" Capt. George Barclay of the University of North Carolina, for All American honors honors. Barclay is rated one of the greatest guards ever developed south of the Mason-Dixon line . . . The Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts will hold its annual meeting at the Algonquin Club Dec. 6 . . . A year ago, a Notre Dame eleven, inferior to the 1934 edition, beat a better Army team than Gar Davidson has this season.

The New York Giants are making a practice of tramping upon George Marshall's toes. He beat them when they attempted to take Enrie Pinckert, but he lost the verdict in the Ed Danowski case. Now, the Giants have taken Warren Heller from Pittsburgh to fill the gap left by the injury to Harry Newman. Heller may be the cause of his Redskins losing the Eastern title . . . Charlie Sands, a right winger, will not go West with the Bruins. In his stead will be Bert McInenley, the Cub defenseman.

Was Huey Long's honeymoon, deferred for 20 years, prompted by the order issued by Coach Biff Jones barring him from the practise sessions at L. S. U. The Kingfish became unbearable when, after donning a football uniform, he disagreed with Biff as to the proper way to teach line play. "Up in the stands for you" Biff is alleged to have hurled at the Kingfish. "O. K." was Long's reply, "but as soon as your contract expires you'll be up in the stands with me" . . .

Pop Warner did not spare the whip when he went after Holy Cross over the air. He brought out the fact that the Crusaders were looking so seriously toward the Rose Bowl that they were afraid to dirty their uniforms in the Colgate game. Then, he brought out that his Temple Owls have not heard a single reference to any Rose Bowl encounter but that if they do not beat Villanova they will get a bowl wrapped over their heads.

"Tarzan" White, Alabama's great sophomore guard, traveled the country as a wrestler before President Denny convinced him that there is nothing as valuable as a college education—"Tarzen," who stands but five feet six, but who wears at 17½ collar, is one of the few 'Bama gridsters, who is out to get an education in exchange for his football [illegible]

The N. E. A. A. A. U. ref[illegible] to sanction the cross country team's trip to the Nationals at Iowa City, which was to have been made in a bus. But the delegates are going to Florida—in Pullmans—at the expense of the union—I'd like to see the clause in the constitution of the N. E. A. A. A. U. which allows the body to defray the expenses of the delegates.

Les Canadiens rooters are blaming Neway Lalonde for trading Howie Morenz and Johnny Gagnon and during games in the Forum, they are constantly chanting "We want Morenz and Gagnon" . . . Detroit Red Wings are faster and stronger defensively than a year ago . . . Jack Haggerty, who is laboring to put Georgetown back on the football map, would be far more at ease if he were certain that Al Vaccara, who came out of the Richmond game with a bad ankle, could carry through the Maryland game.

English Faces Commerce

Boston English faced a hard game this afternoon at Fenway Park, meeting Commerce gridmen. The undefeated English eleven was favored by a small margin.

Charlestown tackles Roxbury Memorial tomorrow at Fenway in the final game of the week for a Boston team.

TROJANS PLAY EXHIBITION AT LOWELL

By Bob Ahearn

Three league games in as many days is the Boston Trojans' menu for the week-end.

Saturday night the locals play at New Britain, the following day at Jersey City, then they hop home to meet the world champion Philadelphia Hebrews at the Arena court Monday

This evening the Trojans play the Worcester Whirlwinds at Lowell in an exhibition fray. From the Spindle City the club will head for New Britain

It seems certain that Happy Reilly, latest acquisition, will be in the starting lineup against the Hebrews. His play in the Brooklyn Visitation contest was brilliant.

The smiling Irishman caught on with the customers, due to his aggressive play, and he should continue to be a favorite.

The Hebrews come to Boston with the same five that won the American League championship last season. In a playoff series, they defeated the Original Celtics and Renaissance Clubs for the world championship

Cy Kaselman, Philly forward, is the second highest scorer in the circuit.

Sam Smith, hustling physical director of the Boston Y. M. H. A., expects to have a championship team this season. Next Saturday night, the Y M. H. A. will play host to the Fitchburg A. C., at the Seaver street court.

In the preliminary fray, the Y. M. H. A. Jayvees and the Cleary Club of Cambridge square off at 7:45 p. m

McCoy Wins N. E. Title in Slam-Bang Bout

By Paul Whelton

In a very harsh and hairy engagement, Al Mercier's heavyweight mat crown in and of the New England salient was snatched away from him by Bob "Bibber" McCoy of Cambridge at the weekly Alex McLean wrestling show in the Boston Arena.

It took McCoy, former Holy Cross end, just one hour, seven minutes and 42 seconds to topple Mercier for the single fall required after the hour limit, the end coming with a suddenness that was very startling.

Fast weakening under a barrage of headlocks and heels, plentifully interspersed with short butts and a few hitch-kicks, McCoy appeared done as he sagged back from a rope on the apron of the ring.

Mercier, raging back and forth across the mat for the kill, while Referee Al Pierotti counted, was taken off his guard when McCoy unleashed the bound of a springbok, cleaved a path between the middle and top ropes and ironed out Mercier with a flying tackle from off the fairway.

The old champion and the new put up a fast and strenuous bout throughout, with the fans in and out of their seats during the more lusty stages.

BIBBER PLAYS POSSUM

McCoy led a bit in punching and kneeing in the earlier stretches, but as Mercier warmed up and became indignant he began unpacking the broader brand of wrestling on his own account and pitchforked the former Holy Cross gridiron lad out of bounds with considerable abandon.

It was an engagement, however, in which off-the-ropes work figured largest, Mercier scoring with tackles, flying body scissors and rebound hitch-kicks, while McCoy stuck to his tackles, although without much success, until the one which spelled curtains for Mercier's New England heavyweight title.

Past the hour mark, Mercier began to put on the heat, and he scored again and again with front headlocks and snap heels, following some of them with butts and kicks.

He had bounced McCoy out of the fair terrain four times in succession when Bibber hung back on the middle strand, decoyed Mercier into position, and knifed through for the kill

RUSSELL BEATS CARONE

The semifinal, between Bob Russell of Newport, R. I., and Fred Carone of Lynn, a scheduled 30-minute affair, was fast, Russell winning this encounter in 24 minutes 43 seconds with his Japanese leg-lock, after Carone had once broken a similar lock

Four "masked marvels" with a masked referee preceded this in a battle royal among lightweights, the last man up pulling off his mask and being revealed as Red Mullen of Lowell. None of the others was identified.

In the preliminaries, Eddie Edwards and Young Kid Sullivan drew in 10 minutes; Bull Komar flattened Long John "Whiskers" Maloney of South Boston, who looks like a stretched-out edition of General Grant, in six minutes seven seconds with a lift and slam; Joe Kujot beat Jim Kendricks in 12 minutes 58 seconds with a hitch-kick, and Tommy Rae scored over Jim Wallis in 14:12 with a flying body scissors.

Harvard a Long Shot

SPEAKING OF long shots, give dear old Harvard a tumble . . . it is a 1-10 shot against Yale . . . It would be one of the biggest football upsets of the year if Harvard smacked Yale for a loop in the Bowl on Saturday . . . I think the grandest sportsman in New England is Eddie Casey . . . He knows he is through as Harvard's football coach after the Yale game regardless of which team wins . . . And yet he is staying up nights trying to dope out ways and means by which the inferior Crimson eleven can down the strong iron men who licked Princeton . . . Casey is one of the finest personalities connected with sports.

Dartmouth can make one forget its poor showing against Cornell by defeating Princeton . . . The Tigers will enter the game a favorite . . . KNIGHT OF OLD IS FAVORED IN SECOND proposition on a well-matched card here tomorrow afternoon.

The fleet son of Blind Play goes in the mile and one-sixteenth of the sixth number and is opposed by nine indifferent platers. A tightener in better company a few days back disclosed that the track will hold no terrors for him. A. Tipton rides.

FIRST RACE
ROCK SPRAY, HAPPY TOM, BOOCORD

FIRST RACE—$600, maiden, two-year-olds, foaled in Maryland, "Combination," five and one-half furlongs (9):

Cora Kay	102	Italian Harry	105
Boo Cord	105	Happy Tom	105
Rockspray	102	Rapid Up	105
xPekin	100	Demur	102
High Chair	105

ROCK SPRAY isn't much horse, but she looms as a standout in an affair of this kind. The opposition is the weakest that she has ever encountered. HAPPY TOM finished far behind in the ruck in his only start over this track, but he was well up in the early running. The Labrot youngster may hang on long enough to save the place. BOOCORD, a first time starter, turned five panels in 1:02 3-5 for his final.

SECOND RACE
KNIGHT OF OLD, GLENDYE, MINTON

SECOND RACE—$600, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs (18):

Minton	111	Aileen C.	108
Smooth Crossing	114	Glendye	108
xKnight of Old	108	Bakers Dozen	108
xFrench Knight	106	Smuggled In	111
Liberty Oak	114	xLittle Brother	103
Herowin	111	My Counsellor	111
Squeeze Out	105	West Main	111
Pretty Wise	111	Bachelorette	105
Tullihoo	105	xPlain Ace	103

KNIGHT OF OLD drubbed practically this same lot with ease on opening day. Just a question of him running back to that effort. GLENDYE was beaten off only four lengths by the top one after being shuffled back at the start in that affair. With clear sailing he may prove dangerous. MINTON, a plater with class, is capable of upsetting the dope.

THIRD RACE
MODERN ACE, GENERAL LEJEUNE, DOMINUS

THIRD RACE—$600, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles (18):

xBattle of Killiecrankie	109	xMint Magi	109
		xNigger Toe	105
Blondino	110	xaDominus	109
Briny Deep	110	Volo	110

aMiss B. J. Christmas and Mrs. B. F. Christmas entry.

Just can't get away from MODERN ACE in this number. The Smallman colorbearer shipped in from Narragansett in the proverbial pink. The opposition is hardly as formidable as that encountered in Rhode Island. GENERAL LEJEUNE, the more dangerous of the contenders, is last on the also eligible list and may not get a chance to start. DOMINUS for what is left.

FOURTH RACE
ARIEL CROSS, BIT O' SHADE, DIRECT HIT

FOURTH RACE—$1000, two-year-olds, six furlongs (13):

Boston Brook	110	Bit o'Shade	110
Sablin	110	Direct Hit	110
Master Time	110	Ariel Cross	110
aPundit	110	aPantoufle	107
cOfficial	110	By Surprise	118
Corinne Dailey	113	cDouble Sweep	106
Stavka	110

aC. V. Whitney entry.
cJ. J. Coughlin entry.

ARIEL CROSS, a galloping winner a few days back, is entered in another likely spot. A sizzling three furlongs in 35 seconds this morning attests to his present fine fettle. BIT O' SHADE is racing over his favorite distance. The Matt Brady trained youngster found the mile and seventy yards of his last a bit beyond his staying powers. DIRECT HIT figures next best.

FIFTH RACE
LYNX EYE, SOON OVER, LATE DATE

FIFTH RACE—$1000, all ages, one mile and seventy yards (6):

Moralist	111	Red John	105
Lynx Eye	110	Soon Over	105
Stand Pat	105	Late Date	108

Have a hunch that LYNX EYE is going to upset the highly fancied SOON OVER in this number. Her effort in the Prince George Handicap was an excellent one, considering that she was all but knocked down soon after the start. SOON OVER appears to have all the best of the weight arrangements, but the Greentree thoroughbred has had quite a bit of it during the past few days and may crack. LATE DATE experienced a rough journey last out and may have been best.

SIXTH RACE
BLIND BROOK, OUR DAVID, MY BOSS

SIXTH RACE—$800, claiming, three-year-olds, one and one-sixteenth miles (10):

My Boss	113	Legendary	113
Idle Flirt	105	Cofiler	108
xTight Wad	106	Blind Brook	116
xDouglas F.	106	xPretension	103
Our David	111	Luck In	111

BLIND BROOK will have the fleet but none too stout-hearted OUR DAVID to down. The latter turned five furlongs in 1:02 for his final. MY BOSS failed to run his usual race last time. This one can do much bttter.

SEVENTH RACE
CHATTERDOO, POTION, TRIANGULAR

SEVENTH RACE—$800, claiming, three-year-olds, one and one-sixteenth miles (10):

xBlack Falcon	106	Street Guide	108
Galyarrow	116	Kozak	114
Flying Watch	108	Potion	116
xChatterdoo	105	Triangular	113
Ovalette	105	xSound Money	103

Weather clear; track fast.
Post 1:00 p. m.

CHATTERDOO is Clocker Elmer's three-star special. Elmer, who has been handling split second timers for 40 odd years, reports him fit to run for a King's ransom. Personally I believe that POTION will be a hard nut to crack. The latter won his last with ease. TRIANGULAR'S most recent race was hard to understand. Must give him another chance.

Six School Gridiron Dependables Enter Hall of Fame

George Ryan, center, like other Boston English boys, has the Latin on his mind. Hopes to help down Latin to finish the season with a winning record.

Humphrey Sullivan fullbacks for Jamaica Plain. An able all around back, especially strong on defense. Did much to make J. P. a Boston leader, all this season.

Capt. Peter Abate, left halfback at Beverly, weighs only 153 but is one of the hardest running backs of the state. A smart, aggressive leader, whose team has lost only once.

Ralph Freeman, Everett captain and center, is the best pivot in Greater Boston, say Everett fans. Big, strong, smart, he certainly deserves rank with the ace centers.

Capt. Norman Robinson, right end, 155 pounder, does good work for Melrose high. Captains a green team that lately has struck its stride. A hard worker, in on every play.

Walter Savosik, 175, is the veteran left tackle at Chelsea. A sturdy lineman, who has carried on in fine style through the Red Devils' stiff grid campaign. Everett is Chelsea's next foe.

HUSKIES ELECT GRID CAPTAIN TONIGHT

The Huskies will choose their 1935 football captain this evening at their annual gridiron banquet at Huntington building.

The leading candidates for the honor are Joe Chrusz, Hackketts town, N. J., tackle; George Dean, Concord, tackle; Adolph Chaplick, Nashua, N. H., guard; and Stew Mayberry, Beverly, quarterback.

The full schedule for 1935 to be released this evening by Graduate Manager Eddie Parson, includes Alfred, Mass. State, Rhode Island and a clash at Medford, with the Tufts Jumbos.

Out of 40 men who composed the squad this past season, 32 will be available next year. The only two important men missing, will be Captain Dick Mitchell of Waltham and Ken Cahoon of Quincy, end and halfback, respectively.

Added to the veterans will be a large group of freshmen. The first year line averaged 190 pounds, while Gus Rook and "Dee Dee" DiCicco, ball-carriers, stand a good chance of breaking into regular positions next fall.

The freshmen went through an undefeated season; the Husky varsity won six, tied one, and lost one.

Individual scores for the eight games are as follows: Hart 40 points, Pelletier 24, Cahoon 24, Captain Mitchell 13, Mayberry 12, Hakanson 12, Chrusz 8, Fraser 6, Benjamin 1.

DIZZY NEVER MISSES A BET

Louisville, Nov. 22 (AP)—Dizzy Dean, who slipped into Louisville last night to transact some business with his manager, W. O. DeWitt, wondered today "what kind of beer the big shots drink when they make those big trades."

"If they need any leagues straightened out, I'll be glad to help 'em," he volunteered.

Dean said he didn't come here to talk contract terms. Sam Breadon, owner of Dizzy's 1934 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals, was in St. Louis and Lew Wentz, who has been dickering with Breadon for the Cards, continued to deny persistent rumors that the deal had been closed.

Gridiron Sidelights

By the Associated Press

New York—No matter how serious the situation on the gridiron, little Tommy Tomb, Columbia's quarterback, usually manages a wisecrack. During the Penn State game, with the lions trailing 7 to 0 in the third period, Assistant Trainer Jimmy Judge, on the field attending an injured player, asked Tomb:

"Are you holding up all right out there, Tommy?"

Tommy grinned. "Yeah, we're holding up all right," he replied, "but what's worrying me is how the coaches are holding up in there on the bench."

Bethany, W. Va.—Little Bethany College, once a football power in its section, is claiming some sort of a losing record. In the last 12 years the Bisons have won only 12 games, while losing 70 and tieing 10. Prior to their victory over Fairmont State Teachers in the final game of the season, they had not won a game since October 31, 1931, when Fairmont also was the victim.

Notre Dame—Although a success as a prognosticator of Notre Dame's defeats at the hands o' Pittsburgh and Navy, Elmer Layden refuses to predict how the Irish will fare against Army Saturday. His only comment is that his squad is in good shape.

New York—Two former Michigan quarterbacks, Benny Friedman, and Harry Newman, select Bronko Nagurski as the greatest player they have ever faced. The former Minnesota powerhouse now is with the Chicago Bears in professional football. "He's not just a terrorizing ball-carrier," said Newman, "but a great blocker, a savage tackler and 75 per cent of the opposing team's worries."

Princeton, N. J.—If Garry Levan's performance in practice is any criterion, Dartmouth better keep both eyes on the fleet Princeton halfback Saturday. Against the third team yesterday he scored two touchdowns, one on a 60-yard off tackle dash, and tossed a 40-yard aerial to Les Kaufman for a third.

YANKS CONTROL ANZAC TILT

By Associated Press

Melbourne, Nov. 22—Joe Ezar of Waco, Texas, scored a sensational victory over Harry Cooper of Chicago on the 37th hole today to reach the semi-finals of the Melbourne Centenary professional golf championship along with three other Americans. An eagle three on the 37th enabled Ezar to down Cooper.

Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., eliminated Jimmy Thompson of Los Angeles, winner of last week's $5000 Centenary Open, 2 and 1. Densmore Shute of Philadelphia, 1933 British Open champion, defeated Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., American pro title holder, 4 and 3, while Leo Diegel of Philadelphia pushed out Australia's sole remaining contender, Martin Smith of Victoria, 7 and 6.

Jack McLean, Scottish amateur champion, won the Companion Centenary Amateur tournament by beating H. W. Hattersley, former Australian amateur title holder, 11 and 9.

Japanese Star May Show in N. Y.

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Tankanori Yoshioka, Japanese sprinter, is one of four foreign athletes invited to compete in American indoor meets this winter by the amateur Athletic Union.

Also invited are Henry Nielsen of Denmark, who broke Paavo Nurmi's world record for 3000 meters last summer; Luigi Beccali, Italian holder of the Olympic 1500-meter crown, and Erik Ny, Swedish middle distance star. Nielsen has accepted but the A. A. U. still is awaiting word from the others.

Hoover Failed Dry Law, Says Cannon

Palo Alto, Cal., Nov. 22 (INS)—Almost within the shadows of former President Herbert Hoover's home, Bishop James Cannon, Jr. charged that Mr. Hoover, as President, "failed utterly" to enforce prohibition.

The one-time leader of the Anti-Saloon League spoke at a meeting at the First Methodist Church to raise money in behalf of prohibition.

"Prohibition did not fail," the bishop declared. "It never had a fair trial."

Lutze in Hospital, Hit by 'Mountain'

Los Angeles, Nov. 22 (INS)—Man Mountain Dean, whose 317 pounds of bewhiskered wrestling ability has won the hearts of Los Angeles grunt-and-groan fans took the best that Nick Lutze, former life guard, could give last night and came away with a win.

Lutze went to a hospital for observation after Dean's 317 pounds had sailed through the air and came down to a neat three-point landing on the Lutze Chest.

FIVE TEAMS TIE IN BIKE RACE

By Associated Press

Milwaukee, Nov. 22—Five teams tied for the lead at 2 a. m. today as the Milwaukee six-day bike race ended its 29th hour. The five leading three-man teams had covered 616 miles and nine laps at that hour and the German trio of Gustav Kilian, ranked highest on points with 371.

The Canadian team of Torchy Peden, Jules Audy and Henri Le Page, had 285 sprint points.

Standings at 2 a. m. were:

Team	Miles	Laps	Pts.
Kilian-Vopel-Miethe	616	9	371
Peden-Audy-Le Page	616	9	285
Van Kempen-Muller-Bartell	616	9	246

THIRTY HUSKIES REPORT ON ICE

Coach Nelson "Ray" Raymond and Captain Kenneth "Scooter" Cahoon will greet a group of about 30 ice team candidates at the first hockey practice of the season for Huskies at the Arena tomorrow at 6:45 a. m.

The varsity first-stringers are: Ken Cahoun, Quincy, left wing; Charles Letorneau, Hyde Park, center, and Charlie Bergamini, West Roxbury, defense, and Fred Patton, Melrose, wingman.

Three likely freshmen may step into first line berths. Johnny Bialek of Ipswich will be tried at right wing; Bill Benjamin, Goshen, Ct., at defense, and Dan Callahan, Arlington, at center.

RIDER EDWARDS SET DOWN FOR EASING UP

By Dave Wilson

Bowie, Md., Nov. 22—The stewards have notified Harry Edwards not to accept any more mounts until they investigate the lad's ride astride W. Hunt's White Cloud, a $342.50 to 1 shot, which was eased up in the stretch during the running of Wednesday's fourth race.

Edwards claims the horse tried to carry him into the inside fence, which caused him to snatch up and dismount. The stewards are not accusing the lad of not trying, but want to investigate the horse's recent races before allowing Edwards to resume riding.

Howard Bruce, owner of Billy Barton, which finished second in the 1928 Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, England, is confined to his home in Baltimore with a severe cold and several broken ribs.

Bruce, according to Trainer Elmer Trueman, rode Billy Barton several days ago in a hunts meeting in Pennsylvania, without knowing his ribs were broken from a recent fall.

General Manager Joe Boyle of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association will present the jockey winning the Bryan-O'Hara memorial on Saturday with a handsome diamond stickpin.

COLSON NAMED B. U. AIDE

Ralph Colson, one of the best known track men in this section, has been appointed assistant to the Terriers' popular head track coach, Win Marling.

Due to the pioneering of Marling last year, interest in track, which has been a dead issue for the past few years, made a strong comeback, and it is believed that the sport will come to its own this winter.

Marling has developed several freshman stars, and his boys should show great improvement. The squad is expected to be too large for any one man to handle and Colson has been added to the staff.

Colson is well known in these parts for his work in track and for his coaching. While at East Boston he won several schoolboy championships and broke many records.

Public sale of tickets for the 46th annual Medford-Malden football battle, Thanksgiving Day, started today. Medford will mail out approximately 2500 tickets from its applications and Malden will mail an equal amount. In addition, students' tickets already issued brings the total number to 11,000. Only 3000 tickets are left for public sale.

Wilson Has 5 Winners, Second in Seven Races

Dave Wilson, Boston American handicapper, yesterday offered another striking reason why he is recognized as the outstanding racing selector in this area.

Wilson is the only Boston newspaper representative at the Bowie meeting and yesterday clicked with five winners and a second in the seven races on the Bowie card.

He missed the opening number when his second choice proved the winner but then clicked on Acautaw in the second, Commonwealth in the third, Watch Him in the fifth, Ballos in the sixth and Easy Sailing, his best bet, in the seventh. His choice, Advocate A, in the fourth ran second, while his third pick, Sun Way, was the winner.

The other Boston American consensus selectors also had banner days turning in a total of 13 of the winners between them.

For most authoritative and complete racing news, don't fail to get your Boston American daily.

The race special, issued early each day, is the first paper in Boston to carry Bowie scratches, while the race charts are a feature not found in any other Boston afternoon newspaper.

5-CLASS CARD AT SOUTHIE

There will be another bang-up amateur boxing tournament staged tonight by the Irish-American A. A., South Boston, with a long list of entries.

Jerry LaBella, East Boston, bantamweight champion of New England, and Teddy Capparell, Boston, have both entered the 118-pound class.

Two hard hitters, Ralph Zannelli of Providence, and Ecie Carroll of Lowell, will serve the fans with plenty of action in the 147-pound class.

Other stars entered are Jackie Capparell of Boston, a fast, punching 135-pounder, and Jake Finberg, West End, 126 pounds.

The classes are 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 pounds, all open.

Gay Meets Carlson in 13th Cue Match

Young Gay of Worcester will meet Swede Carlson of Somerville in the 13th game of the New England championship pocket billiard tourney at Bosworth Billiard Hall, 92 Tremont street tonight. Shorty Pete Crandall of Revere retained first place when he defeated Edwin Dawson in last night's match, 125 to 62.

A three way tie for second place exists among O'Brien, Jackson and Dawson, each having won two games and lost none.

Irish-Army Even Money Wager

By Associated Press

New York, Nov. 22—It will be even money and take your pick, so far as Notre Dame and Army are concerned on Saturday, but what are the odds against Wisconsin, California or Harvard pulling another football miracle such as Yale's conquest of Princeton last week?

Underdogs of the deepest dye are these three, as Doc Spears' Wisconsin Badgers prepare to face Minnesota's thundering herd; California attempts to stop the rush of Stanford's mighty Cardinals, and Harvard, already beaten four times, casts about for ways and means of halting Yale.

Most experts concede the Crimson by far the best chance to score an upset. Strictly speaking, however, it won't be much of a form reversal should Harvard win.

The soundness of the usual advice to toss away the form charts whenever two members of the big three get together was never more strikingly illustrated than last Saturday when Princeton, unbeaten in 15 games, went down before Yale's savage defense although the Tigers were 3 to 1 shots with virtually no takers on the short end at game time.

The same psychological situation which helped Yale last week will be battling in Harvard's corner. More to the point, perhaps, it seems impossible that Yale's "iron men" can duplicate their Princeton performance and inevitable that there should be a big letdown in the Eli camp. Harvard, ready to shoot the works, will be fully prepared to take advantage of any opening the Elis may give.

Wisconsin scored one of the season's many stunning upsets last week by eliminating Illinois from the Big Ten championship race, but even the Rutgers most enthusiastic supporters can see no real chance of stopping Pug Lund, Stan Kostka and others of that powerful Minnesota combination which has ridden roughshod over seven successive opponents this fall.

Any tendency toward Gopher over confidence was quickly corrected when the Badgers upset Illinois. Minnesota, with at least a share of the confidence title within its grasp, unquestionably will apply the pressure from the start and there does not seem to be the man-power in Spears' squad to cope with the Gophers at their best.

Tech Basket Ace Goes to Kentucky

Bill McCrocklin, basketball star on the M. I. T. freshman squad, has left the institute, it was announced today.

McCrocklin, a Kentucky boy, has transferred to his native state college. However, with an abundance of capable performers ready to fill the bill, Henry is not doing any tall worrying.

N. U. TO BUILD NEW QUINTET

With only two veteran regulars to work with, Coach Al McCoy will have to build his Husky court quintet mainly out of members of last year's freshman team.

Capt. Heath Morse and Alvin Melville are the only two dribblers who played for the first varsity five last year. Mert Rice and Jay Hart, both freshman stars, are expected to produce varsity caliber of play.

Hy Burstein, a Chelsea boy who never played high school basketball but burned up the court as a member of the Husky freshman five two years ago, has also reported this year.

Other likely candidates are John Paroni, Stew Mayberry, Warren Cushman, Gordon Morse, Don Roukes and Charlie Whitman.

Firpo, Mephisto to Meet Tuesday

Jose Firpo of the Argentine, former light heavyweight champion, has been matched to grapple the Great Mephisto in the feature match of Charlie Gordon's wrestling show at Mechanics Building next Tuesday.

Mephisto is a favorite with the crowd and should furnish Firpo with plenty of trouble.

RADIO MESSAGE BY GOV.-ELECT CURLEY

When the colorful "Pageant of the Celt" is opened tonight at Boston Garden, staged as a Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund charity, microphones of the WBZ-WBZA outlets will be set up to carry the doings across New England air channels. Governor-elect James M. Curley is to be the principal figure and will speak, the occasion being his first public appearance since his election. Broadcasting is to occupy the 8:30 to 9 o'clock half-hour. An elaborate musical background of instrumental and vocal character is likewise in store for loud-speaker patrons.

Perhaps a bit previous, as the saying goes, but none the less with emphasis, the popular Fred Waring "Pennsylvanians" group plan to express "thanks" all around (WNAC) tonight at 9:30 p. m. It's a medley of airs based on the appreciation theme, anticipating Thanksgiving.

Fred and his featured orchestra are at present concluding a stage tour in Washington, D. C. This evening finds them broadcasting from the National Press Club auditorium in the Capital. Such pieces as "Thanks for the Buggy Ride" "Thank you for the Flowers" and "Thanks for a Lovely Evening" are included, all to be special arrangements, rendered in characteristic Waring style.

PARIS PERSONALITY

Another appearance by Yvonne Gall, celebrated French operatic star, is announced by Paul Whiteman and will be the highlight of that "Music Hall" presentation presided over by Paul tonight (WEEI) between 10 and 11 o'clock. Likewise, the sixty minute setting is to reflect the rhythm score of Cole Porter's musical comedy "Anything Goes" recently moved into New York out of Boston.

Annette Hanshaw has her vocal version of the composition "Stay as Sweet as You Are" to contribute this evening (WNAC) during the weekly "Caravan" half hour. Walter O'Keefe gives a few humorous, newsstand proprietor problems for his part in the proceedings, while the Glen Gray Casa Loma lads offer "One Morning in May" and "I Got Rhythm" as their principal impressions. That's as usual, from 9 until 9:30 p. m.

NEW NETWORK NICHE

Donald Novis the former NBC network tenor, turns to the CBS camp, as of this evening and will be heard while that "45 Minutes From Hollywood" airing comes overland from California tonight (WNAC) on the stroke of 10 o'clock. Carole Lombard is likewise holding forth while the same show is in progress.

* * *

Along the WEEI lanes, here on the regular "Showboat" radioing, the three harmonizing Pickens Sisters are slated for guest star introduction through the 9 to 10 o'clock period.

Howard Barlow and his broadcasting tune troupe have melodies reminiscent of old Vienna to visit on the four winds (WNAC) as the 8:30 entry tonight. Mary Eastman accordingly lends her soprano voice to "Pierrette and Pierrot" from the "Count of Luxemberg" operetta by Lehar.

* * *

Narration by "Terry O'Toole, the boy from Ireland" has to do with the romantic legends concerning Blarney Castle and the famous Blarney Stone, the time 9:15 and WAAB the station. Tunes dear to natives of Erin's green hills, sung by the young Irishman, serve to round out his "mike" quarter hour of song and story.

ANOTHER CUT FOR B. U. SIX

The Boston University hockey squad, which has been cut to 35 men, will be sliced once more before the Terriers open against M. I. T. at the Boston Arena on December 8.

Coach Wayland F. Vaughan is still trying out all his newcomers to find a defense man to replace John Ulman, who was graduated last June. The answer to his search may be Roland Sherman, a sophomore at the law school, who transferred from Harvard two years ago. Sherman played at Andover and for the Harvard freshman sextet three years ago.

The men who survived the cut were Co-Captains John Lax and Paul Row, Russ Smith, Herman Nickerson, Pete Scammell, Dexter Wesson, Roland Sherman, Russ Lynch, Dick Van Iderstine, Bob Neilson, Russ Lynch, George Racheotes, Henry Colburn, Larry Lucey, Herb James, Don Miner, John Butterick, Joe Donahue, Bruce Tibbo, Warren McPhee, Tom Hartigan, Fred Nichols and Bill Scully.

CARNEY NURSES TO GIVE PLAY

Carney Hospital physicians, nurses and social workers will exchange their starched, austere uniforms for gayer trappings next Monday and Tuesday evening, when they will present "The Whole Town's Talking" in Repertory Hall, Huntington avenue, for the benefit of the hospital.

As have many other similar institutions, Carney Hospital, which has been serving Boston for many years, has been affected by the financial stress of the past few years and the committee of arrangements, headed by Dr. Charles Cataldo, has been energetically working for the production's success.

Prominent in the cast are Marie Jackson, Joan Leonard, Mary Joy, Florence Nawn, Nora Kennedy, Mildred Donahue and Drs. William Coughlin, Robert Beaudet, Joseph Healey and John Kelly.

Hit-Run Victim Thrown 20 feet

Barely escaping being struck a second time when he was tossed by a hit-and-run car directly into the path of another car, Harold Mitten, 27, of Chestnut avenue, Jamaica Plain, is at City hospital with concussion of the brain and body injuries.

Charles Nicoll of Aldworth street, Jamaica Plain, told police that he had to swerve his car into the reservation in the center of Huntington avenue to avoid hitting Mitten's body, which had been thrown 20 feet by the hit-and-run car.

Honor Worcester Woman

New York, Nov. 22—Mrs. Madelaine T. Hall, of 48 Tirrell street, Worcester, Mass., was given the 20-year guardian service award of the Camp Fire Girls.

This Ear—That Air

By N. F. T.

Unless I miss my gradually growing-in-on-me guess, certain program planners and the backers of a few broadcasts I could name, are likely to jam up with some prominent song publishing powers before long. Possibly it has been noted that, here and there, concerns and air artists are lately transposing the words of popular tunes to fit a specific selling scheme. Legal dynamite, if they did but know it!

The clumsy idea consists of rearranging a melody that deals for example with a "lovely lady" or "my sweet sweetheart" or any such romantic theme, whereby it presumably gets over a decidedly commercial message to the effect that said charming personality might be made (heaps and heaps) more gorgeous by the use of this or another commodity. Perhaps the play on words will further suggest how the whole inspiration of the love lyric comes into being because the article in question is available. You know, in the "large size" and all that.

"N.F.T"

One or two local "mike" presentations have offended a bit. They may or may not have heard about the recent controversy in New York, where the sponsor of a coast to coast setting on the Sunday afternoon schedules, was cracked down upon in a no uncertain manner for applying the lyrics of a long relished tune in an attempt to accelerate sales. Original theme songs, written especially for and designed to trade mark merchandise, is not always good, but it's at least acceptable promotion. Many unique ditties of the kind are actually clever. On the other hand, it would certainly seem that sufficient talk invariably tops off every ether entertainment effort, without resorting to the alteration of verses in a particularly striking song.

Al Jolson is the special "Hollywood Hotel" program attraction tomorrow night, with Louella Parsons, the film critic, and Dick Powell . . . Vic (Tattler) Whitman thinks he will have an "Amateur Night" soon (WEEI) for one of his nightly 6 to 6.30 offerings . . . Bing Crosby couldn't sing Tuesday night last because he caught cold watching a California football game (Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce please note), so the Boswells bore the half hour vocal burden . . . Gertrude Niessen, from her pictures, looks to be the typical exotic type of alluring beauty, one who might tip the beams around 135 or a bit more and appear to measure about 5 foot 6 or 7 inches in height. Instead, Gertrude is really somewhat schoolgirlish, not yet 22 years old, weighs but 112, stands only 5 foot 2 inches and is accompanied by Mother and Dad on all theatrical journeys . . . Next of the elaborate network gestures is a much drawn out orchestra rhythm dinning, to start Dec. 1 as a Saturday night dial diversion. Meaning 3 hours of dance music, from 10.30 P. M. until 1.30 A. M. Are you excited? . . . Joe Penner promptly responded to an N. F. T. request for a copy of his novelty "Three Trees" musical recitation. Now to pick it out on the piano keys and try to be the life of a party—or the pest . . . An exceptional poke taken at Graham McNamee by Ed Wynn, was the one Tuesday night, when the former was characterized as throwing his tongue into high gear before his mental machinery started turning over . . . Wayne Henry Latham, formerly a staff spokesman at the WBZ-WBZA echo emporiums, now working in the WHDH ranks . . . More concert classics for Sunday night, in addition to the current WBZ and WNAC twin hours between 8 and 9 P. M. There's a new grand opera salute replacing the comedy of Eddie Cantor and company, to follow this coming Sabbath evening. Sure enough, the courageous coffee folks figure to stage "Rigolletto" in English, giving John Charles Thomas the leading baritone role.

JOB INSURANCE PLAN BARED

Labor Secretary Perkins said that economic recovery now seems likely to come concurrently.

"The President's committee on economic security and the advisory council of 22 members are studying and will report on the plans for unemployment insurance, old age security, the hazards of ill health and provision for youthful dependents so that a sound foundation may be laid at this time, on which to build in the years to come."

In a talk she made before the Young Women's Christian Association later in the evening, Miss Perkins said:

"While unemployment insurance is not a panacea for all our ills, it is a measure of great value to the largest single group in our population—the steady wage-earners. While we have great concern for the 20 per cent who are unemployed, we should not forget the 80 per cent who are today working and always subject to the hazard of unemployment. We cannot make progress by bringing down that 80 per cent to the level of the 20 per cent.

"We must raise the 20 per cent from their status of dependency by work programs, and at the same time take measures that will protect the 80 per cent who are now employed from falling into that same situation. This is a real challenge to society in this decade.

"It has been the thought of the President's committee that every phase of the problem of insecurity should be studied and a comprehensive program formulated for report to the President and through him to Congress."

Miss Perkins said that it was estimated that more than 2,500,000 of the 6,500,000, Americans who are over 65 are dependent either entirely or very largely on others for support. While many of them have been brought to this condition through the loss of savings in recent years, most of them were unable to lay aside enough out of meager earnings to provide for their old age, she declared.

In this connection, the Secretary of Labor made pointed reference to the much-discussed Townsend plan and the hold it has taken on the imagination of credulous old people. Where the money is coming from to give substance to this munificent "mirage in the desert" financial scheme has not been revealed, but it has the support of at least seven men in the House, Miss Perkins said.

Shoe Firm in Lowell Closes

Lowell, Nov. 22—The United Novelty Shoe Company, a division of the Consolidated Shoe Company, which has employed 500 workers, went out of business today. With the aid of 20 men from the United Shoe Machinery Company, the factory equipment was removed to Webster, Mass., and Maine.

Under contract to the United Shoe and Leather Workers Unions until June 1, 1935, the United Novelty Shoe Company and union officials have had repeated controversies over wage scales.

Despite the efforts of Representative Edith Nourse Rogers and city and union officials to bring about amity, liquidation of the United Novelty Shoe Company, the third large shoe company in Lowell to take this action, occurred.

INTESTINAL TROUBLE

Miss Edna G. Potter, 54 Fairmont St., Cambridge, Mass., says: "Ever since I can remember I had been troubled with intestinal indigestion with all its distressing symptoms. Gas, constipation, nervous, tired, loss of appetite. The family doctor failed to relieve me. And my neighbors, Mrs. Mitchell and Mr. Doherty, told me how Dr. Walsh had successfully treated them for a like condition. Acting on their advice I had Dr. Walsh treat me. He did so much for me that I have taken my mother to him and make this statement so that others suffering as I did may know where to go for help."

Signed (Miss) Edna G. Potter.

Americans See That Although Some Officials Seem Unaware

NEW FLYING BOAT DESIGNED TO SPAN PACIFIC

WITH this flying boat, just built at Bridgeport, Conn., Pan-American Airways expects to span the Pacific Ocean. After it is tuned up it will be put into experimental service between California and China.

A mail and passenger air-line, with planes arriving and departing on regular schedule, will eventually connect West Coast cities with Shanghai and other Far-Eastern ports.

Thus the world shrinks.

This plane can fly 3000 miles without refuelling—a distance 1000 miles greater than the Bermuda-Azores stretch across the Atlantic and 600 greater than that from San Francisco to Hawaii.

France, meanwhile, has built a double-decked 80-passenger flying boat for Transatlantic service. This giant craft has a cruising range of 2800 miles.

But the French government is paying for it. Here we leave aviation development chiefly in private hands.

AMERICANS will be—or ought to be—interested in both these ships.

Thoughtful Americans will say: "If America and France can build them, others can. If we should be drawn into war with some nation in Europe OR Asia, what then?"

The Atlantic is no longer a barrier and soon the Pacific will not be. Cities on both coasts and cities inland are now open to attack from the sky.

It appears that this country will have to recast its ideas of defense, and prepare to meet the new menace from the air—in spite of admirals and generals who still pin their faith to slow battleships and slower battalions.

Hence the American people respectfully ask their Government to wake up to aviation.

They suggest our Government spend adequate funds on aviation, not only for peace but also for preparations against war.

Taxpayers will not object to being taxed for this form of national life insurance.

They do object to being taxed for scores of fool "social" experiments on the Russian pattern, while their defenses get worse each day, and are not built up again on MODERN lines.

The Paroled Convict

He's Too Often in the News

The paroled convict is too often in the news. And it's usually court news.

The latest example is that of Harold J. Maxwell, sentenced this week by Judge Clifford B. Sanborn in the Dedham district court to serve a year in the house of correction.

According to the testimony, Maxwell accosted a couple in a parked car and got $2 for his promise to "keep quiet." This led to the larceny charge.

The police charged that, in a holdup the same night, Maxwell took a diamond ring valued at $300 from a young man.

Theoretically, Maxwell will have two and a half years to serve in State Prison, since he is on parole.

State prison sentences would undoubtedly be much more effective if they had to be served. Too many criminals seem to know the legal "way out."

A Record Shipment

Uncle Sam Big Supplier

Ten locomotives with tenders and fifteen passenger cars, said to be the largest shipment of American-made railroad equipment made for export since 1929, have gone to Chile.

On the face of it good news. A welcome sign of reviving world trade with America getting her share. But there is one thing out about it. The equipment went abroad on a foreign ship.

It would be a much more welcome sign of better times if American shippers had received the preference. American products should be carried in American ships manned by American seamen!

Connecticut Leads

Swift Justice, Fewer Crimes

A week ago Thursday two young toughs from New Jersey sped through Dalton, Conn., in a stolen automobile.

Halted by two policemen, the Jersey youths began shooting. Their bullets hit both officers.

At the end of five days the two gunmen had been arrested, tried, convicted and sent on their way to prison for long terms.

This sample case is held by well-informed people to be a typical reason why the percentage of serious crimes committed in Connecticut is remarkably low.

Crime DOES NOT PAY when justice is swiftly on the job. And most criminals know it.

Daily Bible Text "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee."
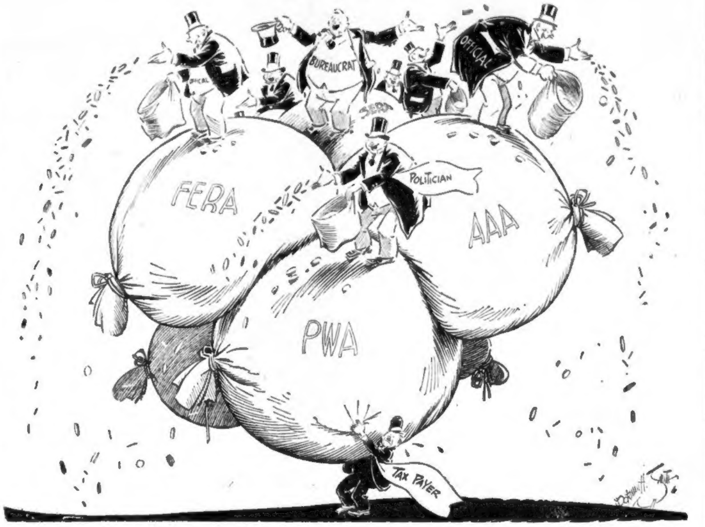
Isaiah xxvi, 3.

By the Rev. G. D. Hudson, Baptist Church, Mansfield.

"THE FORGOTTEN MAN"



The forgotten man in this picture is at the bottom of the heap.

He carries the load, for every dollar that the Government expends must be paid sooner or later by the humble taxpayer.

Stimulating industry, so as to make re-employment, is the first task of the national recovery program.

But this task involves putting the Federal books in order and lightening the taxpayer's burden. There is only one national income, and if government exacts an inordinate share business suffers accordingly.

As William Randolph Hearst said in his comments on the recent election:

"The National Administration must realize that an unbalanced budget and excessive and unreasonable expenditures cannot be continued forever."

Listen, World -:- By Elsie Robinson

HE BET ON AMERICA!

He was a huge, coarse creature with tiny eyes, a plug-ugly jaw and quivering, purple-red jowls. He had no education—no manners—no notion of refinement. When he talked he shouted. When he laughed he bellowed. When he ate he tossed regiments of oysters, mountains of meat, oceans of gravy, glaciers of ice cream down his vast, red maw.

Elsie Robinson

He bought his diamonds by the bushel and his women by the gross. His stomach, by surgical measurement, was six times the size of an ordinary man's—and his heart, by unanimous vote, equalled his stomach.

When he blazed down Fifth avenue on his jeweled gold bicycle, traffic stopped, policemen broke into dimpled smiles and rival railway competitors climbed telegraph poles.

BACK IN THE 90'S

Such was the spectacular "Diamond" Jim Brady—and such were his equally spectacular times. For they did things like that back in the 90's.

Stuffed themselves with chow, wreathed themselves with jewels, served up naughty, nude, little girls in paper pies—and then went out and tossed a continent together—or apart.

Incredible? No, just American. If you think that this country was created by peevish Puritans with vinegar in their veins, you'd better get over that notion. Whether you like it or not, it was created by the "Diamond Jims."

Now Parker Moreil has assembled the pictures, and Simon & Schuster have put it into a book with "Diamond" Jim billowing proudly on the cover, the inevitable diamond embedded in his midst. "THE LIFE AND TIMES OF 'DIAMOND' JIM"—the most amazing, fantastic, hilarious, gorgeous record of pig-wallowing history-making males ever written. And, golly, how we need it!

For something has surely happened to America since "Diamond" Jim gulped down his last hundred oysters, covered his last wheel with diamonds, kissed his last "niece" on her naughty naked toes and passed, belching, to his fathers.

HALF ARE SISSIES

Half of us are sissies and the other half cry-babies . . . it's a cinch he'd disown us all. And never have we had a more timely tonic handed us than this record of a big, bad boy who couldn't be licked and didn't know when he was.

Hardships? Handicaps? Depressions? He knew all at their worst. You think hell busted loose in 1929? Read what happened to your dad and grandad back in '96! Jim was at his height then. And Wotta Height!

Hold your nose, cross your fingers, say your prayers—BUT DON'T SKIP A LINE. For presently you'll come to something which will be good for everything that ails you.

The bottom had dropped out of business. America had gone crazy. Men were killing themselves like flies. And no man with sense would have given a plugged nickle for the future of these United States. AND IN THE MIDST OF THAT MAD HOUSE "DIAMOND" JIM DECIDED TO BET ON AMERICA!

Everyone was croaking. Jim roared with disgust . . . and commanded his secretary to sell all his securities—turn everything he possessed into cash, and then spend it wholesale:

"But—" cried that horrified gentleman.

"There ain't any 'buts' about it!" Jim shouted. "You've been readin' what those ——, pussyfootin' bankers have been sayin' in the papers. Hell! All they know about is a lot of figgers. And figgers don't tell half the story. The things that count are the people and the land."

So "Diamond" Jim banked every cent he had on American people—American soil. And when his distressed friends tried to hold him back he said something which should stand immortal in our annals—"IF IT DON'T WORK I CAN ALWAYS START OVER."

"I CAN ALWAYS START OVER"—that was the spirit that made America—that will save America. Homeless Pilgrims huddled on a bleak and hostile shore . . . incredible "Diamond" Jim gulping down six chickens at Rector's . . . at heart they were the same—AMERICANS—WHO COULD ALWAYS "START OVER."

TO WAITING EUROPE

(All Europe is waiting for Americans to start collecting art again, Dr. Wilhelm Valentiner)

When both capital and labor
Shall decide once more to neighbor
And to share each other's troubles,
Man to man and heart to heart again;
When the poor man and the scholar
Know the value of a dollar;
When a profit isn't shameful
We may start collecting art again.

When the generation younger
Isn't faced by cold and hunger
And we see a sign of business
Back in office, shop and mart again;
When to reap is not a blunder
And we've done with plowing under,
Tell the waiting Europeans
We may start collecting art again.

When we hire the men we've laid off;
When the war debts have been paid off;
When the mortgage has been lifted
And our idle factories start again;
When it's safe once more to borrow,
And with faith we face tomorrow;
When our earnings meet our taxes
We may start collecting art again.

But I fear 'tis truth I'm stating 'Tis a long time they'll be waiting
Ere to hand them hard-earned dollars
We shall ever think it smart again.
Until friendship we're assured of,
This is one disease we're cured of.
They may never live to greet us
When we start collecting art again.

Are Youngsters Selfish? -:- -:- By Winifred Black

There we were all in a row at the mercantile exposition.

It was the night for the drawing of the prizes and the great hall was packed to the doors with men, women and children.

Winifred Black

The prizes were all in full view of the stage. Dinner sets, a chest of silver, radios, electric ironing machines, vacuum cleaners—it was really a wonderful and very interesting display.

A joyous young man in evening dress, who looked as Santa Claus must have looked when he was twenty-two or so, read the numbers of the winning tickets, and one by one the lucky holders came up to get their prizes.

INTERESTING TO SEE

Comfortable, well fed, contented looking people for the most part. And each one had his choice of the prizes.

It was interesting to see what the people chose.

The men picked golf sets or a repeating rifle or a radio or a motorcycle or an unusually good fishing outfit. The women chose things that would help in the housework.

They were all for the family the women, but how they did beam when husband drew, the rifle or the fishing outfit, bless their hearts.

But the thing that brought the tears to my eyes was the kid—he was just about 15 years old—the kid, and he was up in the gallery with a gang of his friends. They were whistling and cat calling, and waving at another gang in another corner of the balcony.

All at once a number was called which drew the kid from his seat as if someone had snatched him with a long armed, powerful hand.

Up on the stage he scrambled as quick as a cat, but when he got there he didn't know what to do, he gazed at the radios, he stopped before the fishing outfit, and he acted as if he simply couldn't leave the collapsible canoe, but he turned resolutely away and stood in the household department.

WHAT SHALL I TAKE?

"I'll have to have a little help," he said to young Santa Claus.

"Can I ask ma what to choose?" And when young Santa Claus grinned and nodded, the kid lifted his youthful voice in a kind of a weird bellow.

"Ma," he roared. "Ma, what shall I take? It's for you, ma—something you want."

A thin, faded, little woman, who must have been pretty once, before the kid began to grow out of his clothes, stood up in the gallery, she put her shaking hand to her mouth and whispered something.

She had to repeat it three or four times and finally a man behind her roared out the message.

The kid's face shone with triumphant delight.

"All right ma," he bellowed and he chose—the bright shining, powerful washing machine, and all his gang up in the gallery set up such a screeching of whistles and clapping of hands and stamping of feet that you could hardly hear yourself think.

And then they talk of the cold selfishness of modern youth.

It was a comfort to think that the kid is just one of thousands of his kind scattered all over this country of ours.

Wouldn't you be proud to be the mother of a boy like that, neighbor?

Stars and Stripes

Why doesn't Europe stop laughing at Uncle Sam and give him a chance to laugh at himself? He knows how funny it is to be cheated out of ten billion dollars.

A New York judge holds that a bad boy is like a bad penny, and should be taken out of circulation.

Some people in Canada think the St. Lawrence waterway project gives all the advantages to the United States. This argument won't help the scattered opposition south of the frontier.

Human Side of the News

Wine Glasses in the White House

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE-TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Out of the White House cellar comes 1800 wine glasses, shined up for use again at state dinners, after drab years which gave no glint of light on crystal or warming purple effluence at state functions.

Casually, Mrs. Roosevelt lets it be known that wine is back. It's nothing to make a fuss about. She doesn't drink wine, or anything alcoholic. But here are guests—"Wine?"—"Oh, yes!"—"Well, as we were saying—.

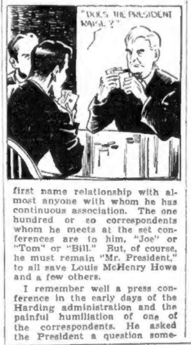
Sappho might meet Ella Boole at the party and there would be no social contretemps. There's more afoot in America today than one-half of one per cent and the moral turpitude therein at stake.

Socially assured people with a sense of humor don't need to maintain a great deal of social regimentation. They can play by ear or improvise.

There's nothing of the social entrepreneur about the Roosevelts. And here in the White House is a new tempo and a new decorum—the decorum which comes of putting "first things first," without too much fretting about state precedent. And there's a new social era in Washington, an era of charming informality, stirring venomous whispers among the old die-hard Dowagers, but rolling along merrily just the same.

In the nation's capital, it is the era of first names. Journeymen politicians, joiners, back-slappers and high-pressure salesmen know well the efficacy of this. But the President lives and works in a highly personalized and highly particularized cosmos. It just comes natural with him.

Without a hint of self-consciousness, he soon gets into a first name relationship with almost anyone with whom he has continuous association. The one hundred or so correspondents whom he meets at the set conferences are to him, "Joe" or "Tom" or "Bill." But, of course, he must remain "Mr. President," to all save Louis McHenry Howe and a few others.

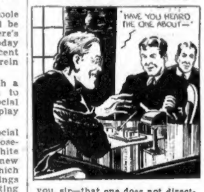


"DOES THE PRESIDENT RAISE?"

I remember well a press conference in the early days of the Harding administration and the painful humiliation of one of the correspondents. He asked the President a question something like this: "What would you do in the event of the failure of the bill?"

The President rose and advanced a pace or two toward his inquisitor.

Tall, imposing, august, his handsome face quivering with anger, he had stepped down from Sinai to blast one who had profaned the arc of the covenant. His usually mellow and oracular voice had a trip-hammer impact, as he said: "I am informing—you, sir—that one does not directly address the PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA."



"HAVE YOU HEARD THE ONE ABOUT—"

HARDING LIKED

The news hawk walked out through the crack under the door.

The newspapermen liked Harding. But even in those informal moments when they caught him holding out an ace kicker in the poker game, failing to collect and trying to bluff it through, they never forgot their manners. "Does the President raise?" they would ask solemnly.

Warren Harding was sincere in his feeling for the high sanctity of his office. But, while not socially inept, he lacked the light and easy touch which makes Franklin D. Roosevelt so happy and engaging.

In the matter of the above gaucherie, he probably would have awaited a chance to speak to the correspondent alone and then said casually:

"Listen, Bill, you're a bit offside when you address the President directly. It doesn't bother me—by the way, did I ever tell you the one about—"

While a whole lot of fetiches are being knocked over, no one need moan about any subversion of old-time Americanism. It appears that the new wide-open game down there, although it may have a touch of under-graduate whoop-te-doo, may be essentially American.

The Roosevelts get away with it beautifully in keeping open house. And there is plenty of decorum.

As always, the town is full of ace-in-the-hole politicians, lobbyists, professional fixers, and gossips, and that's something for any White House host and hostess to ponder about.

Miraculously, the Roosevelts find a pleasant amalgam for all these unassimilable elements.

Hendrik Van Loon

PONDERS ABOUT

Meaning of Wars

It is an old newspaperman's yarn but it will bear repeating. Once upon a time there was a cub reporter who was told to go and write a story about a missionary meeting. That evening all the missionary societies of the small town in which he lived were to come together to decide upon a common line of action.

Hendrik Van Loon

There was to be no more rivalry between the different mission-stations. Henceforth they were all of them expected to love each other and to compete harmoniously for the favor of the heathen Chines and the other pagans of distant lands.

"WHERE'S THE STORY?"

The young cub filled his pockets with well-sharpened pencils and set forth upon the greatest event in any newspaperman's life, his first independent assignment.

Thirty minutes later he returned to the office, lit a cigarette, put his feet upon the nearest desk, like any old timer, and settled down to enjoy next morning's sporting page. There his city editor spotted him an hour later and, greatly excited by the apparent indifference of the youngster, he shouted:

"Hey, you there! Where is that story about the missionaries?"

The youth did not even deign to raise his voice.

"Forget it," he answered serenely. "The laugh is on you! There was no story. There was not even any meeting. They started fighting the moment the chairman called them to order. When I left the police were just taking the last dozen out to the ambulance."

I was reminded of this charming little incident while reading the newspapers the day after Armistice Day. The headlines proudly boasted of the fact that in England Armistice Day had passed without a single outbreak of violence. In France and in Ireland and in almost every other country there had been all sorts of unpleasant incidents.

Everywhere the pacifists had jeered at the veterans, and the veterans had threatened to break their skulls. Here at home, the dean of one of our largest cathedrals had called all pacifists "idiots."

The good dean had probably used the word in its original meaning, denoting "persons of singular conceptions, who stand slightly apart from the rest of mankind."

By nature and personal inclination I am a 100% coward. The moment they begin to fire guns, machine-guns and cannon around me, I can think of only one place where I would like to be—in the basement of the Harvard Club or any other club, hotel or private house that has a nice convenient basement.

As far as I can see, we have no neighbors who mean to do us harm.

But our neighbors, alas, have other neighbors who are not so ideally situated. In a world full of dictators there are bound to be very serious conflicts of will, and conflicts of will, as all of us know, are at the base of every war.

WATCHING FOR EXIT

How, when or where such a war will occur—that I do not know. But give me 10 rival gangsters in a single bar-room and I will keep my eye carefully riveted on the nearest exit.

That exit, in our case, if we wish to avoid being dropped into another gladiatorial combat between some of our former friends and allies, consists of a certain dignified aloofness and an army and navy of sufficient size to make all racketeers and strong-arm men think twice before they pick a quarrel or tell us they don't like the looks of our hair-cut.

But even while saying this I recognize the danger of such a policy. No nation ever had an army except for purely "defensive purposes." No nation ever started a war except for purely "defensive purposes." And with a good brass band and a couple of strong-lunged orators, one can perform miracles of patriotic enthusiasm.

On the other hand—but here I resign, I surrender, I give up. The Right Reverend Dean was probably right. But he addressed the wrong party. The "idiot" of whom he spoke was I. For I have lived through 19 major and 287 minor wars during my own lifetime, and I don't yet know what to make of them.
